Kite Endurance Record Try Fails As String Snaps

COLUMBUS, O., Mar. 18 (UP)—The attempt by Mrs. Doris Acosta to break her own kite-flying endurance championship ended today when the string on her 10-cent kite broke at 9 a. m. (8 a. m. Indianapolis time).

The 20-year-old housewife and all-around sportswoman, who claims the kite-flying championship with a 23½-hour endurance record, said she will now concentrate on ice skating until the weather gets better and she can try again to break her own mark.

SHE STARTED her second attempt at 1 p. m. yesterday, but the brisk wind on Columbus' hill-top section along with a heavy snowfall was just too much for the near-mile of string attached to the kite.
