U. S. Facing Tight Supply Of Manpower

Peacetime Draft
Seen New Factor

By RAY MITTEN
Times Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, July 5—Today's national manpower supply is nearly as tight as at the peak of the war, out in different spots. Tightness continues, says the U. S. Employment Service, due to unusually high industrial employment, even though six million more workers are in the civilian labor force than three years ago.

Coming in the face of a military preparedness program that will require workers, the peacetime draft will tighten the manpower supply even more.

Many in School
And many veterans who couldn't work during the war because they were in service aren't working today because they're in school. Also, the number of younger women available for work is lower than during the war due to current high marriage and birth rates.

Yet, unlike wartime, the problem is neither industrially nor geographically common for three basic reasons.

ONE: Big emphasis is on skilled labor but this has shifted from industries such as metalworking to construction, the service trades and scientific fields. Atomic energy boosted the practicing scientist into the job limelight.

TWO: Employment in such mass-hiring wartime industries as aircraft and ship building, dispersed during the war, has decreased and gravitated back to peacetime centers.

War Plants Idled
For safety during the war, many industries, including explosives makers, built plants in sparsely settled areas, drawing new workers to them. Now most of those war plants are idle or in standby condition. These industries are again concentrated in such original locations as the Great Lakes, Middle Atlantic and New England states.

THREE: There is less hiring at the top or middle ranks in factories, more starting from the bottom up. Wartime need for more skilled workers brought quicker promotions, faster upgrading, more hiring nearer the top of the job ladder.

Typewriter Firm Has Payment Plan Students Invited To Use Lay-a-Way

The Indianapolis Typewriter Co., 25 E. Maryland St., today announced a plan whereby students can purchase typewriters on a lay-a-way plan to have their typewriter when school opens.

It is now recognized by leading educators that students who use typewriters make better grades. In some cities typing now is being taught in primary grades.

Students Invited
Any student taking typing or planning to learn typing may take advantage of the plan. The firm also is sponsoring a typing clinic during the summer months to advise parents and students as to what type machine will best fit the needs of the student.

Indianapolis Typewriter Co. has one of the largest typewriter repair departments in the state. It stocks all makes of portable and standard typewriters.

Henry County Sees
Good Wheat Yield

Times Staff Service

NEW CASTLE, July 5—County Agricultural Agent W. G. Smith says that the combining of wheat is expected to begin in Henry County the latter part of this week with a "decent yield" anticipated.

Average yield in Henry County is about 19 to 20 bushels per acre. Looking at the county agricultural situation in general, Mr. Smith says the picture is rather encouraging. Here is how he evaluates some of the crop prospects:

Corn — Growing rapidly now. Stands generally bigger than last year at this time. Not much evidence of corn borer yet.

Oats — Fair crops reported where ground was plowed, stands pretty weedy if ground disked only.

Tomatoes — Some very nice fields. Acreage not as big as in past.

Soybeans — Some nice stands reported where moisture has been sufficient.

Pastures — Good. Rains have helped here considerably.

Butler Students Teach in Schools

Fifteen senior and graduate students at Butler University are doing practice teaching this summer in Indianapolis high schools as part of their requirements to qualify for teachers' licenses.

Serving as teachers at Washington High School during its eight weeks' summer term are John F. Carson and William Stonecipher, both Indianapolis seniors, and Arthur F. Krueger, Indianapolis, a graduate student.

Walter F. Dodd, Paris Crossing; Glenn H. Fisher, Zionsville, and Lawrence W. Monahan, Indianapolis, all seniors, are teaching at Broad Ripple High School.

Eight teachers at Shortridge High School include Miss Betty Ferguson, Southport, a graduate student; Mrs. Virginia Moore Fogarty, Mrs. Eloise Elliott Lee, and Mrs. Elizabeth B. Lund, all seniors.

Dill Implement Firm Offers Wide Choice of Freezers

Range From Small Home Size to Large Farm Type; Immediate Delivery Promised

It's almost time for old-fashioned Hoosier harvest and canning time. Only this year, a great deal of the work of food preservation will be eliminated through the use of home freezers.

"Now is the time to purchase a home freezer," E. M. Dill, of Dill Implement Co., 1530 Stadium Dr., told both small families and large farm families.

Wide Choice on Hand
The Dill Implement Co. has a large selection of home freezers ranging from the small home size to the large farm type. The firm carries International Harvester, General Electric and Coolers for Home Freezers, all available for immediate delivery.

The Dill Co. is known to many farmers and home makers in the state. It carries a complete line of Wisconsin Engines, ranging from 2 to 30 horsepower.

Because of heavy-duty design, compactness, light weight and freedom from cooling chores and advanced engineering features, Wisconsin air cooled engines are ideally adapted to a range of power application.

Dill also has the new Wisconsin V-4, a modern heavy-duty power plant designed and built to meet every requirement of present day equipment.
