

Imagination and Print Arrangements Make a Wall

By KAY SHERWOOD

NEA Staff Writer

USE a professional decorator's tricks to make imaginative arrangements of pictures if you want to employ one of the least expensive devices for enhancing the charm of a room.

Ready to show you how is Alban Conway, swank New York interior decorator whose clever wall treatments distinguish his services to a list of important clients.

You needn't own costly masterpieces to achieve dramatic effects, says Conway. Inexpensive prints can do just as well, sometimes better, he says.

Even dull black and white prints salvaged from an attic give a high-style sparkle to a room when matted on bright-colored paper, simply framed and hung in compact groups.

In fact, your "picture" may be a decorative arrangement of plants in an unusual container. Case in point is Conway's trick of cutting an old-fashioned scrolled brass bowl in half and mounting it on the wall as gleaming background for ivy plants inside the two containers.

INSTEAD of spotting small or unrelated pictures over your walls, bring the assortment together in one dramatic composition, he advises.

Hang the group so the eye can move across it in a straight line. Place tops of frames in line with the top of your doorway for a good rule-of-thumb.

When you are hanging one large picture or grouping several smaller ones over a table or couch, the outer edges of the frames should not extend beyond the furniture, Conway cautions, if you want a well-balanced arrangement.

To give a simple frame for a large picture more self-importance, add to the inside border of the wood a raised strip of molding pierced with holes bored close together.

Light filtering through the openings will cast interesting shadows and give the illusion of depth to the flat surface.

Maybe you have several prints or small-size photographs but no frames. Then Conway's suggestion is to use marbled paper borders, setting off the display with a fake drapery swag, also of marbled wallpaper.

Club Council Approves 4 Resolutions

Three resolutions urging the grading and sanitation of eating places, codification of the state's public health laws and local full-time health units and one voicing disapproval of indecent advertising, literature, cartoons, harmful comics and suggestive films were passed by the Indianapolis Council of Women this morning in Ayres Auditorium.

The council's resolution on eating places urged the City Council to pass an ordinance to grade all city eating places—A, B or C—as to sanitation. It resolved that money be allocated for a full-time instructor to teach employees of eating places sanitation rules and how they operate.

In endorsing codification of state health laws, it was pointed out that many present laws are obsolete and conflict with each other.

The council recommended that the state legislature take necessary action to provide funds for subsidy of full-time local health units in the state and pointed out these were endorsed by the Indiana State Medical Society and the American Medical Association.

Four clubs were accepted for membership. They included Delta Tau Delta, Fraternity Mothers Club of Butler University, Universal Club Auxiliary, POM Club and the Second Tuesday Club.

Year books and a history of the council were given to the new club representatives.

James Eldridge, field director of the American Association for United Nations, spoke on "The United Nations and United States Foreign Policy" this afternoon.

Among speakers this morning were Miss Mary Huey, home economist instructor of Indiana Central College; Richard C. Lennox, member of the Civic Pride committee, and Warren O'Hara, president of the International Dairy Exposition to be held here next year.

Brown County Artist Exhibits Paintings

An exhibition of landscapes and flower paintings by Mrs. Leola Williams Loop, Brown County, opened yesterday in the Hoosier Salon Art Gallery.

The show will close Nov. 15. Mrs. Loop will be in the gallery from 2 to 4 p. m. Thursday.

Named to Senate

PIERRE S. D. Nov. 2—Mrs. Vera C. Bushfield was named United States Senator from South Dakota. She succeeds her husband Harlan J. Bushfield, who died Sept. 27.

The appointment by Gov. George T. Milkelson was made with the understanding Mrs. Bushfield will resign shortly before Dec. 30, when the 80th Congress reconvenes.

High-Flying Grandma

FAYETTEVILLE, Pa.—Grandma Mary Winkert, 61, of Fayetteville, has taken the Chambersburg Flying Service up in its effort to teach anyone over 60 to fly—without cost.

Mrs. Winkert, mother of three children and a grandmother once, takes half-hour lessons every day.

Teen Problems—Be Polite on the Telephone

By JEAN

THE TELEPHONE is a boon to teen-agers—a wonderful invention. But don't abuse it. Specifically, don't forget your phone manners.

It's rude to carry on a long, loud conversation when guests are present, when Pop and Mom are tired or busy or when an important radio program is on.

Even more important is your calling technique. When you phone Patsy and her mother answers, do you mumble and mutter? Do you act offended or fussed?

BUCK UP, chum, and show you know what's what. If you recognize the lady's Hello, it's up to you to say, "Mrs. Smith, this is Jack. May I please speak to Pat?"

When a strange voice answers, you should never—no, never, demand, "Who's this?" Simply ask to speak to your gal. But don't take offense if the voice on the line says,

"Who is calling?" This is just phone formality, not curiosity. Anyhow, Patsy will want to know who's paging her. So announce your name. And if Pat is out, you may leave a message asking her to call you or saying you will phone again.

The Doctor Says—Pain in Nerves Usually Forces Rest in Bed

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.

WHEN translated, polyneuritis merely means inflammation and pain in several nerves. Generally speaking, the diagnosis of polyneuritis is easy. There is muscular wasting and weakness, pain, tenderness and interference with feeling on both sides equally. The little toes of both feet, both hands, or similar areas of both sides of the limbs are involved.

The pain frequently is severe. It is burning, continuous, and lasts for long periods of time. The interference with sensation may be so severe that a pin can be stuck deep into the skin and tissues of the involved areas without being felt at all.

CHRONIC alcoholism can produce this condition. Most of the well-known metals, such as mercury, bismuth, arsenic and lead are responsible in some cases. Vitamin deficiency diseases, particularly Beriberi, which is a vitamin B deficiency, and Pellagra may be at fault.

Polyneuritis sometimes develops from general dietary deficiencies during pregnancy and in the presence of such general diseases as diabetes or pernicious anemia. Infections may also produce polyneuritis.

Polyneuritis is a frequent symptom of so-called rheumatic infection. It may complicate almost any of the well-known infections and contagious diseases.

SEVERE as the condition is, its cure depends on determining the cause. If caused by a vitamin deficiency, for example, the proper treatment is to cure that error in the diet. When complicating known infections, spontaneous recovery generally takes place as the patient improves from the disease responsible.

Rest in bed is usually necessary not only because of the muscular weakness, but also because the heart may become involved. Serious deformities can develop if the limbs are not supported by splints, sandbags or other means.

Every effort must be made to make the correct diagnosis early and to begin whatever treatment is necessary just as soon as possible.

Local Girl Honored
Miss Joan M. Spitznagel, Vassar College sophomore, has been named to the honor list. Miss Spitznagel, Shortridge High School graduate, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer F. Spitznagel, 4611 Broadway.

Girl Scout Pair Honored
Two city Senior Girl Scouts today received a high honor. Charlotte Green and Patricia Carmichael were named to represent the more than 500 Indianapolis and Marion County Senior Girl Scouts at the regional conference next Wednesday through Friday in Detroit.

They were introduced this afternoon at the Senior Scout program, held in Ayres Auditorium, in celebration of Girl Scout Week.

For the first time local active Girl Scouts will attend a regional conference as delegates. Charlotte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lot Green, 1042 W. 35th St., is a member of Wing Scout Troop 79. A Technical High School junior, she has passed her Senior Service Scoutings.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert F. Carmichael, Patricia is also a Senior Service Scout. She is a member of Troop 19 and a senior in St. Agnes Academy.

Blackwood Says—Bid Carefully When Holding Ace and Void

Sometimes Best Bet Is Jump to Slam

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

WHAT DO YOU respond to partner's four no trump bid when you hold an ace and a void suit? Consider these partnership hands:

North	South
S-A-K-Q-4-3	S-3-7
H-Q-5-4	H-A-J-7-6
D-Q-J-9-5-3	D-A-K-7-4
C-None	C-K-Q-2

The bidding started out as follows:

South	North
1H	1S
2D	4D
4NT	?

Holding an ace, North's "normal" response would seem to be five diamonds. However, the Blackwood convention provides a special treatment for hands of this type—where a void suit is involved.

In the first place do not make the mistake of bidding five hearts, figuring the club void as the equivalent of an ace. Partner cannot possibly know what you are doing and will surely count on you for two aces. If he has two aces himself, including the ace of clubs, don't you see that there is going to be one ace in the hands of the enemy—and it will be an ace that will take a trick against the grand slam which your unsuspecting partner may bid. You will be just another victim of "duplication of values" in the forest of distribution.

Jump Bid Shows Extra Values
When today's hand was actually played North bid five diamonds in response to the four no trump. Now South, feeling that he had given his all in the previous bidding, passed. He made an easy six-odd, losing only to the king of hearts.

Well, what to do holding an ace and a void? The answer is, think hard, mentally review the previous bidding, and use your very best judgment.

More specifically, if you hold extra strength not shown by your previous bids, and your void is in an unbid suit, jump directly to slam in the suit which you and your partner have agreed upon.

The North hand in today's deal satisfied these requirements very well. North did have extra values in his five card trump length, in his five card spade length and his fair fit with partner's opening heart bid.

His void was in clubs which nobody at the table had bid. Therefore his proper call was undoubtedly six diamonds.

In this same situation if you feel that you have slightly overbid your hand up to the point where partner bids four no trump, then probably your most profitable action will be to bid five diamonds, showing one ace and suppressing the information about your void.

Nobody likes a profit more than your partner at the bridge table.

Beauty—Cleanser Freshens Skin

By BARBARA BROEKING

With a twist of the finger tips that "breakfast table look" now may be avoided. A face cleanser in hard cake form is the latest answer to the problem of drowsy-looking skin in the morning—and evening, too—and in two minutes the face is clean and fresh for make-up.

This new product fits into the palm of the hand, needs only be moistened with warm water and worked up into a creamy paste for the application. With the fingertips the foam may be gently massaged onto the face and neck, paying particular attention to skin blemishes or oiliness. After the skin is thoroughly covered it should be massaged for two minutes, then removed with warm water and rinsed with cold.

A new cleansing agent often prescribed by dermatologists for use as a masque treatment. Apply the thick, creamy paste before bathing, and remove after leaving the tub, three to five minutes, depending upon the oiliness of the skin. There's a glowing soft feeling that any woman vainly desires.

Available at Ayres, Block's and Wasson's, this product also may be used as a masque treatment. Apply the thick, creamy paste before bathing, and remove after leaving the tub, three to five minutes, depending upon the oiliness of the skin. There's a glowing soft feeling that any woman vainly desires.

Men and Women—Like Usually Attracts Like in Love

By ERNEST E. BLAU

THE REASON people say "opposites attract" is only because when one person is very tall and the other very short, or one very light and the other very dark, or when they are strikingly opposite in other ways, they are more noticeable and cause more comment.

According to authorities, people fall in love much oftener with those who are similar to themselves—in temperament, mentality and physical characteristics. Athletic girls like athletic men, tall men usually go for tall girls, artists pair off with artists and writers with writers, blonds tend to marry blonds; and neurotics, unfortunately for the human race, go for each other like homing pigeons.

Investigation of married couples shows that the happiest ones are those whose personalities, likes and dislikes are the most similar.

OF COURSE, thousands of men and women, through some strange fate, get mates who seem to be as different from themselves as night from day. But unless they find some important mutual likenesses in each other, what happens afterward is something the love stories don't mention.

The classic example of opposites attracting is when Shakespeare's dark, adventurous Moor, Othello, fell for blond, gentle Desdemona, and she loved him "for the dangers he had undergone." But they had no similar characteristics at all, and the plot quickly thickened into tragedy and murder.

That's the range of trouble some folks get into when they're opposites.

Cheese Added To Peppers Is Tasty Dish

Variety Has Appeal In Daily Menus

By META GIVEN

WHILE hot canned or fresh vegetables seasoned to taste are delicious simply served with melted butter, variety has its appeal, too.

For those who tire of plain foods, try new and more glamorous ways of fixing vegetables alone or in combination. Today's recipe for lima stuffed green peppers becomes an economical main dish, tasty and nutritious.

WEDNESDAY MENUS

Breakfast
Sliced oranges
Hot cooked farina
Sugar and top milk
Cinnamon toast

Luncheon
Corned beef hash patties
Poached eggs
Salad greens tossed with French dressing
Chocolate chip cookies

Dinner
Cheesy lima stuffed peppers
Relish dish of celery, radishes and carrots
Tomato aspic salad
Hot pan rolls
Pineapple Bavarian
Milk to drink; One quart for each child, one pint for each adult, in addition to that used in the day's menu.

CHEESY LIMA STUFFED PEPPERS

5 green peppers
2 to 2½ c. seasoned cooked lima beans
3 tbsps. butter
½ c. grated mild cheese
5 strips bacon, pan-fried
Parsley

Choose peppers even in size and shaped to stand up straight on the blossom end. Wash and remove seeds from stem end. Take out seed core and divide membranes from peppers. Remove stems and chop removed slices coarsely. Cook chopped pepper gently in butter until soft.

Stir butter-pepper mixture carefully into beans. Fill pepper cups with the mixture, leaving one-eighth inch of the top. Cover with grated cheese; set cups in a shallow baking dish.

Pour one-fourth cup boiling water around cups and place in a moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) to bake until peppers are thoroughly heated through but still are slightly crisp. The beans are cooking out slightly around edge and the cheese is a tempting brown.
