

20 in GOP Bloc Agree In Secret on Slash Of $6,800,000 Aid

'Heavy Drain on Economy of U. S.; Lack Votes to Reject Marshall Plan

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (UP)—The Marshall Plan ran into its first organized opposition today from a bloc of some 20 Republican senators who want a drastic slash in the requested $6,800,000,000 down-payment for aid to Europe.

The senators decided at a secret hotel room meeting last night, it was learned, to fight the proposed initial investment on the ground that it would place "too heavy a drain on the U. S. economy."

While no definite "compromise" figure was agreed at the meeting, there has been considerable speculation about trimming the appropriation to between $4 billion and $5 billion.

The GOP senate bloc resolved to attack the spending angle. It was said, after a count of noses convinced them they do not have the votes to reject the Marshall Plan in its entirety.

Confident of Support
Members of the group were reported confident of winning some Democratic support in their economic drive.

Meanwhile Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson came before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, while Lewis W. Douglas, U. S. Ambassador to Britain, faced questioning by the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Secretary Anderson told the committee the Marshall Plan would help U. S. wheat farmers adjust slowly to normal production and would provide a needed foreign market for U. S. tobacco and fruit.

Mr. Anderson estimated that the United States under the European Recovery Program would export 1,000,000 bushels of wheat in the next four years. But he said these exports would enable the U. S. wheat farmer to "gradually" reduce his swollen production.

Mr. Anderson told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the enactment of the program would help U. S. tobacco and fruit industries regain their foreign markets. Under the Marshall Plan, he estimated, total U. S. exports of fresh fruits by fiscal 1952 would be doubled, shipments of dried fruits would be up 50 per cent, and tobacco exports would be hiked 12 per cent, as compared with the current fiscal year.

Sen. Millikin, who heads the Senate Appropriations Committee, said the budget could be trimmed "without injury to desirable objectives."

Senator Says Public Will Face Rations

Sen. John J. Sparkman (D. Ala.) said public opinion will force the Republican leadership to go along with the anti-inflation proposals. Sen. Sparkman, a member of the Senate Banking Committee, said that unless Congress approves meat rationing by spring "a lot of people will be going without their fair share."

House Hearing Starts On Petriello Record Ban

The House Labor Committee opened a hearing on music censorship today with President Justin Miller of the National Association of Broadcasters as the first witness. Mr. Miller was asked to illustrate the effects of Mr. Petriello's latest action. The musical boss forbade the 216,000 members of his American Federation of Musicians (AFL) to make any recordings or transmissions after Jan. 1.

Treasury Staff Works On Truman Tax Plan

The Treasury staff is working to develop a formula for President Truman's tax program which caught most of its top experts by surprise.

Secretary of Treasury John W. Snyder will present the formula to the House Ways and Means Committee on Friday. However, the committee is almost certain to reject Mr. Truman's recommendation for cutting individual income taxes $40 per person and boosting corporation levies to make up the $3,200,000,000 revenue loss. A majority of committee members reportedly are sold on the tax-cut plan worked out by Chairman Harold Knutson (R. Minn.).

Democrat Moves To Clear UMT Bill

Rep. Henry D. Larcade Jr. (D. La.) has begun a move to by-pass the House Rules Committee on the universal training bill. Mr. Larcade filed a discharge petition on the bill. If 218 members sign the petition, the controversial training bill can be brought to the House floor without going through the Rules Committee which is said to be hostile to it.

2 Held in Benton Harbor For Evanston Murders

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Jan. 13 (UP)—Police said two men were being held for Evanston, Ill., authorities today in connection with the slaying of two Evanston women in 1942.

Police Chief Alvin C. Boyd said Lovell Boykins, 37, and William Nelson Hockett, 23, were picked up late yesterday on a tip from a Chicago newspaper.

Jack Bird, who confessed to the killing of Mrs. Lillian Galvin, her maid Edna Sibilski, on Oct. 22, 1942, allegedly implicated the pair in his confession in Walls, Wash., Chief Boyd said.

Feeney Fills 2 More Offices

Jack Kammins Heads Zoning Board

Two newly appointed members of the City Plan Commission and Zoning Board sat in on the first session of the reorganized group yesterday at City Hall.

Jack B. Kammins, attorney, and Leo P. Gauss, fire and casualty insurance dealer, are the two new citizens members appointed by Mayor Feeney yesterday. One other citizen member is yet to be named.

Other new members of the combined commission and board who hold their office by virtue of their appointment to another City agency are Mrs. Agnes Connor of the Park Board; Paul Cave, Works Board president; J. Porter Seidensticker, representative of the City Council; and Paul R. Brown, county surveyor.

Heads Zoning Board

Mr. Kammins was elected president of the Zoning Board at its organization meeting and Mr. Seidensticker became vice president.

Mr. Kammins, a Democrat, has practiced law in Indianapolis since 1920. He is a past president of the state association of B'nai B'rith Lodges and a member of the executive council of Marion County Infants' Paralysis Chapter. Mr. Kammins is on the board of directors of the Indianapolis Round Table for Christians and Jews and a member of Monument Lodge, F.&A.M.

Mr. Gauss, also a Democrat, resides at 5740 E. 10th St. He is married and has two children. In the insurance business here many years, he is a member of the Indianapolis, Indiana and National Associations of Insurance Agents, American Legion and Little Flower Catholic Church.

Admits Stabbing Girl, 8, to Death

Youth, 22, Confesses To Baltimore Police

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 13 (UP)—A slightly-built, bespectacled youth who served six years in a New York state reformatory, blandly told reporters last night how he stabbed Sheila Ann Tuley, an 8-year-old Cleveland girl, to death on New Year's Day.

"I just lost my head, that's all," Harold Alfred Beach, 22, said in an interview arranged by Baltimore police.

"I met her on my way home from a movie and gave her a quarter to go to a place I know. She screamed when I took out my paring knife and stuck her. Then I done it."

Beach, who grinned nervously throughout most of the interview, was picked up by local police while working at a gasoline filling station here. He told them he came here Saturday to visit his mother and, until then, had lived in Cleveland with his father and step-mother.

Capt. Henry J. Kriss, chief of the detective bureau who arranged the interview, asked Beach if he would fight extradition to Cleveland.

"If you've got the papers made up, I'll sign 'em," he said.

Asked what he thought would happen to him if he returns to Cleveland, he replied:

"The most I can get is the chair."

Colonel Replies To CMT Blast

Col. Ray C. Thomas, president of the Indiana Reserve Officers' Association, today labeled as "essential" the proposed universal military training program.

Col. Thomas' statement came in reply to a release from the American Veterans' Committee headquarters here in strong opposition to the plan.

"A large force of trained men would be necessary to give continuing resistance following a sudden attack made possible by modern weapons. At present we do not have a force large enough to supply this resistance," Col. Thomas said.

He also said the reserve training program could be arranged so as not to interfere with school attendance.

Recreation Subject At N. S. Kiwanis Club

Joel Hadley, principal of Shortridge High School, will address the newly-formed North Indianapolis Kiwanis Club tonight in Spencer's Restaurant.

Mr. Hadley's topic will be "On the Banks of Fall Creek" and will deal with the recreational possibilities of the Fall Creek valley.

Concrete, Earth to Guard New Purdue Synchrotron

Most of Mechanism Will Be Below Ground; Building Addition Under Construction

LAFAYETTE, Jan. 13—Excavations have been completed and concrete is being poured in the construction of an addition to the Physics building at Purdue University, to house the new synchrotron which will be used for research by the physics department.

The work includes a large excavation because the building, which is to be approximately 40 feet by 60 feet and 32 feet high, will be placed mostly below the ground for protective purposes. The new building will be located in the rear west court of the Physics building.

A E. Kemmer, Lafayette contractor, received the general construction contract on his bid of $76,800 and also the contract for the electrical work, which totaled $16,920. The contract for plumbing and heating went to Freyn Brothers of Indianapolis on their bid of $17,787.

Guard Against Rays
The synchrotron will be used for investigations of high charge elementary particles in the field of nuclear energy. Some parts of the new synchrotron are being constructed by outside companies, but

Ask Mrs. Manners—

Boy Walks Out After She Steps Out—Once

Dear Mrs. Manners:

I LIVE IN A SMALL TOWN and therefore know everyone and what they do. There is a main gang in our town and I run around in it. I have a lot of friends and am well liked as far as I know. I've always gone with this crowd and have been the kind of a girl to like all the boys but not go steady.

In August a new boy moved here. Like I always am, I was friendly and he was taken into our crowd with a welcome. But to me he seemed more than just a boy I could take or leave alone. He seemed to be my every thought and dream. He asked me for his first date and for three months we went steady.

Four months after he came to our town he hadn't gone with another girl, but somehow, no matter how I liked him, I wanted to see how much I liked him by going with another boy, just once. I went. I told the first boy that I didn't, but he found it out. He quit me.

I know that he liked me when he quit me because he told me that I was the only one at that time. He wouldn't say that he would not go with me anymore but then he wouldn't say that he would.

Four months have passed and I haven't gone with him that first time. He often watches me when the gang is out together. He watches me when I'm not looking. Just yesterday I found out that all the boys are trying to get him to ask me for a date but I think that his pride is holding him back. Sometimes he speaks and sometimes he doesn't. I like him and he knows I do. I also am pretty sure he likes me. What can I do? Everyone wants me to go with him. SUE.

Un huh—you really deserve your pligh. I'm in favor of you not being too easy to win—but you should have been honest when questioned. You need trust in love, marriage and friendship—you'd want it, so you should be trustworthy.

You weren't engaged to him, apparently, so your other date wasn't too serious. You could say you're sorry that you were dishonest and then act and look interested. He'll be unable to refrain long from asking you for a date if he likes you well enough. Wait until his pride lets him finish punishing you.

'Can't Get Along With Our Dates'

WE ARE TWO well-mannered, well-dressed and attractive girls of 24 and 25 years of age.

Although we try very hard to get along with our dates, they never seem to come back after the second or third date. We try hard to fit in with the crowd so all can have a good time but we just don't seem to "click." Can you help us?

Make our friendships among girls and learn their charms. You and your friend probably are so much alike that you back up each other in your ideas of style and personality which may need improvement.

Don't always insist on double dates. Make your date think that he is more important to you than the friendship you girls enjoy.

Don't talk about each other constantly, or lean on each other. There may be nothing wrong with you—maybe the man had other girls or other interests—but I'd find out.

Wants to Meet Nice Fellow

I AM 32 YEARS OLD and would like to meet some nice fellow between 32 and 40 years old—one who has a car and dresses neat. I am considered nice looking, have nice clothes and am neat. I like to have a good time in the right way. I would like to meet the fellow who is not afraid to go inside a church on Sunday or any other time.

You may have overlooked a good prospect in your church. It wouldn't be irreverent to look around modestly at church social gatherings.

Keep neat and attractive. You'll find someone with your standards.

Joy Lodge for the Lonely

I NOTICE quite a few middle-aged people have written to you recently about being lonely. Why don't you ever mention the Joy Lodge? My mother-in-law used to go there and three of her dear friends went with her. They had grand evenings. Dances and parties were held for lonely people who desired to meet other lonely people.

It is truly wonderful to be able to meet that way. The young folks have their "teen canteens" but older people aren't so fortunate. There is no drinking allowed at those meetings so it is a good place for the ladies to go and is much better than sitting alone in a room with thoughts.

We think your column is grand. Although we don't always agree with some of the answers, more power to you. MRS. G. P.

Thank you for your concern about my lonely people. Send me your views when you disagree with my answers—we can all help these troubled people.

Joy Lodge, a part of the Widows, Widowers, Maids and Bachelors organization, conducts public dances and card parties on Saturday nights between 8:30 o'clock and midnight at 17 W. Morris St. Helen Cromer, 2402 Adams St., is secretary of the organization.

The 50-50 Club also sponsors dances for persons over 18 years old on Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday nights, 8:30 to 11:30 o'clock, in Woodmen Hall, 222 E. New York St. There probably are many groups sponsoring similar public events.

Let Mrs. Manners and readers of your column share your problems and answer your questions. Write in care of The Times, 214 W. Maryland St.

Ike-

General / Issue Raised By N. H.

In for Good Doesn't Get

By LYLE C. V.

Called from Washington, D.C., the fastest moving American politician, Dwight D. Eisenhower, yesterday, H. H. H. direct issue raised the state of delegates in the March 9 National Convention.

Unless the general out shortly in language, he will be in a position to win or lose the election.

Announcement that lower delegates still entered in New Hampshire was promptly by Ike by Sen. Charles McNair.

"For some time," "I have been giving as to which man, possible candidates for nomination is the greatest crisis. I have a feeling that Dwight is that man."

With the issue raised, a number of Washington experts believed that Eisenhower would win the election, perhaps even before the election.

But Ike passed statement through that he would not enter in New Hampshire. He spokesman said he had said he wanted with politics and his mind.

By the time Ike's backers get through statement it will be a per cent endorsement for his behavior. What the New York Times said was a long way from the story of this man.

Eisenhower called "Fails to Call Ike's Race."

"Ike Again Declines to Run for Presidency" Other Republicans less wish Ike would New York and be president of Columbia University.

State of delegate election. Eisenhower pledged to former Governor of Minnesota.

The feeling is that Ike would political figure beyond that of a man for the GOP nomination.
