

Ask Mrs. Manners: Objects To Daughter Entertaining Date Alone

Dear Mrs. Manners:

SHOULD I HAVE TO SIT on the back steps while my daughter entertains her boy friend in our small apartment? She has become overbearing because I object to her entertaining her boy friend alone. I only try to protect her, for a poor girl's reputation is all she has.

My daughter, 14, goes with a boy who is past 18. I think he is nice, as his manners are perfect. She accused me of coming home early because he was coming for the evening—but I got laid off work early and I know no one to visit in our neighborhood.

My daughter is writing you too—we'll abide by your advice.

H. L. T., WIDOW.

That apartment isn't "home" unless it belongs to both of you. Your daughter thinks of it with pride and pleasure. She wants to bring her boy friend home.

A home has to grow and change with the people living in it. Your daughter doesn't love you any less because she wants you out occasionally. Remember your parents' parlor and how hard they'd leave when your beau called? Remember how hard it was to talk to him on those early awkward dates with your elders sitting around laughing at your inexperience?

Your daughter's interests are changing. She thought you understand because you always did. You need new interests, too. Make some calls—smile at the neighbors. Act interested in them.

and in your daughter. She'll need to use her own good judgment many places, and home is a good place to be on her own.

Man, Wife Want to Be Joiners

WILL YOU name semi-professional organizations such as a community orchestra or civic symphony my wife and I might join?

R. R. S., NORTH SIDE.

Ask George A. Smith, T.A. 7817, about the Philharmonic Orchestra of Indianapolis. Inquire about the Athenaeum Concert Orchestra, RI. 1519, and the YMCA Adult Orchestra, RI. 1331. Scottish Rite members have an all-male group, the Indianapolis Scottish Rite Symphony Orchestra.

Expectant Mother Asks Advice

DUE TO a situation neither my steady boy friend nor I could help, I've become pregnant. He has offered to do what is only right, and I know he means what he says. We had planned on marriage, but after he was out of college, which he has saved for since boyhood days. To many, I would be ruining his life by marriage, for he is very intelligent. Would you give me information on the Family Service Association? Would I have to leave my baby there?

MISS EAST SIDE.

I've chewed off the ends of several pencils trying to understand that situation neither of you could help. Even with amnesia, you'd know what you were doing. If you drank too much, that was your own fault. People won't accept feeble excuses, Miss East Side, so you'd better start being honest with yourself.

An intelligent, ambitious boy in love could manage both college and a family if he'd make sacrifices, fewer sacrifices than you'd make as an unwed mother. The Family Service Association, 307 N. Pennsylvania St. (LI-6341), tries to keep a mother and baby together. Ask the intake interviewer for an appointment.

Where to Wear Wedding Ring

IS THE wedding ring to be worn in front or back of the engagement ring?

L. A. R. D.

The wedding band goes on first. Sometimes the engagement ring is worn on the right hand if the wedding band is elaborate, and sometimes it is made into a dinner ring.

You Can't Buy Love, Faith

THE DIVORCE courts are overcrowded with people who have gone into marriage with the thought, "What's in it for me?" They have money and lovely homes, but empty hearts. They find, too late, you can't buy love, faith and understanding.

The wife who wrote that she has little financially but is happy and contented because she and her husband love each other, knows real happiness. People don't have the courage for that kind of love any more. You can't buy another's love—it has to be given freely. Once it's yours, it is your richest treasure.

They ask for just a little, get it, and then are unhappy, aren't they? The girl marrying to get away from family discipline escapes her parents but may end up with disturbing in-laws. Perhaps she marries to quit a dull job, but finds housework just as dull. She may hate being broke, but finds she's still broke when once it's yours, it is your richest treasure.
