

Shipwreck Fails To Halt Cupid

KODIAK, Alaska, Jan. 8 (UP)—Ten survivors of the wrecked motorship Spencer, all of them hospitalized for frozen feet or exposure, today planned the wedding that was delayed when their vessel ran aground and cast them up on an icy Alaskan cape for four days.

Capt. Axel Carlson of the Spencer revealed he was bringing his bride-to-be, Ava Skonberg, and her family from the village of Chignik to Kodiak for a wedding when the vessel ran aground and broke up Friday on storm-swept Cape Kanatak 50 miles north of Kodiak.

"We planned to get married this week," he said. "But now we'll just have to wait until my frozen feet thaw out."

The Navy tug Motaco and the Coast Guard cutter Clover brought the survivors, including two women and a 6-year-old boy, here last night. They were transferred to the Griffin Memorial Hospital where attendants said the women and child suffered only from exposure but five men had frozen feet.

TRILLS AND THRILLS—Three-year-old Herbert David leads these three prospective war brides from Paris in song in Philadelphia, Pa., after immigration officials told them they could remain in America. They were given 90-day paroles in which to get married after they missed the Ellis Island deadline because their plane couldn't land in a New York snowstorm.
