THE BEDTIME STORY—He may be too small yet to attend a ball, but the young bedtime reader (above) is having a look at some of the activities that go before a costume dance. The grownups in his book are getting ready for the Civic Theater's "Story Book Ball" next Saturday night in the Athenaeum. In one picture (top left) he finds a hint of Cinderella's story as Mrs. Dorr and Mrs. Berry inspect Mrs. Leslie Colvin's slipper collection. Any number of story book characters might emerge from the Civic's wardrobe room where Mrs. Russell and Mrs. Martin are pictured (lower left). There may be a merry-go-round theme in the costumes Miss Coffey and Mrs. Bryan (upper right) are planning—or maybe they're just getting into the party mood. And it looks as if there will be a Chinese story in the costumes which Mrs. Gordner and Mrs. Loomis (lower right) contrive after their visit to John Herron Art Museum.

Robert Meyer To Take Bride

Robert E. Meyer will take Miss Janet Lou White as his bride in a 7:30 p. m. ceremony today in the Grace Methodist Church. The Rev. E. Arnold Clegg will officiate.
