Fritz Kuhn Caught On Husband's Tip

Says Bund Leader Wrecked His Home

MUNICH, June 18 (UP)—A Munich bank clerk said today that he had tipped off police that Fritz Kuhn, former head of the German-American Bund in the United States, was hiding out with his divorced wife in Bernkastel.

"I did it to prevent more mischief between them," the bank clerk said.

Authorities disclosed yesterday that Kuhn had been captured in the French zone town last Tuesday. He escaped from the Dachau internment camp on Feb. 4.

The former husband identified Kuhn's girl friend as blond, blue-eyed Hedwig Munz, an old flame and mother of two children.

"Kuhn turned her head by tales of his importance," the husband said.

Took Children: The clerk, who asked that his name not be used, said he could not forgive Kuhn for wrecking his marriage. He did it, the clerk said, with tall tales of how he bossed Nazis in the United States.

"I bear no grudge against my wife," the former husband said. "We parted friends."

He said his wife left Munich in mid-March for Bernkastel to be with Kuhn. She took her children with her.

The clerk said his wife knew nothing of Kuhn's plans to escape from Dachau. She heard about it on the radio after Kuhn got away, he said.

The former husband said that two or three weeks after the escape one of his children told him the Bund leader had visited Hedwig in Munich.

Shortly afterward, he added, Hedwig left with the children—a girl of six and a boy of eight—for Bernkastel.

He will fly from Westoverfield, Mass., July 15, with his wife and two children following by boat.

State Guard Units In Recruit Drive

Seek Youths Covered By Proposed Draft

Indiana National Guard units over the state are launching a program to handle an accelerated flood of enlistments of young Hoosiers who would be affected by the proposed draft.

Armories in 55 Indiana communities are to be kept open during the evening hours to give information to prospective recruits who want to take advantage of the guard's training program and exemption from the draft law now under consideration by Congress.

The current bill exempts members of the Indiana National Guard from the draft and also exempts young Hoosiers who may join the organization before reaching the age of 18 years and six months.

Adjutant General Howard Maxwell said that the section of the bill exempting young guardsmen is not likely to change.
