

High School Plans 'Field Trips'

Pupils to Visit Local Plants

Business education and social studies seniors at Broad Ripple High School will get first hand information about community problems and activities during the new semester.

Plans are being formed at the school for organization of "field" trips to industrial plants, business offices and governmental agencies under supervision of teachers and scheduled by Miss Winifred G. parents. The tours are being West, director of business education, and Willard J. Gambold, head of the social studies department.

On Sept. 27, pupils will visit Kingan & Co., Indiana Bell Telephone Co., New York Central Railroad, Indiana University Medical Center, Merchants Association, Indianapolis Water Co., Thomson and McKinnon, Diamond Chain Co., RCA and the Statehouse.

THE TECH summer school band will play for an assembly of freshmen and other new pupils at 9 p. m. Tuesday in the boys' gymnasium. C. S. Stewart, director of program production at the school, will be in charge of the assembly.

MISS ELIA SENGEN-BEGER, director of publications at Tech, has been listed as a member of a national committee which wrote "Yearbook Fundamentals," latest publication of the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, Columbia University.

TECH FACULTY changes and departmental appointments have been announced by Hanson H. Anderson, principal of the high school.

Six new instructors have been added to the staff. They are Mrs. Gladys Trick Brewer, English de-
