In Hollywood—
Vas You Efer
In Indianapolis?Gag Writer Tells Columnist
He'll Have to Check Towels

By Erskine Johnson
HOLLYWOOD, Mar. 31—The best of the film capital's recent laugh crop:

A group of actors was talking about one-night stands in vaudeville and the many cities they hit on cross-country tours. One ex-vaudevillian asked Snag Werris, the gagwriter, whether he had ever played Indianapolis.

"I don't remember," said Snag. "I'll have to go home and look through my towels."

JACK BENNY said it was wonderful the way television is giving new faces a chance at fame. He said he had seen several western films on video.

"There was a new fellow in town who certainly should become a star. Fellow by the name of William Farman."

Page Cavanaugh reports that he saw a new type western film. The Indians won.

A HOLLYWOOD starlet kept pounding everyone's eardrums at a party and someone pitted: "Poor girl. She sounds as if she has a speech impediment."

"She has," said Jack Gilford. "She can't stop."

FIBBER MCGEE and Molly were taking care of their 3-year-old granddaughter, Diane. At bedtime Molly said: "Now, Diane, say your prayers."

Diane started, "Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, bless the bed that I lie on."

"Then she stopped suddenly, looked up at Molly and said: 'Grandma, do I know those guys?'"

A HOLLYWOOD ham boasted, "They built a picture around me." "Yeah," squelched Marie Wilson, "and they didn't even touch you."

TURHAN BEY and Martin Ragaway (I can't escape him) finally caught up with the movie, "Words and Music." As practically every star on the M-G-M lot paraded past the camera, Turhan said:

"I wonder how Van Johnson managed to stay out of this." Martin said: "Maybe he brought a note from his mother."

A FILM writer was in a hospital and needed a quick blood transfusion. He was asked what type blood he needed.

"I'm type B," said the writer, "but as long as you're going to all the trouble, anybody in the L. B. Mayer family would be just fine."

ON HIS return from Germany, Garry Moore and his USO troupe played the Azores and the lights went dim every time he walked on-stage. After the show he discovered the trouble.

There's a shortage of power there and the precious "juice" was reserved by the G.I.s for the female members of the company, including Vivian Blaine, who were considered far more worth looking at than Garry.

BENNY FIELDS, the minstrel man, defines a Hollywood cocktail as a swimming pool with an actor in it.

IT'S A great idea, Milton Hill thinks, for movie theaters to run trailers of their current films on television.

Now people will be assured that they're not missing anything by staying home.

HANK LADD says he knows a celebrity who grew up in a tough section of New York and is still true to the old gang. He refused to be a guest detective on a radio crime show because, he said, "I'm no stool pigeon."

JOHN BROWN, the radio actor, is telling about the ventriloquist who became a medium. One day a woman came and said she wanted to talk to her dear departed husband.

The ventriloquist threw his voice behind a curtain and pretended to be the woman's husband, talking to her for nearly 20 minutes.

The woman was elated. "It's wonderful," she said. "For only $5 I talk to my husband. It sounds just like him."

The flattered ex-ventriloquist forgot himself for a moment, beamed and said:

"Lady, for $10 I'll do it while drinking a glass of water."
