Cards' Tackle Dies In Dressing Room

Stan Mauldin Collapses From Heart Attack After Head Injury

CHICAGO, Sept. 25 (UPI)—Stan Mauldin, giant starting tackle for the Chicago Cardinals, died in the team dressing room early today, less than two hours after helping his team defeat the Philadelphia Eagles.

Coroner A. L. Brodie, who performed a post-mortem early today, said the death apparently was caused by an acute heart attack. Mauldin was 27.

He added, however, that microscopic tests are being made to verify that opinion. An inquest was scheduled for 1 p. m. today.

Mauldin had taken a shower after the game and was sitting on a chair in the locker room when he complained of feeling dizzy. Then he collapsed into the arms of Cardinal Coach Phil Handler.

Dr. Samuel Goldberg, one of the team's doctors, immediately gave Mauldin a shot of adrenalin, and called for a pumotor.

The pumotor crew arrived in a few minutes, and began giving Mauldin oxygen. They continued for an hour and one-half before Mauldin was pronounced dead.

There was a report that Mauldin was "kicked in the head" during the second half of the game, leading to the theory that he might have died of a brain hemorrhage. Authorities indicated that such a kick could cause a hemorrhage.

In the fourth quarter of the game Mauldin asked to be removed. Club officials said it was the first time he ever had requested relief.

After he left the field, he remained on the Cardinal bench untill the game ended. He complained of an upset stomach, which sometimes is a symptom of a brain injury.

Goldberg diagnosed Mauldin's ailment as a heart attack, so President Ray Bennisgen of the Cards immediately called in the Dr. Sidney Portis, a heart specialist.

After his examination, Portis said that either a "coronary attack or a major hemorrhage at the base of the skull" could have caused the death.

Goldberg said Mauldin showed no evidence of a heart condition when he took a thorough physical examination at the opening of training early in August.

"It's hard to tell about heart attacks," he said. "A man might just finish a physical examination which shows nothing and then suffer a heart attack."

Mauldin stood six feet two inches tall and weighed 221 pounds.

He was starting his third year with the Chicago Cards. He played collegial football at the University of Texas, and later served in the Army.

He was survived by his wife, who was in the dressing room when he died, and a small son.

Cards Trim Eagles On Trippi's Passes

By United Press

The Chicago Cardinals, champions of the National Football League, were plunged in gloom today over the tragic death of their star tackle, Stan Mauldin, less than two hours after the club's 21-14 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles.

Chicago won the game in the last five minutes of play on a 64-yard pass from Charley Trippi to Mal Kutner.

Thompson's 42-yard aerial to Pete Pihos in the third period tied the score.
