High-Compression Fuel Tested for Car Engines

Experts Assert 25 Per Cent More Miles Per Gallon Can Be Obtained by Development

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 10.—Tomorrow's auto engine is going to give 25 per cent more miles per gallon and you will be filling up at the gasoline pump on such high-compression fuels as triptane, toluene, benzene and trimethylpentane as well as superleaded "gas."

The American Chemical Society here yesterday was told by leading petroleum chemists that new fuels for more efficient engines can be ready by the time the automotive engineers can build, test and produce them commercially.

Since 1930 the efficiency of fuel utilization in passenger cars has increased by more than 30 per cent, John M. Campbell and Dr. Lloyd L. Withrow of the General Motors Research Laboratories, Detroit, told the chemists.

In addition to this improvement, high-compression ratio engines combined with high-octane gasoline of early-war aviation grade could push the efficiency 45 per cent farther.

Today's auto engine wastes 75 to 80 per cent of the gasoline's energy and a gain of only 1 per cent would save one to two millions of gallons of gasoline daily in the United States.

Present commercial gasolines sold at filling stations range between 70 to 90 octane and engines of newer passenger cars have compression ratios of about 7-to-1.

Sizeable saving would occur with 8-to-1 engines and gasoline in the 96 to 98 octane range, a grade that the petroleum industry could produce to the extent of about 20 per cent of its total gasoline volume.

Given Road Tests

Push the compression ratio up to 12 and 15-to-1, and new fuels chemically tailored by the newer methods of refining will be needed.

Experimental engines using these new fuels have been built and given road tests, several research groups reported.

The higher the compression ratio the better the antiknock quality of the fuel needed, R. W. Scott and G. S. Tobias of the Standard Oil Development Co., Elizabeth, N. J., concluded.

Any upgrading of the fuel quality of auto engines should be established sufficiently ahead of the engine production so that the refiner can develop his methods of production.

This was suggested by W. C. Offutt, J. E. Taylor and G. B. Swartz Jr. of Gulf Research and Development Co., Pittsburgh.

Aussie Bids Pardon For Forgetting to Vote

These Foreign Service

MELBOURNE, Australia, Sept. 10.—Citizens who don't cast their ballots usually get fined "down under," where it's compulsory to vote.

But election officials think they may go easy on one forgetful citizen who wrote them:

"I forget everything—cigarettes, money and matches. I am a good citizen and know my co-campaign manager, announced today.

functioning of this democracy. But I forgot. "Please excuse my delay in sending my excuse—it has been in my overcoat pocket for several weeks."

Wallace to Tour

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (UP)—Henry A. Wallace, progressive party candidate for president, will speak in Maryland, Illinois, Massachusetts and New York state next week. C. B. Baldwin, his campaign manager, announced today.

U. S. Reports Decline in Wholesale Prices

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (UP)—The Labor Department reported today that average wholesale prices dropped 0.6 per cent last week as "sharply lower prices" were recorded for fresh meats, livestock and poultry.

As to last Saturday, the department said, average wholesale prices for some 900 basic commodities were 8.1 per cent above late August, 1947, but 1.1 per cent below the all-time record high reached two weeks ago.

"Food prices continued to decline, dropping two per cent during the week," the department said. "The hot spell, coming on top of consumers' resistance, dropped most meat prices sharply."

OIL WELL FIRE PUT OUT
 EDMONTON, Alta., Sept. 10 (UP)—An oil well fire which was destroying oil at the rate of $50,000 a day at the Leduc oil field was extinguished yesterday by water forced down relief wells near the burning gusher.
