Blackwood on Bridge— Bridge Would Be Much Duller Without Guesswork

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

BRIDGE IS NOT an exact science. There is an axiom as true now as it was 100 years ago.

A correspondent sends the hand shown today and writes: "I have been reading your articles on sacrifice bidding and thought I would try a little of it. On this hand my opponents' bid to game in confident tones, it was my guess they could make it, so I sacrificed at four spades. As I had figured I went down only 300 points. But the trouble is that if I had doubled my opponents instead, I would have set them 300. Total net result of taking your advice—minus 600 points. Phooey."

M. H. Well, M. H., you've got me on this one. You made what is known as a phantom save. These ghosts will rattle their bones in bridge games.

Maybe, holding two quick defensive tricks in the ace, king of diamonds you should have figured your chances were pretty good to beat four hearts. But you may ask, "How can you be sure?"

The answer is that you can't. If you could, bridge would be an exact science, and then it wouldn't be nearly as much fun. All I can tell you is to use your best judgment.

Consider the bidding. It offers important clues as to location of the enemy's high cards. What defensive help can you expect from partner? If he has opened the bidding or doubled for a "takeout," figure him for two winners (conservatively), or three winners (optimistically),—not over one defensive trick if he has merely overcalled.

If you think you have half a chance to set your opponents, don't make a sacrifice bid which you feel may go down over one trick. You say this is still guessing? Well, I call it using judgment. To use your term, the player who "guesses" right most of the time will be the winner in the long run.

Remember, the greatest experts occasionally make phantom saves. Remember there is no "never," no "always," no "absolute certainty" in bridge.

And therein lies the charm, the excitement and the beauty of the game which, through centuries, has delighted with equal vigor the great and the lowly, the wise and the foolish, the expert and the dub.

Women Outnumber Men In Nation

MINNEAPOLIS—Women already outnumber men in the U. S. and stand to strengthen their ranks in coming decades.

Prof. Philip M. Hauser of the University of Chicago told a symposium on population in Minneapolis recently that women now held a numerical lead over men 100 to 99.

Charm Your 'Date'

There's a new mix on the market that enables even the most helpless sub-deb to whip up a batch of old-fashioned brownies or fudge squares. All you have to do is add water and stir before baking. You might try it on that handsome, but reserved new man.

Dye Old Dresses

If you're tired of the color of your last season's suit or dress have it dyed or do it yourself. It will seem like a new outfit—try drying accessories, too.

Make A Stole For Your Frock

Spruce up last year's "date" dress with a stole of rustling taffeta in a color to match or harmonize with the dress. Make the stole from a straight piece of fabric about two yards long and 18 inches wide.

Ends of the stole may be finished with a long silky fringe or roll the fabric into scallops caught with decorative buttons. Or you can line a dark-colored stole with bright-colored fabric and button back one corner of each end to display a flash of color.

My Day— Girl Scout Clothing Drive Praised by Mrs. FDR

By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

PARIS, Nov. 22—I visited a little place in France the other day which reminded me of something I had written about in this column only a few days ago—The American Girl Scouts' "Clothes for Friendship" campaign. I was told that layets for expectant mothers were among the things most appreciated from the United States.

Your interest in this 1948 program of activity by the Girl Scouts probably was more intensified recently because of national Girl Scout Week, but don't let it fade because the week has passed. Their campaign, will continue indefinitely and they are eager for your help.

All members of this fine and truly American organization have pledged themselves to collect and send to war-devastated areas in Europe and Asia one million warm garments for children under 15 years of age.

The commemorative stamp honoring Juliette Gordon Low, founder of the Girl Scouts, which was issued by our government late last month should be your reminder of this worthy project.

Judge Allen Is Honored

It would have been my great pleasure to have attended the testimonial dinner given at the Waldorf Astoria in New York recently by the New York University Law School in honor of my good friend, United States Circuit Court of Appeals Judge Florence E. Allen.

Judge Allen is the only graduate of the school to achieve this eminence of being on the bench of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, as well as being the only woman ever to hold such a high judicial office.

A room in the university's new law center, which will be built on Washington Square in New York, will be dedicated to her. Half the money for this dedication was raised by an alumni committee under Judge Dorothy Kenyon.

It is fitting and only natural that a room in this famous law center should be dedicated to a woman since this was the first law school, founded in 1835, to open its doors to women students. Some 800 women have been graduated from it since 1891.

Since I first met Judge Allen, I have had great respect and great admiration for her, and though I was unable to attend the dinner given in her honor, I did send my good wishes.

I would like to add, that if a President of the United States should decide to nominate a woman for the Supreme Court, it should be Judge Allen.

She will be a nominee with a backing, on a completely non-partisan basis, of American women who know her career and her accomplishments.

Attend Dinner

Curl Your Eyelashes

A DREAM-PRINCESS fringe of eyelashes depends, as every girl knows, upon a luxuriant curly upswing.

Quite often the use of mascara or vaseline, followed by a curling gadget, can more than make up for nature's failure to endow a girl with a devastating sweep of eyelashes.

To make lashes look more luxuriant is the purpose of an improved new curling device. The lash-curling bow of this one is provided with a removable rubber lining. If mascara or vaseline is used on eyelashes before they are given their upswing, it is a convenience to have a rubber lining which can be removed from the bow for perfect cleaning after the curling operation.

For the information of those gals who have never crimped their eyelashes, this new gadget does the trick when lashes are gripped between the rubber-guarded curling device and when the scissor-like handles are held closed for a couple of minutes.
