

Wallace Pins Hopes on 1952 To Attain Aims

Campaign in '48 Called Spadework

By LYLE C. WILSON
Called Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Henry A. Wallace is in the presidential campaign to stay, according to well informed sources here, but not expect to be elected President until 1952.

Mr. Wallace is said to regard this year's third party campaign as mere spadework. He looks for a political reshuffle during the next four years which might put him at the head of a winning presidential ticket next time.

Some of the smartest political observers in the business are predicting Mr. Wallace' withdrawal, there is no evidence of one so far.

Warmed of Breakup
Months before he broke with President Truman over foreign policy in 1946 Mr. Wallace was warning of a breakup of the New Deal-Democratic coalition which put the late FDR and President Truman in office.

"When the Democratic party ceases to be a people's party," said Mr. Wallace, "it will die—and it will be well dead."

Mr. Wallace holds now that the Democratic Party is dead and that its funeral services to be conducted shortly after November. That is why he and the Communists and left wingers associated with him look so hopefully toward 1952.

There have been three significant third party movements since the Civil War. The first was in 1892 when Grover Cleveland, Democrat, was elected President with 277 electoral votes.

New Party Swallowed
But the new party was swallowed by the Democratic Party in 1896 under the agrarian and free silver leadership of William Jennings Bryan.

Next came Theodore Roosevelt's Progressive Party in 1912, the most successful of the lot. Woodrow Wilson, Democrat, was elected. The Progressive Party did not survive.

Twelve years later the late Robert B. La Follette Sr., of Wisconsin tried to bring the Progressives to life. Calvin Coolidge, Republican, won with 382 electoral votes.

FRD and his New Deal put the Democratic Party back on the map of the west. Wallace wants to repeat that feat in 1952.

Announce Scout Essay Winner

Crawfordsville Boy To Receive Medal

Wayne Smith, member of Scout Troop 332 of Crawfordsville, today won the Boy Scout essay contest writing on the theme "The Scout is Reverent."

The scout, who won over nine other contestants in the Central Indiana Council, will receive a medal and his troop will be presented with a bronze plaque as a troop award.

The contest, which was sponsored by the Church-Scout Committee of the Central Indiana Council and an anonymous contributor, required the essay be written in 150 words.

Receive Medals
The winner and runners-up will receive medals during the Council-Wide Camporee this week-end in Ft. Harrison.

Runners-up are: James McDavitt, Troop 8; Robert Maginitt, Troop 163; Robert M. Emmel, Troop 55; Richard Williams, Troop 34; Henry Trauner, Troop 145, and Joseph Saligoe, Troop 145, all of Indianapolis. Others were: Richard Lee Conner, Troop 320 of Frankfort; Cecil McCollum Jr., Troop 311 of Hazelwood, and Edward Darnell, Troop 332 of Crawfordsville.
