

Senator George Predicts $4 Billion Cut In Income Tax

Veto Expected By Democrats For GOP Slash

Marshall Presses War Aid for Greeks

WASHINGTON, Mar. 3 (UP)—Sen. Walter F. George (D. Ga.) greeted with Republican Senators today that Congress will approve an income tax cut of between $4 billion and $5 billion.

But he declined to speculate on whether such a bill would muster in both the Senate and House the two-thirds majority necessary to override the anticipated veto by President Truman.

Sen. George is the ranking Democratic member of the Senate Finance Committee which is holding hearings on the House-approved, Republican-sponsored $5 billion slash in personal income taxes.

Committee Chairman Eugene Tamm (R. Colo.) first put the income tax cut on the agenda during a committee hearing. Sen. George in an interview later made a more specific estimate of $4 billion. He said he would expect President Truman to veto the lower tax reduction.

Marshall Presses Aid for Greeks With Arms

Secretary of State George C. Marshall and Defense Secretary James Forrestal told Congress today that Greece and Turkey are under increased Communist pressure and must have more arms. Sen. George said if they are to survive as free nations.

Testifying before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, they urged that an extra $275 million be provided for further military assistance to the two countries.

Mr. Marshall said the extra funds would permit intensified Greek military effort against guerrilla forces, with a promise of "greater success."

He also said Communist pressure against Turkey has been intensified.

Mr. Forrestal called Greece and Turkey the last case for this country's intentions and determination to resist Communist aggression.

Wolcott States Steel Voted to Justify Hike

Rep. Jesse P. Wolcott (R. Mich.) said that in his opinion steel industry spokesmen have failed to justify their recent price increases.

He is vice chairman of the Joint Congressional Economic Committee which heard testimony yesterday from spokesmen for U. S. Steel Corp. and two other steel firms. They said the price increases were necessary to offset losses on certain items.

But Mr. Wolcott said he was not convinced. Committee Chairman Robert A. Taft (R. O.), indicated he shared Mr. Wolcott's views.

Lana Speaks Up—No Wedding Plans

HOLLYWOOD, Mar. 3 (UP)—Too many people are lying about her, Lana Turner said today. She said people could stop making wedding plans for her and Bob Fosse because they have no such plans themselves.

On her first day back at work, Miss Turner said she had shut up about the "romance" because the studio had told her to.

"I'm their property," she said. "If they tell me not to talk, I don't talk."

"I feel maybe I've been quiet too long. Everybody else has been quoted on this thing, but nobody ever talked to me."

Young Scientists Win $2400 Awards

15-Year-Old Makes Notable Research

WASHINGTON, Mar. 3—Greater safety for workers in chemical factories may result from original research by a 15-year-old high school student, Andrew S. Kendra of Evanston, Ill.

Mr. Kendra, who received one of two $2400 scholarship awards at the close of the seventh annual Science Talent Search here.

Recipient of the other grand prize scholarship was Barbara C. Wolff, 17, senior in Forest Hills (N. Y.) High School. Her research project was the study of phenocopies in fruit flies.

Dangerous to Use

Young Kendra was using, in some of his chemical work, what is known as a Grignard reagent. This is dangerous both to use and to make because its principal ingredients are ether and magnesium—both highly inflammable.

He searched the literature of chemistry for possible records of a safer material to use. Not finding any, he decided to try to make one himself, using something less flammable than ether. He finally succeeded in making workable Grignard reagents with not only one, but three, possible substitutes for the dangerous ether.

Mr. Kendra and Miss Wolff are two of the 40 winners of the Science Talent Search which have spent five days here at the Science Talent Institute conducted by Science Clubs of America, with funds supplied by the Westinghouse Educational Foundation.

Mac to Air Views On China Aid Soon

TOKYO, Mar. 3 (UP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur probably will submit his views on American help to China within the next 24 hours in the form of a memorandum to Congress, observers believed today.

Allied headquarters announced that Gen. MacArthur would reply to the request that he give Congress his views on aid to China, but it was not specified what form his reply would take.

The request, submitted by Rep. Charles A. Eaton (R. N. J.), asked Gen. MacArthur to return to Washington and give his views on American policy with respect to aid for China and other critical areas in the Far East. However, it was believed he might welcome the opportunity to give a comprehensive statement on his estimate of the American position in Asia.

It was agreed that Gen. MacArthur would resist the suggestion that he go to Washington in person.

Greenbacks 'Clutter Up' Bank in Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Mar. 3 (UP)—The Federal Reserve Bank here had plenty of greenbacks today—its own and part of the ones in the Little Rock bank.

Yesterday the bank here had to borrow currency from the Little Rock Bank because the vault door couldn't be opened until the time-lock ran out early today.

Steers and Heifers Active; Hogs Show 50-Cent Drop

In trading at the Indianapolis Union Stockyards today steers and heifers ruled very active, unevenly strong to 50 cents higher. Cows traded followed this general trend. Vealers were steady.

Fat lambs and slaughter ewes showed little change while hogs were unevenly steady to 50 cents lower.

$208,000 Kickback To Meyers Told

LaMarre Bares Payment Made to General

WASHINGTON, Mar. 3 (UP)—The turncoat associate of Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers testified today that the general lent a subcontracting firm $55,000, but got that back and $150,000 to boot in salary kickbacks.

Berliet H. LaMarre, "dummy" president of Aviation Electric Corp., said that only the $55,000 "appears openly" on the books of the now defunct Vandalia, O., firm.

But he said the general got that and $150,000 more for a total of $208,000 through his secret wartime ownership of the firm.

Gen. Meyers is on trial on charges of inducing Mr. LaMarre to lie to a Senate investigating committee about Gen. Meyers' connections with the firm. Gen. Meyers was second in command of air force procurement during the war.

Mr. LaMarre, who already had pleaded guilty to giving perjured testimony to the Senate committee, said the salary kickbacks were made by him and his brother-in-law, Thomas Read, another company official.

The witness, now a Dayton gas station attendant, appeared unruffled as Robert T. Bushnell, defense attorney, neared the end of two days of cross-examination.

Charges Hatred—Not Reform

Mr. Bushnell was attempting to show that hatred—and not reform—was responsible for Mr. LaMarre's recanting previous stories. Mr. Bushnell today drew the only laugh in the otherwise somber trial. At one point he referred to Aviation Electric as "General Electric," then stopped, struck his head and muttered, "I'm going mad."

Gen. Meyers' attorneys were attempting to show that Mr. LaMarre said a "changed moral outlook" caused him to testify against the general.

He denied that government attorneys had indicated he would get immunity if he pleaded guilty to perjury and involved the general.

At this point Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff told defense counsel that such procedure was contrary to practice in this court district. Mr. LaMarre is awaiting sentence for perjury.

The witness admitted he asked Gen. Meyers for money up to and while he was appearing before the Senate investigation of the general's activities. But he contended he was just trying to get what the defendant owed him.

Mr. LaMarre admitted, under cross-examination, that he asked Gen. Meyers for $60,000, which he claimed the general promised him and owed him on his share in the liquidation of the company.

This was in addition to $10,000 which Mr. LaMarre said he received from the liquidation and invested in a company that Gen. Meyers set up for buying government bonds on margin.

Farley's New Book On Roosevelt 1948's Political Bombshell

Book Indicates That He Would Return To Active Campaigning Only on Own Terms

By CHARLES T. LUCEY, Scripps-Howard Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Mar. 3—If James A. Farley returns to the political wars to aid the strife-sundered Democratic Party in this presidential campaign year—and top party leaders hope he will—it will be on his own terms.

This is a warning that fairly bursts from "Jim Farley's Story—the Roosevelt Years," which was published by Whittlesy House today. These terms often may be tough for party leaders to swallow. They will be resented bitterly by old New Dealers.

They run head-on into the Roosevelt legend being fostered diligently by President Truman as a chief aid to success in November.

But they're part of Jim Farley's story and he is sticking to it.

Publication of the book is certain to mean a row inside top Democratic circles as to whether Mr. Farley should be in the 1948 campaign. Some of Mr. Truman's advisers have told him Mr. Farley is wanted, and they recognize he is a popular figure. But the Democrats are still trying to make political medicine out of Mr. Roosevelt and New Deal—yet bluntly now Mr. Farley comes along to lay many of the world's ills on FDR's course in his third and fourth terms.

The personality of Mr. Farley is bound to be in almost as much controversy as that of Mr. Roosevelt as a result of this book. Eight years after he retired from public life he still has strong appeal in this country; at a recent Democratic dinner here he received an ovation greater than any of a score of top party figures save the President himself. But he will be denounced by those to whom FDR remains an idol.

Mr. Farley heaps praise on Mr. Roosevelt for the early days. He says that "perhaps no President since Jackson did more for the common people or showed greater administrative courage." He credits some of Mr. Roosevelt's speeches with greatness and concedes that he, Jim Farley, had little to do with the daring program of early New Deal days.

Cites 'Promises'

The heart of Jim Farley's story is the recounting of how FDR led him and others to believe he never would run for a third term, and then, before the 1940 convention, lent himself to a phony draft movement. Italics are used rarely in the Farley book, but they are there for the chronicle of a 1939 Hyde Park conference at which FDR tells Jim Big Jim:

"Jim, I am going to tell you something I have never told another living soul. Of course, I will not run for a third term." Much of the story has been told before, some of it in magazine form, but never before with the impact it has as here gathered in one book.

The book tells the inside story of a score of historic episodes as Mr. Farley saw them from his cabinet. It is the court-packing fight, the depression of the 1930's, the approach of World War II. It contains a Farley appraisal, and often FDR's, too, of a couple dozen major New Deal figures.

Tighten Probation At Notre Dame

Grades Below 77 Jeopardize Students

Times Staff Writer

NOTRE DAME, Mar. 3—The University of Notre Dame has inaugurated a stricter policy to probation students on academic probation. It was announced today by the Rev. Howard Kenna, CSC, director of studies.

The new policy provides that "an undergraduate student who fails to obtain a qualitative average of 77 per cent at any time after his third semester at the university, shall be placed on probation."

This 77 per cent general average is required for a student to graduate from Notre Dame and is also necessary for participation in intercollegiate athletics. A passing grade is 70 per cent.

Former regulations provided that "the student who in any semester fails in a third of his work is placed on probation for the ensuing semester" and "in case he has been on probation in any two former semesters he is liable to dismissal from the university because of poor scholarship."

The latter clause of the former regulation regarding dismissal from the university still applies in the new policy.
