

Teasing Taste Of Spring Hits Middlewest

Snow, Rain Sweep Other U. S. Areas

The weather man displayed his wares across the country today, drenching south Atlantic states with a heavy rain, dumping snow on the northern Rockies and giving the Midwest another taste of spring.

A wide section of the country was buried under a heavy fall of snow that fell yesterday from Kentucky to Massachusetts.

Harrisburg, Pa., shoveled out from under eight inches. New York City had six inches, giving the city a total of 57.1 inches for the season. It was New York's fourth big snowstorm of the season in addition to a severe ice storm.

Sleet fell today from Florida north along the coast as far as North Carolina.

Flood Perils Greenwood Residents of Greenwood, Miss., were cheered by forecasts of clear skies today.

They have been besieged by the Yazoo River. It stood five feet above the surface of the city today. Only water-soaked levees, reinforced by sandbags, protected the 15,000 residents.

Yesterday, hundreds of volunteers and convicts patrolled the levees while the earthen barriers softened and Mayor A. W. Saffold warned that "anything can happen at any time."

He said that additional rain could bring disaster even though the river apparently had hit its crest at 40 feet. Six tributaries of the Yazoo have flooded more than 500,000 acres of lowlands.

200 Evacuees Aided The U. S. Army engineers had the Big Horn River under control in Wyoming, where 200 evacuees were being cared for by the Red Cross.

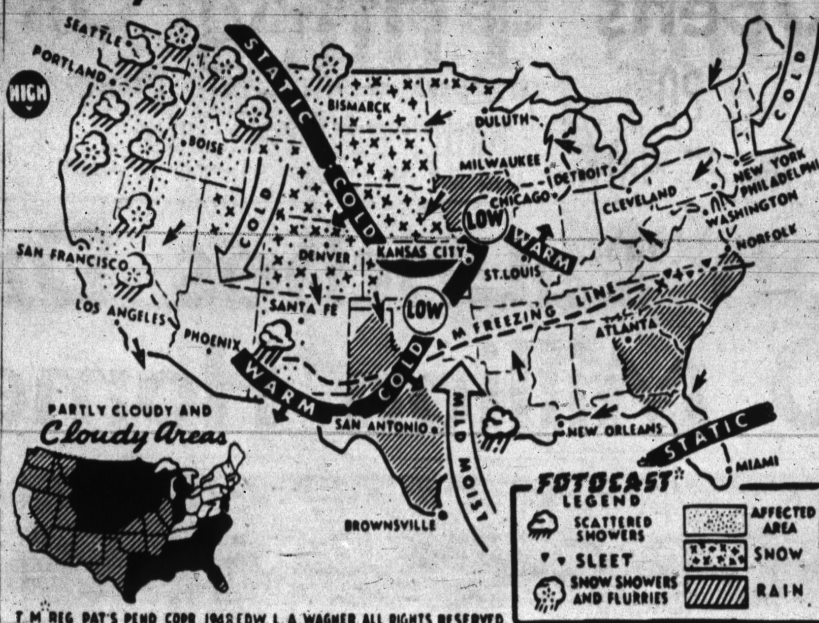

Seven families fled from their homes at Gretna, Neb., where the Elkhorn River surged out of its banks at the confluence with the Platte River.

Springlike temperatures returned to the Midwest for the second time in a week today after a week-end cold wave had sent temperatures far below freezing.

Forecasters said the warmth would be pushed aside by colder air moving down from Canada. They said the cold would arrive tomorrow, but probably would not last very long.

Exonerate Hospital, Nurse in Baby's Death NEW YORK, Feb. 23 (UP)—Police said today neither the hospital nor the nurse on duty could be blamed for the death of an 8-hour-old baby who burned to death in a hospital bed before

Today's Weather Fotocast

T. M. REG. PAT. PEND. COPY 1948 EDW. L. A. WAGNER. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.

TODAY AND TOMORROW—While a new Canadian air flow is expected to bring clear, cold weather to the entire Northeast tonight and early tomorrow, a warmer trend is forecast to envelop the central sections of the nation. Mercury in the East will probably dip to the 10 to 20 degree range; minimum temperatures in the 30's is predicted in the Virginia to Oklahoma belt. It will be cloudy from Michigan and Indiana to the Rockies and in the Southern states. Rain is expected in the Carolinas, Texas and Iowa, while farther north, light snow is forecast.

Official Weather UNITED STATES WEATHER BUREAU

Source: 6:52 | Signal: 6:50
Precipitation 24 hrs. end 7:30 a. m. 40
Total precipitation since Jan. 1 2.58
Deficiency since Jan. 1 1.82

The following table shows the temperature in other cities:

Station	High	Low
Albany	37	27
Albuquerque	40	28
Anchorage	35	25
Atlanta	45	35
Baltimore	40	30
Birmingham	45	35
Boise	35	25
Boston	35	25
Butte	35	25
Chicago	35	25
Cincinnati	35	25
Cleveland	35	25
Denver	35	25
Detroit	35	25
El Paso	40	30
Evansville	35	25
Fort Worth	40	30
Galveston	45	35
Hartford	35	25
Indianapolis	35	25
Kansas City	35	25
Los Angeles	50	40
Madison	35	25
Manila	80	70
Minneapolis-St. Paul	35	25
Miami	50	40
Mobile	45	35
Montgomery	45	35
New Orleans	45	35
New York	35	25
Oakland	35	25
Oklahoma City	35	25
Pittsburgh	35	25
Portland	35	25
Reno	35	25
San Antonio	40	30
San Francisco	45	35
Seattle	35	25
St. Louis	35	25
Washington, D. C.	35	25

List Five Leading Death Causes in State

The five leading causes of death in Indiana during 1947 were heart disease, cancer, cerebral hemorrhage, automobile accidents and nephritis, Indiana Board of Health figures revealed today.

Seven persons died from Rocky Mountain spotted fever, six from pellagra, four from undulant fever and one from rabies.

Fire Destroys Barn

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed a barn on 730 s. m. property of Charles Shout, 1018 Holt Rd., southwest of the city yesterday. Damage was estimated at $1200, including the loss of several dozen bales of hay.

Suspended Monorail Plan Urged for N. Y. Traffic

Low Cost Key Advantage, Says Official of New Firm; Coaches Seat 48 Passengers

NEW YORK, Feb. 23—Overhead passenger cars, running suspended from a single track, were proposed as a solution for city street traffic congestion here at the New York Railroad Club by Edward H. Anson.

The idea is not new or untried. An eight-mile route, with trains of from two to five cars, has been in use in Germany since 1901. The present proposal is for a vastly improved design over the German system.

A business organization to install this system, which is known as suspended monorail rapid transit, has just been incorporated here.

Vice President of Firm Mr. Anson is vice president of Bibbs & Hill, Inc., consulting engineers to the new company, Monorailway Corporation.

The incorporation follows many years of intensive research in the fields of transportation, engineering and manufacturing.

Low cost is one of the advantages of the suspended monorail system.

It can be constructed more rapidly than other comparable systems, and scheduled speeds of operation are as high as any available rapid transit rendering the same service.

Monorail operation is quieter than other systems, and its appearance can be made attractive. The design for the supporting

Yes Sir, He Really 'Looks Out for Me'

MEN HAVE written complaints about career wives. My husband LOVES my career—he'd like to have me President if the President made more money. He looks out for me—yes, sir! He wants me to cook heavy dinners—to keep up my strength. (He doesn't like snacks).

I liked his interest in my job before we married and laughed when he borrowed money—that I never got back. I helped finance my honeymoon.

I've lost respect for this man with his meager little job and meager little mind. I've learned never to lose money by "mothering" another man. I don't want advice—I'm leaving as soon as I finish paying for his new topcoat—mine is six inches too short. I just wanted to see how he looked in print. EASY EVENING.

If you don't respect him or believe in him, I doubt if you can live with him.

Show Interest in Other People

To R. N. S., Lonesome Rosie, M. M., and L. A.—I don't try to find companions for people. Mix with people—show interest in their interests and make your interests interest them.

'How Can We Get Possession?'

WE ARE a young married couple living with my folks. My parents own the house which we are trying to get possession of. They gave the people notice to vacate six months ago, but they haven't gotten out. We have our furniture bought. What should we do? E. AND J.

Compares Love to Building Fire

YOU ASKED HELP on happy marriages. I don't think they just happen or that the parties are just lucky. I like to compare love, courtship and marriage to building a furnace fire.

You have to keep adding "coal." It's an endless job, but not a thankless job, because you and others are warmed by that fire. You can't live on that first outbreak of love unless it is treated with care—you need more "coal." Marriage will grow stronger if the parties take care of the "fire."

First, you arrange paper and wood and light the paper, which ignites the wood. Before the blaze dies down, add coal. Then the real fire, the one you're depending on to warm you, has started. You'll have to add coal occasionally to keep the blaze bright, but it's easy to keep the fire glowing from that primary bed of coals. You'll find that the coals get brighter and stronger as you tend the fire—the bed of coals is what causes the steady, even warmth and cheer that spreads throughout your home. You'll have to work to keep the fire glowing and you'll have to sift out clinkers. Everybody in the family needs to know how to tend that

Ask Mrs. Manners—My Daughter's in Love With a Loafer

MY DAUGHTER IS going down instead of up. She's 18 and plans to marry a boy 24 who expects the world to pay his way. He makes my daughter unhappy and tells her the wrong things to do. He lies to her and accuses her of being out with someone else.

She keeps gas in his car, helps make payments on the car, and practically clothes him.

He works part-time but he thinks when they marry she'll be able to support them on her wages of $125 a month. I tell her a lot of things could happen so they'd better plan on his wages, but she says nothing will happen.

We've talked and talked but we only make her more determined. Her father told her she'd be on her own and can't live with us after she marries. I'm sure she has love and sympathy confused. Do you think you could straighten this out?

The boy never had much and doesn't care how he looks. My daughter always dressed "up to the minute" but lately doesn't care and it hurts me.

A bright girl knows her boy-friend's character. She also knows that her parents love her. But—she expects to choose her own husband and she expects her parents to judge him fairly. He won't act his best if you are unkind to him. Ask her to wait while and stop discussing the subject.

I'd hate to marry him unless he improved—before I married him. I hope that she's thought about dashing home from her job to keep house—a real house, not a play house, with scrubbing and dishwashing. She'll be tired and busy and her husband may be free to spend her money. She won't have time to ride in that car she's keeping up—and his excuses for being broke won't help when the grocery bills are due.

I'm following this with a letter I received—it's a different slant.

Yes Sir, He Really 'Looks Out for Me'

MEN HAVE written complaints about career wives. My husband LOVES my career—he'd like to have me President if the President made more money. He looks out for me—yes, sir! He wants me to cook heavy dinners—to keep up my strength. (He doesn't like snacks).

I liked his interest in my job before we married and laughed when he borrowed money—that I never got back. I helped finance my honeymoon.

I've lost respect for this man with his meager little job and meager little mind. I've learned never to lose money by "mothering" another man. I don't want advice—I'm leaving as soon as I finish paying for his new topcoat—mine is six inches too short. I just wanted to see how he looked in print. EASY EVENING.

If you don't respect him or believe in him, I doubt if you can live with him.

Show Interest in Other People

To R. N. S., Lonesome Rosie, M. M., and L. A.—I don't try to find companions for people. Mix with people—show interest in their interests and make your interests interest them.

'How Can We Get Possession?'

WE ARE a young married couple living with my folks. My parents own the house which we are trying to get possession of. They gave the people notice to vacate six months ago, but they haven't gotten out. We have our furniture bought. What should we do? E. AND J.

Compares Love to Building Fire

YOU ASKED HELP on happy marriages. I don't think they just happen or that the parties are just lucky. I like to compare love, courtship and marriage to building a furnace fire.

You have to keep adding "coal." It's an endless job, but not a thankless job, because you and others are warmed by that fire. You can't live on that first outbreak of love unless it is treated with care—you need more "coal." Marriage will grow stronger if the parties take care of the "fire."

First, you arrange paper and wood and light the paper, which ignites the wood. Before the blaze dies down, add coal. Then the real fire, the one you're depending on to warm you, has started. You'll have to add coal occasionally to keep the blaze bright, but it's easy to keep the fire glowing from that primary bed of coals. You'll find that the coals get brighter and stronger as you tend the fire—the bed of coals is what causes the steady, even warmth and cheer that spreads throughout your home. You'll have to work to keep the fire glowing and you'll have to sift out clinkers. Everybody in the family needs to know how to tend that

Gives Fact About Cook Book

TO S. M. asking about the White House Cook Book. I have my mother's copy of the Presidential Cook Book, adapted from the White House Cook Book and published by the Seaford Publishing Co., Akron, O., New York and Chicago, 1906. The original copyright was 1896 and the Werner Co. copyright in 1901 by the Seaford Co.

Authors of both books were Hugo Ziemann, White House steward under the Harrison administration, and Mrs. F. L. Gillette, which published the Congressional Cook Book in 1933.

Thank you, Elwood reader. I gave S. M. the address of the Congressional Club, 2001 New Hampshire Ave., Washington, D. C., which published the Congressional Cook Book in 1933.

Information About Evictions Wanted WHERE, in Indianapolis, could I find out about house rents and evictions? A STEADY READER.

Contact the Housing Expediter, office of rent control, 342 Massachusetts Ave., telephone RI-8381.

Let Mrs. Manners and readers of the column share your problems and answer your questions. Write in care of The Times, 214 W. Maryland St.

Statistics Show 19-Cent Pay Hike

Men working in the machinery industry here received an increase of 19 cents an hour in wages between Oct., 1946, and Nov., 1947, figures of the Bureau of Labor Statistics disclosed today.

The wages ranged from $1.09 for drill-press operators to $1.71 for maintenance tool and die makers.

Most of the firms surveyed grant plant workers a one-week vacation after one year's work. Three-fourths of the plants increase this to two weeks after five years service.

More than two-thirds of the plants work a scheduled 40-hour week.

Voiture 145 Helps 12 Nurses in Training

Participating in a state-wide project, the Indianapolis Voiture 145 of the 40 & 8 is financing the training of 12 student nurses in three local hospitals.

Those currently in training include Miss Janette Ryan and Miss Mary Evans, St. Vincent's; Miss Sylvia Pinnick and Miss Barbara Jackson, Methodist, and Miss Mary Appleton, Miss Sally Wallace and Miss Elizabeth Rhude, General.

Those chosen for training are selected by Drs. D. C. Schwinder, William Bolen and John E. Wittenbach.

Plan Anniversary Party Mozart Rebekah Lodge will celebrate its 23d anniversary Friday in the hall, 437 Prospect St. The staff of District 6 will attend.

L. S. Ayres & Co.

ANNOUNCING another in our series of Fashion Teas

"A Look of Charm and Grace"

Wednesday, March 10, at 3:00 o'clock

in the Tea Room on the Eighth Floor

Reservations may now be made in the Tea Room foyer. Admission is by ticket only—1.50, incl. tax

L. S. Ayres & Co.

What Makes Your Spring Suit Even Prettier?

An Adelaar Blouse, of Course!

5.95 and 7.95

Come pick your favorites from Adelaar's wonderful selection of new-for-spring blouses that add the perfect finishing touch to your loveliest suit! Fine rayon crepes in white and a wide array of colors, in long and short sleeved styles!

Neckwear, Street Floor

REMEMBER...

CLOSED MONDAYS
SHOP TUESDAY THRU SATURDAY
9:00 TO 5:25

Long sleeved blouse with Beauvais type embroidery on Peter Pan collar and cuffs. White only, 7.95

Also in a front buttoned blouse with shirt collar (not sketched), 7.95

Short sleeved with shirred shoulder. Green, white, maize, tangee, auge, 5.95

Long sleeved tailored shirt. Cinnamon, blue, white, red, 5.95

Short sleeved with tucked front. Violet, white, blue, maize, seafoam green, 7.95
Sizes 32 to 38.