

Ask Mrs. Manners

Wed Before Finishing School and Regrets It

DEAR MRS. MANNERS:

"Confused" asked you if she should marry secretly, against her mother's wishes, and then finish school.

I married secretly—I meant to finish school. But classes seemed useless. I came home in the evenings and started cooking. But it wasn't fun for I wasn't doing it in my own place, around my husband.

Of course I became pregnant. That would be bad. Mother told me my father's health had failed. My husband and I couldn't get an apartment on his salary. I'd learned by then, anyway, that he talked big and did nothing—he even took my allowance. I couldn't work. I was inexperienced.

Mother said she'd have to send me to an aunt in the country.

Dad had to go to the hospital and Mother couldn't expect much salary for she'd never worked.

My husband walked out. He was scared. I couldn't run—I was going to have a baby. So I told my mother everything. We had to let the baby be adopted and I got a divorce at 17.

Without even a high school education, I went to work. Mother and I share a room—we're trying to pay back bills. She was the only one who stuck with me.

My husband wasn't old enough to be a husband. I wasn't old enough to realize it. As a result, one little baby is without real parents; one foolish, love-struck girl missed a good marriage, education, and the fun of being young, and the best mother in the world missed being a grandmother and the satisfaction of thinking she had prepared her daughter for life.

EXPERIENCED.

I hope "Confused" will do a little thinking about the things that could happen—about the things she refuses to think about. I believe she knows she wouldn't be happy, or she wouldn't give the decision a single thought.

Club Trouble Rouser

I HAVE belonged to a club since last Christmas. Everything was going fine until a girl we knew came home from boarding school. Slowly, but surely, she
