U. S. Ignores Russ Threat to Snub UN

Presses Case Before Council

Issue on the agenda would violate international agreements, he shouted.

"We shall not be a party to such violations."
He described the western charge that the blockade of Berlin was a threat to the peace as "absurd and devoid of foundation."

"There's No Blockade"
"The charges do not correspond to the truth, and amount to nothing but a means of pressure and the use of the United Nations for the achievement of aggressive ends sought by the United States government," Vishinsky continued.

American allegations about the blockade, he said, were aimed at raising a hubbub about it while in fact no blockade actually exists.

"The statements about hunger and disease are mere propaganda rumors," he observed. "Such rumors are being spread in order to step up fear and war hysteria. Such rumors are not motivated by any desire for a peaceful settlement."

"The ludicrous character of allegations against Soviet authorities is evident, because the disorders they mention took place in the Western zones of Berlin."

Made by Molotov
The proposal for a new foreign ministers conference was made by Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov from Moscow in an attempt to keep the Berlin dispute from being debated in the United Nations Security Council today.

Mr. Molotov insisted that the German issue did not come within the jurisdiction of the United Nations and denied the Western argument that the Berlin crisis threatened world peace.

In the General Assembly's Political Committee, Ukrainian Delegate Dmitri Manulsky assailed the American atomic energy control plan.

Assails Russ Sources
Mr. Manulsky charged that President Truman's major objective was to keep the American monopoly on the atomic bomb for a new war.

He bitterly denounced the West for not knowing anything about the Soviet Union and not wanting to know anything. He accused the West of getting its information from the "garbage pails" of White Russians, Hitler's allies and people thrown out of Russia.

He said the United States was trying to get all other nations to abandon national sovereignty in the field of atomic energy while refusing to give up one bit of its own sovereignty. He assailed the American control plan as a "magnanimous offer."

Race for Seventh District Congress Seat Is Toughest

Bloomington's Noland Is Given Best Chance By Observers To Unseat Republican Incumbent

By ROBERT BLOEM, Times Staff Writer
BLOOMINGTON, Oct. 4.—The hardest fought political race in the state and what promises to be the closest of the 1948 election is being waged for the seventh district seat in Congress.

Professional politicians of both major parties rate young Jimmy Noland of Bloomington the best chance of any Hoosier Democratic candidate for Congress to unseat a Republican incumbent.

Republican Gerald Landis of Linton, still breathing hard from his close shave with Mr. Noland in 1946, is campaigning as he's never campaigned before.

And grimly silent voters are preparing to give them both a warm day at the polls Nov. 2. Each candidate has his problems.

Labor Foes a Headache
Mr. Landis' worst headache is the determination of organizer labor groups to throw him out of Congress before he can succeed to the chairmanship of the powerful house committee on education and labor. Rep. Fred Hartley (R. N. J.), present chairman of the committee and co-author of the controversial Taft-Hartley law, is retiring and Mr. Landis, as ranking committee member, is almost certain to succeed him if Mr. Landis can be re-elected.

Mr. Noland's chief problem is the weakness of Democratic organizations in several counties. He also faces a factional party antagonism toward his father, O. A. Noland.

Party factional leaders frequently blame the elder Noland for the fact that Jimmy lost his home county two years ago by more votes than he lost in the rest of the district.

Voter Interest Quiet
Actually, voter interest is quiet so far but both candidates will do their best to whip it up before the election.

A major unknown factor in the contest is a mounting sentiment among independent voters to "throw the rascals out" regardless of party affiliation. That attitude appears to be a carry over from the 1947 municipal elections when the voters bounced almost exactly half of the incumbent city administrations of both parties.

The mystery lies in the question as to where the voters will begin to apply this attitude, and where they will draw the line. If it carries into the congressional race, it will hurt the incumbent, Mr. Landis.

So far the interest in the district as a whole seems to center more on the governor race. The name of Henry Schricker, Democratic governor candidate, is the name most often heard in places of business and around the countryside.

While that might seem to favor Mr. Noland, it also fits by the fact that many of the independent voters insist that "once in enough for any man in the governor's office," and Mr. Schricker already has been governor once. Mr. Landis' friends are counting heavily on an overwhelming Republican presidential vote to help Mr. Landis back into office. But talks with dozens of business men, farmers, workers and just loafers indicates that public distaste for President Truman is over rated and on the other hand, GOP candidate Thomas Dewey is "not" universally popular with Republicans.

here a g a i n, however, the "throw the rascals out" sentiment may work heavily against Mr. Truman, and consequently against Mr. Schricker and Mr. Noland. One thing the political leaders in the district fear, and admit with rueful tongue in cheek, is that lots of voters of both parties will be crossing party lines, scratching their ballots for candidates of the opposite political faith.

TOMORROW: Veterans, oldsters and farmers.
