

New York Mob Suspected In Aga Khan Jewel Holdup

Reward Total Reaches $100,000 for 4 Men Who Staged 'American Style' Robbery

NICE, France, Aug. 4 (UP)—Police said today they believed the daring $600,000 daylight robbery of the Aga Khan and his beautiful French wife may have been master-minded by New York mobsters. A trans-Atlantic police alarm for the four masked bandits, along with a full description of the 43 pieces of loot taken from the Aga's wife, the Begum, was cabled to police in America.

Insurance investigators, who flew from Britain to the Riviera, are exploring the possibility that the gems may have been placed aboard a ship or plane en route to the United States.

The Begum, furious at the gunmen who seized virtually her entire jewel collection at the point of a submachinegun, angrily offered a $20,000 reward for information leading to their arrest.

Insurance companies, which reportedly stand to lose $200,000 if the gems are not recovered, put up a $65,000 reward. Coupled with the Aga Khan's offer of $15,000 and "no questions asked" for their return, the latest rewards bring the total posted to more than $100,000.

The chauffeur of the hired limousine in which the Aga Khan and the Begum were riding, Claude Borgeaud, 28, was questioned by police for several hours last night.

Police said they believed the robbery of the Aga Khan yesterday was conceived by the same master-mind who ordered the $600,000 looting of the Van Cleef and Arpels jewelry house in New York City last December.

The four men who held up the Aga Khan were masked with dark glasses and they made their getaway in a stolen car in the New York manner.

Insurance investigators were under orders to locate the Begum's gems before some of the priceless pieces were broken up to be sold.

The twisting roads of the Cote d'Azur, swarmed today with scores of police on patrol and manning road blocks, but avenues of escape were almost limitless for the four bandits.
