Miss Talkington Is Married to Evansville Bridegroom Today In Our Lady of Lourdes

2 Other Local Brides Pledge Vows In Same Church This Morning

Three Indianapolis women were married this morning in Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church.

At 9 a. m. Miss Frances Harriett Talkington became the bride of John Andrew Ruder, Evansville. The Rev. Fr. Joseph Beechem officiated. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. F. B. Nichols, 5356 E. St. Joseph St., and Mr. and Mrs. Francis Ruder, Evansville, are the parents of the bridegroom.

Miss Annie Chesterton, Crawfordsville, maid of honor, wore green taffeta. The bride wore white satin and an illusion veil that fell from a pearl tiara. She carried a prayerbook and white orchids.

Robert Ruder, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The reception was in the home of the bride's parents. After a wedding trip to Chicago, the couple will be at home at 1904 Carrollton Ave.

Future Fun Depends on 'Time Plan'

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—Rule five is the time rule, and now is the hour. Let's assume that sooner or later, and probably soon in your operation of the time plan, you run up against a number one want that you simply can't afford.

This is the 7th and last installment of excerpts from the new book, "How to get More Fun for Your Money" by George E. Anderson. (Rafferty & Lee, 325 W. Huron St., Chicago; $1.)

You try translation, you try doing without things you don't want, you think everything out. But your pocketbook snarls at you. "Not for you, at these prices." You mustn't be surprised to learn that such a thing happens to everybody, even the tremendously rich.

Rule five starts you working on the fulfillment of the project right now instead of at some vague time when your ship comes in.

One summer a few years ago after we'd put the fun plan into active operation, we tried to make the fanciest vacation plans we could and we pored over resort and travel literature by the hour, debating the merits of various places. It was fun, too.

We found one resort that, from its literature, seemed to have everything we wanted.

It all lived up to the folders. We were disappointed about only one thing, and that was something the management couldn't help.

The place had been created for youth, for active, violent enthusiasms and strenuous, boisterous activities, but the guests were elderly businessmen and their, for the most part, elderly wives. The facilities for enjoyment were all there, crying to be used, without any of the people who could best use them. The young, active folk who could have had a million dollars' worth of fun at the place couldn't afford it.

Rule five is "start after it now." Now, while you want it, while you can get all the fun that goes with it. So we started saving for our vacation.

Happiness is one thing everybody wants. Granted: We'll run to keep an appointment, we'll make a business deal, we'll race for a train. But we'll put off fun planning. Building a fund to buy something frivolous or luxurious can wait. So we put it off and put it off and one day we realize we're too late.

For normal people, rule six is almost self-working. It is: Keep an unfiled want. Copyright 1949 by The Indianapolis Times and Chicago Daily News, Inc.

Mr. Stewart Takes Bride

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Howell Stewart are on a trip to New Orleans and Havana following their marriage at 11:30 a. m. today in the St. Joan of Arc Catholic Church. The Rev. Fr. Edwin Sahm of the Immaculate Heart of Mary Catholic Church officiated.

The bride, the former Miss Jeanne Barnhill, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Barnhill, 5321 Park Ave., and Mr. and Mrs. Albert V. Thompson, 642 N. Oxford St., are the parents of the bridegroom.

Mrs. William J. Krier, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and Miss Barbara Ann Mason was junior bridesmaid. They wore dresses of lavender taffeta. The four bridesmaids, Mrs. Louis Schultz, Misses Josephine Eaton, Marilyn Ceigler and Lavone Phillips, had lime green taffeta dresses.

Candlelight Satin Worn by Bride

The candlelight, satin bridal gown was fashioned with an off-the-shoulder effect accented with a bertha collar edged in chantilly lace. The full, gored skirt with a bustle in back extended into a cathedral length train. The bride's two-tiered fingertip illusion veil cascaded from a satin bonnet with orange blossoms. She carried a prayerbook and white orchids.

Gilbert Koers was best man while the ushers were Meredith Mikels, Harry Koers, Jack Camie, Mr. Krier and Bud Worley. The wedding breakfast and reception were in the Columbia Club.

For her wedding trip the bride wore a beige suit with navy blue accessories. They will be at home after Mar. 5 at 1311 1/2 N. Oxford St.

Blackwood on Bridge—New Laws Fail to Ease Mr. Muzzy's Confusion

THE NEW LAWS of contract bridge are supposed to simplify matters for all concerned and to avoid confusion at the bridge table. Somehow they don't seem to help my friend Mr. Muzzy. Maybe there is just no way for him to avoid confusion.

You will notice that all of the bidding is not given on today's hand. Usually the actual play does not begin until a bid has been followed by three passes. But this hand is different. Play began immediately after Mr. Abel bid four hearts. Mr. Muzzy started the play at this point by banting the ace of clubs on the table.

Mr. Champion clapped both hands over his eyes. "Why does this sort of thing always happen to me?" he said in a strangled voice. On the other hand Mr. Dale and Mr. Abel both looked pleased.

The premature lead gave Mr. Dale the right to enforce a penalty. The penalty was two-fold. First, Mr. Champion (partner of the offender) had to pass when next it was his turn to bid. That wasn't so bad as he didn't want to bid any more anyway. He felt that a four spade contract, played by Mr. Muzzy, might be pretty bad.

So the bidding reverted to where it had been so rudely interrupted and Mr. Abel's four heart bid was duly followed by three passes.

The second part of the penalty was that the ace of clubs became a "penalty card." It had to remain face up on the table and it had to be played the first time Mr. Muzzy could legally play it.

Against the four heart contract Mr. Champion opened the ten of spades. When the dummy went down Mr. Dale saw at once the advantage he could realize from Mr. Muzzy's premature lead. He won the first trick with the ace of spades, killing East's king. He then laid down his deuce of clubs and played the five from dummy. Mr. Muzzy was forced by the laws to take this trick with his ace.

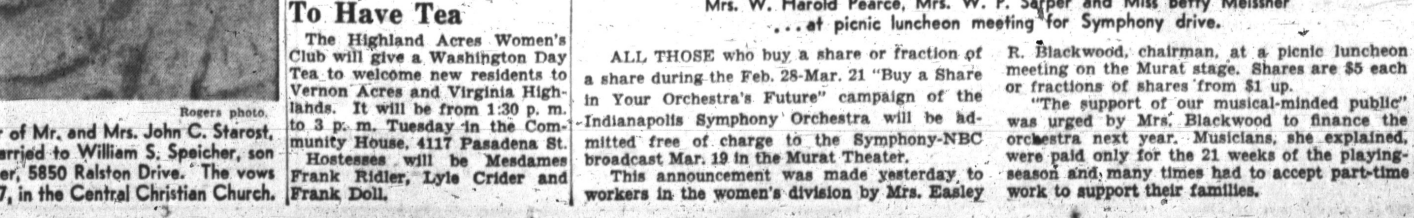

"In the future, Muzzy," said Mr. Champion with mock friendliness, "please depend upon me to tell you when it is time for you to lead. I will use a signal. The signal will be that I hit you over the head with this chair."

Send your questions on bridge to Easley Blackwood, The Indianapolis Times, Indianapolis 9.

Dinner Party To Mark 25th Year of Club

'Circa 1924' Playlet To Show Styles To Show Styles

A penthouse dinner party Monday in LaRue's will send off the 25th founders anniversary of the Alpha Letairean Club.

A short sketch entitled "Circa 1924," presented by a group of members in authentic clothes of a quarter century ago, a floor show and dancing will complete the evening's program, according to Mrs. Robert D. Coleman, general chairman.

Assisting the chairman are Mesdames Frederick C. Alber-shardt, Herbert E. Wilson, Carolyn Forry Hargitt, Louis Hensley, Edward K. Hawkins and Harry G. Jones. Mrs. Henry Churchman Jr. is president.

Silver tinted spring flowers arranged in silver bowls and lighted candles in silver holders will decorate each of the small dinner tables. A silver ribbon will extend down the center of the tables. Musical hits from 1924 will be played by the orchestra during the dinner hour.

Mrs. Coleman, as toastmaster, will honor the founders, officers, members and guests. Mrs. Herschel E. Davis will give the founders' response.

Cast Members Listed For Playlet

Playing roles in the sketch, written by Mrs. Frederick Steiger and Mrs. Coleman, will be Mesdames C. C. Godfrey, Robert J. Covert, Arthur O. Pittenger, Robert E. Bastian, Conwell R. Smith, James E. Loer, Churchman, Hawkins, Hargitt and Alber-shardt.

Charter members for Alpha Letairean were chosen by a committee on junior organization of the Indiana Federation of Clubs under the direction of Mrs. L. H. Millikan and the late Mrs. Charles Field. The name "Letairean" was given to the new club by Mrs. Millikan. Since it was the first of the group to be organized, it became "Alpha."

The first meeting was held Feb. 28, 1924, in the home of Miss Marie Field, daughter of Mrs. Field, and now Mrs. Walter Lehmann of Minneapolis. She became the first president, and the first secretary was Miss Louise Stockdale, now Mrs. Robert E. Bastian.

In 1928 the club chose the Julia Jameson Nutrition Camp as its particular project. A total contribution of $9,927.52 has been made to the Marion County Tuberculosis Association, sponsors of the camp, by the group.

Miss Wheaton Says Vows to Paul Feucht

Paul Herbert Feucht took Miss Barbara Jean Wheaton as his bride in a 4:30 p. m. ceremony today. The Rev. Newman Jeffrey read the vows in the Broadway Methodist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest S. Wheaton, 5956 Washington Blvd. Mr. Feucht is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Feucht, Chicago.

Miss Mary E. Wheaton, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. She wore an ice blue satin frock and carried red roses. The bridesmaids, Mrs. John Sorenson, and Misses Louise Jeffrey, Patricia McKinley and Mary Lou Winegar, wore identical dresses and carried carnations.

The best man was Robert Thompson and the ushers were J. Benton Jones Jr. and Richard Jones, Newark, N. J.; Jerome Sweitzer, Riverdale, N. Y.; and Richard Wheaton. Constance Wheaton was the flower girl.

A gown of pearl pink slipper satin was worn by the bride. The gown was fashioned with a Jenny Lind neckline accented with seed pearls. It had a molded bodice and full skirt, which extended into a cathedral train. Her two-tiered veil of pink illusion cascaded from a lace half hat and she carried white roses orchids.

After a reception in the Indianapolis Athletic Club, the couple will leave for a short wedding trip. They will be at home in Chicago in March. The bride wore a navy suit with navy and white accessories on the trip.

Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of Purdue University. He is a member of Sigma Nu Fraternity.

Miss Slauter Is Wed

The St. Thomas Aquinas Catholic Church was the scene at 9 a. m. today of Miss Ellen Frances Slauter's marriage to Daniel J. Moriarty. The Rev. Fr. John Holloran read the vows. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Carrie Moriarty of Indianapolis.

Miss Mary Elene Moriarty, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. She wore a honey beige suit. The bride was in a light blue crepe dress. Her accessories were dark blue and she carried Johanna Hill roses.

Edward V. Moriarty was his brother's best man. The wedding breakfast was in Holly Rock Hill and the reception in the bridegroom's home, 601 W. 42d St. After a wedding trip to Florida, the couple will live at the W. 42d St. address.

Dance Scheduled

The annual dinner dance of the National Association of Cost Accountants will be held tonight. Denver Julian's orchestra will play for the event in the ballroom of the Marott Hotel.

SAFE AT HOME?

REHEARSAL TIME—Mrs. Guy O. Byrd, Sally and Mrs. B. Lynn Adams.

By AGNES H. OSTROM

SAFE AT HOME! Are you? Is that throw rug in the living room securely anchored? Are those matches on the kitchen stove within easy reach of little Johnnie and Susie? Can their curious fingers find the medicine bottles on the bathroom shelf? Are you still using the rickety stepladder from which father almost fell last week-end when he washed the windows?

If "safe at home" means you've been just plain lucky in escaping accidents, odds are against your luck always holding out. Daily, housewives are rushed to hospitals or to the family doctor for emergency treatment of home injuries. Most of them, the ones that might happen to you, can be avoided by being careful and following the "safety first" rule wherever you are.

Some of these home accidents are used in a skit, "A Day in the Life of an Average Family," to be presented Thursday in Block's Auditorium at the all-day Fourth Annual Home Safety Institute.

There's father, played by Louis R. Thomas. He gets a painful bruised knee and has to walk with a cane after falling over tin cans left on the basement stairs by his wife, Mrs. C. E. Diehm. She too warrants first aid treatment when she burns her arm on the stove in her attempt to handle too many hot pans and dishes at one time.

LEON (John Schmidt) trips over every loose rug and chair rocker in the house. He's the typical 14-year-old who discovers every possible hazard. Kristi, played by Sally Risk, Leon's 12-year-old sister, simply doesn't believe in safety rules. She sits in any kind of a position to read with any sort of light. What not to do when you knit is the example set by Aunt Jane (Mrs. Fred Doeppers).

Mrs. B. Lynn Adams is the president of the Indianapolis Council of Women which is sponsoring the skit. Author and director is Mrs. Guy O. Byrd.

Institute delegates will have an opportunity to show how much they know about safety in an observation contest. They will examine the stage setting of the skit to determine the unsafe conditions. During the play they will list any unsafe practices demonstrated. Cash and merchandise awards will be given those listing the most.

The program, which opens with registration at 9:30 a. m., also will include talks on home fire prevention, sanitation in the kitchen, home nursing, home planning for safety and discussions by Dr. Ted Grisell, General Hospital staff physician, and Dr. Russell M. Whitmore, orthodontist.

It promises to be a noisy event as well. There will be a parade of kitchen hats made from spoons, measuring cups, scouring pads and flour sieves.

The Institute, sponsored by the Home Safety Division, Indianapolis Safety Council, and the Indianapolis Chapter, American Red Cross, is open to the public. Mrs. George A. Bowen has charge of the program.
