Up to American Churches To Help Stabilize Europe

Dr. Roswell P. Barnes, Speaker at Pastors' Conference, Sounds Keynote of Meeting

By EMMA RIVERS MILNER, Times Church Editor

"Unless the American churches put old world people on their feet emotionally, European civilization is lost," Dr. Roswell P. Barnes, who is here for the Indiana State Pastors' Conference, thus "laid down the law" for the Protestant members of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America. He recently traveled all over Europe including countries under Russian influence.

Ministers of many denominations are in Indianapolis today for the 17th annual Indiana Pastors' Conference in the Third Christian Church. The conference opened at 9 a. m. today and will close Thursday noon.

Spirit Important

Dr. Barnes feels that it isn't so important how much money and relief supplies we send abroad as that we send something from many directions as tokens of friendship. He sees the Europeans as utterly exhausted physically, nervously and emotionally and suffering from an overwhelming sense of frustration.

"We Americans don't realize until we leave our country how great our power and influence are and therefore our responsibility," was his comment.

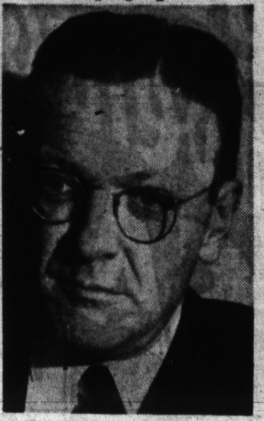

"During the war we expected that we would find a new spiritual vitality in the churches of England and Europe as a result of their testing and suffering during the war."

People Exhausted

"We are rather disappointed to find that although their insight has been deepened, they are so exhausted as to be almost unable to face difficult post-war problems. We have been prepared for their physical and economic exhaustion but we were hardly prepared for their nervous and emotional exhaustion."

Added to this exhaustion is a state of frustration. The Europeans feel themselves caught between two tremendous powers—the United States and Russia. They believe their fate will be determined by the clash between the United States and Russia and therefore, they think it doesn't make very much difference what they do.

"This means that the American churches have a tremendous responsibility to put these people on their feet or European civilization is lost."

Dr. Barnes will speak on "Looking Ahead" at the 3:30 p. m. conference session today and at the 8 p. m. mass meeting on "The Mission of Today's Church." It is expected that the will tell of consultations with church leaders held in all parts of Europe in preparation for the first assembly of the World Council of Churches. It will be held in August in Amsterdam, The Netherlands.

He envisions the world council as the greatest existing force for building universal moral standards for peoples of the globe.

In addition to Dr. Barnes, other speakers scheduled for the conference include Bishop Fred L. Dennis of the Evangelical United Brethren Church, an Indianapolis resident. Bishop Dennis will speak tomorrow at 11:30 a. m. on "China in the Balance." He has just returned from a trip to the Orient.

Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati, president of the Federal Council of Churches, will give an address at the mass meeting tomorrow at 8 p. m. The new Protestant film, "Beyond Our Own," will be shown tomorrow at 4:45 p. m.

AFL Backs Aid Plan; Urges Labor Adviser

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 27 (UP)—The Marshall Plan today had the backing of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, representing 7,600,000 members of AFL-affiliated unions.

The 15-member council, meeting here yesterday, adopted unanimously a statement endorsing the aid program and urging Congress to appoint an advisory council including labor representatives to help administer it.

Battleman Hearing Set

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 27 (UP)—A deportation hearing was scheduled today for Feb. 5 to decide whether Alexander Battleman, American Communist leader, should be sent back to his native Russia. The party head, now free under $5000 bond, was arrested here Jan. 25 on orders from Attorney General Tom Clark.

Wage Pact May Stabilize Home Building

Unions Agree to Hold Demands in Check

By S. BURTON HEATH

NEW YORK, Jan. 27—Tens of thousands of new homes, in this badly over-crowded community, are prophesied as a result of a wage stabilization agreement which the Building Trades Employers' Association and 31 of the 40 AFL construction unions already have signed.

This agreement pledges the unions not to ask for any raise, direct or indirect, before June 30, 1950, unless the Bureau of Labor Statistics' cost of living index rises more than 15 per cent between Jan. 1, 1948, and July 1, 1949. If that happens—and nobody expects it—the unions are to absorb the first 15 per cent, and a formula is provided for dividing any excess between employers and employees.

Estimates vary as to how much new construction this agreement will unleash when and if the repressing unions, which represent perhaps a quarter of New York's 250,000 construction workers, sign up.

Skeptical of Results

Cynics, remembering the ill-fated Master Agreement of last year, which promised much but produced little, question whether the unions will be able to hold their members to the agreement.

But many who have watched the negotiations closely are convinced that the unions are sincere in their support of stabilization, and will make good.

Mayor William O'Dwyer estimated that the city needs 10,000 new homes a year. He said that the construction badly needed in New York. It includes schools, hospitals, sewage disposal plants, the new United Nations home, and residential housing.

Thousands of individuals have not dared start houses because they could get only a cost-plus contract with builders, and they have heard how wage boosts and inflated material prices made every building cost far more than the highest estimate.

Fear Rising Costs

More important in city living, are the apartment developments, which big banks and insurance companies would like to finance. They have held off partly because rental restrictions make it uncertain whether they can get their money back, but even this uncertainty has been increased by the skyrocketing cost situation.

Representatives of the Building Trades Employers' Association say that as soon as all key unions come in, contractors will give guaranteed price contracts—subject only to materials prices—instead of cost-plus contracts.

This would permit individuals and financial houses to order housing with a good idea how much they were going to have to spend.

Out in Lumber Prices

Materials costs still are moving upward. The index usually runs behind, so even insiders are not quite sure whether it was just a good-will gesture—or the beginning of a break—when Weyerhaeuser, the biggest lumber company, announced a 10 per cent reduction in prices for three months.

The stabilization agreement is of doubtful value so long as the bricklayers, the electricians, the Manhattan and Bronx plumbers stay out. They could tie up any job at any time, however, faithfully either union observed its pledges. The painters have not signed up, but theirs is not so critical a craft as those mentioned. The other slow signers include the composition roofers, two groups of helpers who presumably will follow their master craftsmen, and two groups of laborers.
