Fishing Conditions Reported
Improved Over Most of StateConservation Officers Tell of Good Catches;
Several Counties Offer No Encouragement

By MARC WAGGENER

Fishing conditions improved somewhat over the state this week as a late spring drought lowered and cleared most streams.

Despite clearing waters, however, Indiana Department of Conservation enforcement officers in several counties reported fishing still was poor in their localities.

Reports made early this week told of unusually good bluegill catches in Clay, Madison and Fountain counties. Fishing also was generally good in Green, LaGrange, Marshall and Ripley counties.

White county—site of such favorite spots as Shafter and Freeman Lakes and the Tippecanoe River—reported good luck on red-eyes, crappies and catfish.

What was reported clear and fishing fair in Oakland Reservoir and other Marion county waters. Crappies, bluegills and sunfish were being caught.

Fly fishermen were reported to be having the best luck in such upstate counties as DeKalb and Steuben.

Many counties listed "fair" fishing conditions early in the week while the situation still was "poor" in several others.

Migration Week Here

This is the week for the annual Hoosier migration. School is out for the summer and with the opening of the fishing season only 11 days away, the trek to summer homes and cottages on Indiana lakes and streams is getting under way.

While some of the excitement has been taken away from the opening of the fishing season this year by the fact that anglers were permitted to take panfish without a closed season — still June 16th is the opening of the bass season and regardless of trout, walleye or what-have-you the black bass is the favorite with Hoosier anglers.

Starts at Midnight

The bass season begins as midnight marks the passing of June 15th and the arrival of June 16th the day when thousands of Hoosier anglers shelve business, politics and other activities in hope of landing a "big one." Regardless of the fact that the anglers have been doing well with the panfish, resort owners throughout the state are already being flooded with requests for accommodations and boats for the 16th.

Rush for Live Bait

A last minute rush for live bait can be expected after June 12 when anglers and minnow dealers are again permitted to stock up in readiness for the opening of the season. Frogs can be taken from June 10 to Oct. 31 with a bag limit of 25 of the hoppers which are a favorite with many anglers. The season for taking minnows ended May 1 and anglers fishing since that date have been forced report, with prospects for sufficient fish to adequately stock all lakes and streams where it is felt that more fish are needed.

Chief output of the state hatcheries again this year is large and smallmouth black bass, Kentucky bass, bluegills, crappies and redeared sunfish. Planting of these fish takes place in late summer and they go only in waters which are open to the public.
