Air Advances
To Be Noted
At Local ShowWeir Cook Display
Part of 15-Year Plan

By JACK THOMPSON

One of the most spectacular air shows in the history of American aviation will open in the Civil Aeronautics Administration Technical Development Center at Weir Cook airport here tomorrow.

The show will demonstrate to U. S., Canadian and British military and civilian aviation leaders how the United States plans to regulate air traffic of the future by the development of an air-lane equivalent of highway traffic controls.

It will be the premiere of a 15-year government program of coordinating and standardizing air navigation and traffic control systems throughout the nation. The program was developed by the Radio Technical Commission for Aeronautics and the CAA.

It has been approved by the President's Air Policy Commission and the Congressional Air Policy Board.

Experts to Assemble

Aircraft experts throughout the United States, Canada and Great Britain will assemble here to examine traffic control systems and all-weather flying devices which will be demonstrated during the show. The entire series of demonstrations will continue three weeks.

Among the devices which have been in the developmental stage for years are the omni-directional range, new distance measuring equipment, the automatic computer and surveillance radar.

These devices have been studied and tested by the national policy boards and the CAA. Backers of the 15-year program contemplate putting them in operation on every major airfield in the nation.

In substance, they are the traffic signals of air commerce. Tied in with a rigid, nationwide system of traffic control in the air, they will enable the nation to build a system of traffic regulation as tight as that used for vehicular traffic in the country's cities and on the highways.

Plan Heavy Schedule

The new devices, installed throughout a national airport network, will enable American air commerce to take a long step toward whipping bad weather. The traffic control system presupposes vast development of air freight as well as passenger travel.

A heavy schedule of lectures, demonstrations, flying and ground exhibitions are on the program of the three-weeks' air show. Sessions will start at 9 a. m. and continue to 7 a. m. every day.

Already the nation's center of CAA technical development, Indianapolis will become the focus of international attention in the next three weeks.

In addition to military and naval officers, Congressmen and state officials, representatives from a dozen air organizations will attend.

Indiana Sheriffs Plan Battle In 1949 Legislature Against Any State Police 'Encroachment'

The old controversy over how Small's office to county sheriffs, ment originally was created for far state police should go in lo-many of whom were defeated in To enforce traffic laws.

"By no stretch of the imagination was the state police created direct, specific and written request from the sheriff, of the county involved."

Currently, it is state police policy to raid gambling or otherwise tackle county enforcement problems only at the request of some local official, not necessarily the sheriff. Major headache of the policy has been to steer clear of any enforcement organization in the state.

Official of one political faith might call in troopers to embarrass another official of the opposite politics.

On the other hand, although the troopers haven't the manpower or the funds to take on more than a small part of law enforcement, their record of criminal investigation is admitted by the police authorities to be the best of any enforcement organization in the state.

Yesterday Mr. Small said he we hope to attract the best possible candidates from both parties." He also pointed out that many sheriffs' offices are poorly financed by their counties and that they lack equipment to do a proper enforcement job. He said the association believes the state should help out these sheriffs with equipment and funds but by the people for. Now that we should be careful to avoid "usurpation" have a four-year term for sheriffs, lag" the authority of sheriffs starting in the election of 1950, through state police.
