

OK's Purchase Of Equipment For Streets

$52,000 to Be Spent, Aid Cleanup Drive

By LOUIS ARMSTRONG
The City Council has added its part to the Indianapolis spring clean-up campaign by approving the purchase of $52,000 worth of equipment for the street commissioner's department.

The equipment, which includes 15 one and one-half ton dump trucks and two street sweepers, will be ordered for delivery in time to take part in the clean-up beginning the last of this month.

The council gave its approval to the order last night under suspension of rules to speed purchase of the vehicles.

Called "Dirtiest City" Tony Malo, street commissioner, said the trucks and sweepers would play a key part in the City's effort to "debunk" the author, John Gunther, who called Indianapolis the dirtiest city in the USA.

Charles Miller, chairman of the "purple homes" citizens committee, asked the council last night what it had done to correct conditions which caused discoloration of homes in the southeast section of the City.

Despite the fact that he was told the City combustion engineer is making an investigation, Mr. Miller declared he felt the homeowners were getting the "brush-off."

"Getting Run-Around" "We want something done about the situation," he demanded, "and we want someone to pay the damage done to our homes. All we are getting is the run-around."

Robert Traugott, American Veterans Committee, asked the council to request a ruling on a case now pending in Circuit Court against the Citizens Gas & Coke Utility.

Mr. Traugott had made the request at several previous meetings. He charged the council with taking a "do-nothing" attitude toward the utility and received a loud ovation from the spectators' section.

Clement Stanford, another anti-utility crusader, reminded the Council that Friday is the deadline to appeal the permanent 10-cent trolley fare and the increased water rates.

Councilman J. Porter Seidensticker questioned the legality of an existing supplement to the City's contract with the Indianapolis Power & Light Co.

Mr. Seidensticker pointed out that the supplemental contract was approved by the City Works Board Nov. 9, 1942, but was never approved by the City Council. He said he would obtain a legal opinion on the question from Edward H. Knight, corporation counsel.

MEET 'WOMAN OF TIMES'—The wife of a World War II veteran, Mrs. Wade B. Gilley of Tyndall Towne, her 4-year-old son, Danny, and a bag of candy were responsible yesterday for the "capture" of "The Woman of The Times," Mrs. Wayne Warrick (right). Mrs. Gilley is shown here receiving a Times check for $50.

Plant Fire Loss Set at $200,000

HAMMOND, Apr. 6 (UP)—Firemen were still removing smoldering bales of waste paper today from a paper plant that was damaged by fire yesterday. Damage was estimated at between $200,000 and $500,000.

Plant officials said the fire apparently was started by sparks from a welder's torch in the second-story drying room.

Several carloads of chemical pulp and newsprint were ignited when the sparks fell to a first-floor storage room.

Two employees, Gilbert Gaud-bourne and Edward Bernier, received minor burns. Four or five firemen received minor burns.

Physical Education Group Visits Schools

Indianapolis is the site for the annual inspection by the junior men of the school of physical education of University of Illinois. A group of 117 students, the largest group ever to make the trip, are in Indianapolis today through Thursday to visit schools, community centers, YMCA's and industrial recreation programs.

They will also visit Crawfordsville, Lawrence and New Augusta. Highlight of the inspection will be a banquet tomorrow night at the YMCA for alumni and friends.

Jobless Veteran's Wife Picks 'Woman of Times'

Tyndall Towne Resident 'Acts On a Hunch,' Captures Mystery Lady, $50 on First Day

By ART WRIGHT
If you've ever doubted woman's intuition, read what happened yesterday on the first day of the search for "The Woman of The Times":

Less than an hour after Mrs. Wade B. Gilley, 179-A Forrester St., Tyndall Towne, told her unemployed, war veteran husband that she had a "hunch" she could find

"The Woman of The Times" she had won $50 for doing just that.

Mrs. Gilley was in the middle of doing the family wash. She was thinking about the family budget and what was to be done now that Wade had been laid off as a machinist at the Prest-O-Lite last Friday.

Follows a Hunch "I have a feeling," she told her husband, "that I can find that 'Woman of The Times' and win the $50." That was at 3:25 p. m.

Four-year-old Danny wanted to go along. Mr. Gilley said he would look after the other two children, Larry, 2 years, and Deanne, 7 months.

Confident, Mrs. Gilley and Danny drove downtown in the family automobile. At 3:50 p. m. Mrs. Gilley bought Danny a bag of candy at Washington and Meridian Sts. on the promise that he "would be good and help mamma."

Begins Search? Walking slowly in W. Washington St., past H. P. Wasson & Co., Mrs. Gilley and Danny eyed every woman they passed.

In front of H. Lieber & Co. at 4:10 p. m., Mrs. Gilley saw a woman who looked like her aunt, Mrs. Frank Shaw, 1112 N. Downing St. Walking up to her, Mrs. Gilley handed her a copy of the Final (Red Streak) Edition of The Times and said: "You are the Woman of The Times."

She was correct . . . she had properly identified Mrs. Wayne Warrick, 5837 N. Pennsylvania St., a native Hoosier whose husband operated the Warrick's Cut Rate Pharmacy at 38th and Illinois Sts. which recently was damaged by fire.

Expect Full House At Wallace Rally

No Accommodations Found Here Yet

By ROBERT BLOEM
Indiana Citizens for Wallace today confidently forecast a capacity crowd to hear Henry Wallace here despite continued re-buffs in their efforts to obtain overnight accommodations for him.

The third party presidential candidate will speak at the Naval Armory at 8 p. m. tomorrow. The armory will seat approximately 3800 persons.

The Citizens for Wallace organization here continued to seek accommodations for Mr. Wallace and his party. The group will be in Evansville tonight, expect to remain here overnight tomorrow. They then will go to Gary for the candidate's third and last appearance of his current tour of Indiana.

Paul Robeson on Program Mr. Wallace will share the speaking platform with Paul Robeson, famed Negro singer, and William Gallmore, former radio network commentator. He is being accompanied on the tour by C. B. Baldwin, his national campaign manager, and several others.

Overnight hotel reservations were canceled Saturday by the Warren Hotel management. The hotel also called off arrangements for a Wallace tea set for 4 p. m. tomorrow.

Mrs. Jessica Rhine, executive secretary of the Indiana Citizens for Wallace, said no new accommodations have been found. She said 300 invitations to the tea had been sent out but that no place had been found to hold that affair either.

Mayor Promises Protection In the face of a hostile attitude to the Wallace appearance by several local organizations, the party headquarters here said Mayor Feeney has promised adequate police supervision for the rally at the naval armory. The American Legion is among the groups strongly opposing the Wallace campaign.

Mr. Wallace's speech here is expected to be devoted to a great extent to an appeal to Hoosier farmers.

He also will discuss labor and peace issues which along with agriculture form the backbone of his third party platform.

Mr. Wallace said in Evansville today that the new reduction in federal income taxes was "the greatest phenomenon that ever happened in the government."

"Taxes are cut $5 billion while expenses go up $5 billion," Mr. Wallace said. "It's an example of the triumph of temporary political expediency over reason."

One official hinted that if John L. Lewis and the miners fail to respond to the order in any way by tomorrow, the Justice Department may move at once to cite them for contempt of court.

Boy, 5, Clears Up 'Murder Mystery' He Imagined

By LOUIS ARMSTRONG
BEDFORD, Apr. 6—Police were trying to solve a "murder" here yesterday until they learned that a 5-year-old boy's imagination had them on a wild goose chase. Telephone operators told police that a small boy called in for immediate help and an ambulance because "someone had been murdered." "Get 'em right away," a childish voice beseeched.

Attempts to trace the call to get all available information were held up momentarily because the message was given over a four-party line, but the operators finally traced the call.

POLICE SPED to a residence from where the calls had been made but found no trace of a murder. A tot with wistful grin stuck his head out from behind a doorway and admitted: "I did it."

Officers said the boy is a comic book fan.

Hard Coal Diggers Join Lewis Strike

'Surprise' Walkout Expected to Spread

By LOUIS ARMSTRONG
A surprise walkout of anthracite miners closed 15 operations and idled approximately 7000 men in three of the five hard coal producing counties of northeastern Pennsylvania today.

Open predictions were that the strike, a sympathy gesture to the closed bituminous pits, would spread by tonight, and that other mines would join the 13 operations closed in Schuylkill and Northumberland Counties and the two mines closed in Luzerne County.

Leader 'Surprised' In Scranton, Michael Kosik, president of Dis. 1, United Mine Workers, said the walkout "came as a surprise." He also said he would try "to find out what it was all about."

The hard coal strike developed after rumors circulated last night that no UMW member would work while Mr. Lewis faced litigation over the soft coal walkout.

The president of the United Mine Workers was expected to ask the U. S. District Court today to dismiss the temporary restraining order.

One official hinted that if John L. Lewis and the miners fail to respond to the order in any way by tomorrow, the Justice Department may move at once to cite them for contempt of court.
