

4 New Faces Expected in Cabinet

Marshall, Forrester Resignations Seen

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (UPI)—President Truman may begin his first elected term in the White House with four new faces among his nine cabinet advisers, associates said today.

Sources close to the White House said that among those missing from the new cabinet probably will be Secretary of State George C. Marshall, Defense Secretary James Forrestal, Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug and Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer.

Reasons for their expected replacement range from personal desire to presidential displeasure with those who paid scant attention to his campaign.

Due to Stay Aboard
Certain to remain aboard the White House ship, intimates say, are Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin and Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan. Both campaigned mightily in Mr. Truman's behalf.

Secretary of Treasury John W. Snyder, an old friend of the President, is expected to stay on, for awhile at least. He and his family contributed $8,000 to the election campaign.

Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson looks good to presidential intimates, too. A career man in the department, his appointment was seen as an indication that Mr. Truman meant to take the post office activities out of the "political plum" division.

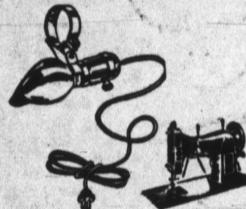

There is no evidence that he has since changed his mind about it.

The question mark, according to administration insiders, is Atty. Gen. Tom Clark. He had a thriving law practice in Texas before entering the government, and has been known to express a desire to return to it.

There is a possibility that two new Cabinet posts will be created during the next four years—Secretary of Welfare and Secretary of Public Works.

Victory Gives Nation a New Harry Truman

President Acquires Self-Confidence

By EARL RICHERT
Scripps-Howard Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4—You can expect a new Harry Truman from here on—a much stronger and more positive type of individual.

For along with the commanding position of political power achieved by his sensational victory, he has acquired that all-important ingredient—self-confidence.

It didn't come as a result of his victory, although this undoubtedly strengthened it.

The change in the Truman personality became apparent on his 22,000-mile speaking trip, the most vigorous campaign ever waged by a President.

He started out as the mild-mannered, friendly, ex-country boy who was pleading for votes to keep himself, Mrs. Truman and Margaret in the White House. He ended as the President who was "telling 'em" the facts of life in a tone of voice that sounded authoritative.

A Hard Slugger

Perhaps it was his dawn-to-midnight slugging at the Republicans that changed him. Perhaps it was the sound of his own voice recounting over and over again how right he was and how wrong the Republicans were that has given him the self-assurance that has been lacking from his make-up ever since he was catapulted into the White House.

But change he did, on that campaign trip. Newspaper reporters accompanying him remarked at the trip's end that, win or lose, he would never be the same different individual that started out Sept. 18 speaking before 100,000 people at a national plowing contest at Dexter, Iowa.

Aware of this change in his personality as well as in his own political position, official Washington is waiting to see the first results.

It is expected he will fire out of the government some high officials who cuddled up to the Republicans during the campaign and gave him only lip service.

Patronage Faces Jolt

He probably will lay the law down to the State Department which many times has taken a different stance from that of the White House. And he'll undoubtedly be tough on patronage, seeing to it that the State's Righters don't get the smallest crumb from the table.

What debt he owes, he owes to the voters and organized labor.

It is expected he will try hard to keep his pledge to seek repeal of the Taft-Hartley law.

The President also is expected to take the voters' approval of him as a mandate to work hard for the things he stood for during the campaign—low-cost federal housing, federal aid to education, price controls, more reclamation in the West, high price supports for farm products, civil rights and a raise of the minimum wage to 75 cents an hour.

French Actress Sets Earlier Wedding Date

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4 (UPI)—French actress Corinne Calvet will marry actor John Bromfield "somewhere in Nevada" Sunday instead of next month as previously announced, the couple disclosed today.

"We'd like to find a little town with a nice little church for the ceremony," said Bromfield, a distant cousin of Louis Bromfield, novelist. "We don't want this Las Vegas kind of wedding."

Scott Lucas on Inside Track For Senate Leader's Post

By MARSHALL MCNEIL
Scripps-Howard Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4—Scott Lucas, tall, dark and handsome Senator from Illinois, is an outstanding prospect today for election as the Democratic floor leader of the Senate in the 81st Congress.

The job will be open because the present leader, Senator Alben W. Barkley, becomes Vice President Jan. 20.

Nominally the Senate majority picks its own leader. Occasionally, the President steps in with the deciding "vote." President Roosevelt's intervention helped select the Kentuckian.

Important Factors
Though the outcome cannot certainly be predicted, and there will be other contestants, these important factors are seen in Sen. Lucas' favor:

ONE: His state, Illinois, went for President Truman, elected a Democratic governor and ousted Republican Senator "Curly" Brooks;

TWO: He has been a steady supporter of both Presidents Roosevelt and Truman, and took an active part in the campaign while some other Senators and Cabinet members sat it out;

THREE: He is now Democratic whip; and

FOUR: He is an experienced legislator, quick-witted and sharp-tongued, but able to make friends.

Patience, Persuasiveness

Despite the obvious advantages the legislative program of the new Democratic administration will have, with its astounding triple victory, the Senate majority leadership will require a patient and persuasive man. Perhaps one who can, as well, mete out political punishment.

The Democratic Senate majority will be large in numbers—but among the Democrats there will still be some conservatives

SHARP-TONGUED — Sen. Scott W. Lucas from Illinois is expected to be elected Democratic floor leader of the Senate in the 81st Congress.

Defeated Dewey Heads for Farm

Plans to Rest Over Week-End

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 4 (UPI)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey plunged today into the task of cleaning up state business in the next few days in order to take a long week-end rest at his Pawling farm.

The 46-year-old governor and his family returned here last night.

Mr. Dewey may be heading into his last two years of public life. However, there was some speculation that in the event of the resignation of the 71-year-old Sen. Robert Wagner (D. N. Y.), for ill health, Mr. Dewey might retire from the governorship and accept appointment as Senator.
