

Organizations— Couple To Celebrate Anniversary

Rabbi, Mrs. Goldblatt
Wed Twenty Years

Rabbi and Mrs. Maurice M. Goldblatt will be honored at a reception from 8 to 10:30 p. m. Monday in the Marott Hotel. They are celebrating their 20th wedding anniversary.

Members of the Temple Sisterhood will be official hostesses. Past presidents of the group will be in the receiving line. They include Mesdames Sidney James, Louis R. Markin, Sydney V. Romer, Arthur A. Fairbanks, Louis E. Efronson, Harry B. Jacobs, Harold I. Platt, Sidney Mahalowitz and Sultana Cohen.

Mrs. Manuel Cassen, newly elected president, will also receive. With her will be Mrs. J. K. Bertram and Mrs. Bernard Rosenak, the two women members of the congregation.

Mrs. Lewis Is Chairman
Mrs. Harold Lewis is hospitality chairman. The officers of the Sisterhood will be: Mrs. Maurice Spasser, first and second vice presidents; Mrs. Elmer Blatt and Mrs. Marvin Sablosky, recording and corresponding secretaries; Mrs. Louise Pink, treasurer; Mrs. Robert Romer, treasurer and assistant; Mrs. Gabe Wagman and Mrs. Hugo Strauss, financial secretary and assistant.

Mrs. Harold I. Platt is general chairman. The program will be presented Sunday afternoon in the Women's Building at the Fairgrounds.

Walter Newton Reed is program chairman. Frederic Krull and Mrs. Reed will sing, accompanied by Mrs. Gertrude Buttz. Barton Rees Pogue will read Riley's poem and E. O. Sneathen will give a reading.

Miss Luf Ellen Dearinger and Miss Sandra Kennell also will read. William H. Chittwood will read an original poem. Mr. Pogue will present lantern slides on Riley lore. Miss June Winona Snyder is assistant program head.

Plan Dinner
The Marion County Salon 126, S. and 40, will have a dinner meeting at 6:30 p. m. Tuesday in the Canary Cottage.

New officers are to be installed. They are Mrs. Connie Taylor, president; Mrs. Frank Long and Mrs. Irene Kise, first and second vice presidents; Mrs. James Sietz and Mrs. Horace Kemper, recording and corresponding secretaries; Mrs. Clarence Parson, sergeant-at-arms; Mrs. Wilfred Bradshaw, historian; Mrs. Thomas Bohannon, chaplain; Mrs. George Poppa, parliamentarian; and Mrs. Wilbur Bohfield, treasurer.

Bridal Dinner Is Scheduled

Mr. and Mrs. Herschel C. Yelvington, 4717 Central Ave., will be hosts at a bridal dinner honoring their daughter, Marjorie Jane, and her fiancé, Charles M. Early, at 6 p. m. tomorrow. The party will be given in the home of the bride-to-be's parents.

Miss Yelvington and Mr. Early will be married at 11:30 a. m. Saturday, Sept. 10, in the St. Joan of Arc Catholic Church. The dinner will precede the wedding rehearsal which also is scheduled for 2:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Invited to the party are Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Early, parents of the prospective bridegroom; Dr. and Mrs. Philip W. Rothrock and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Zarman, all of Lafayette; Dr. and Mrs. Otis N. Olive, Miss Georgia Swope, the Rt. Rev. Magr. Clement Bosler and Lloyd E. Hobbs.

Prevent Lint
To keep tea towel lint off glassware give the towels a light starch.

Soapless Soaps Do Many Jobs for Busy Homemaker

Children love the suds produced by detergents.

By ANN E. EWING, Science Service Staff Writer
"SOAPLESS SOAPS," the cleaning agents which often look like soap, act like soap, but aren't really soap at all, are making household chores easier and less time consuming. Rings no longer appear on the bathtub and washbowl. Dishes and glasses are rinsed dry and sparkling clean. Woolens are washed in one-fifth the time formerly required.

In cool water with no matting. Rugs, upholstery and woodwork are quickly and easily shampooed. Saving time and elbow grease, the soapless soaps are also known as synthetic detergents. Biggest advantage of these competitors to soap is that they clean effectively in all kinds of water—hot or cold, hard or soft, fresh or sea.

Romans Used Soap
Soap, somewhat similar to that we know today, is known to have first been made by the Romans from tallow and beeh ash. Until about 30 years ago it was undisputed champion for a cleaner world.

But there are many disadvantages to using soap. It is practically insoluble in cold water. It is decomposed in acid solutions. It forms a soft, gummy residue by combining with the lime or magnesium salts found in hard water.

Many of these disadvantages are not too objectionable in the home. In industry, however, there are certain operations which are preferably carried out in acid solution, in the presence of metallic salts, or in cold water. These special problems spurred the search for substitutes, synthetic detergents.

The word detergent is not new—it's just one which for a long time went unused. Actually, a detergent is any agent which assists in cleaning. Soap was the most familiar example until the shortage of fats during the war gave the synthetic detergents their big chance.

Soaps and synthetic detergents are cleaning agents because they have the ability to "wet" a surface, to remove foreign material from that surface and to keep the removed material from resettling on the surface.

Vary Materials
By varying the materials from which the synthetic detergents are made, they can be tailored to do a specific job. They are used in toothpastes because they taste better than soap; for bubble baths because some types will foam in any kind of water; in automatic laundries because other types give maximum cleanliness with a minimum of suds; in mouth washes because still other types have antiseptic properties; and for food preparations because yet another variety is tasteless and odorless.

Street cleaners are finding the new products helpful for their jobs. Grease and oil which remains untouched by ordinary water is out of harm's way when as little as five pounds of synthetic detergent is added to the water tank.

Summers, George Hosmer, Henry Church, James L. Miller, Winslow Van Horne and Glen Conway, social.

Mrs. Landis Pressler, chairman, Mesdames John H. Hamilton, Robert Richey, Elmer Sherwood and Glen Conway, Miss Hazel Force and Miss Mueller, scholarship; Mesdames Stuart Wilson, Herbert Kessel and William B. Wilcox, nominations, and Mrs. Walter Titus, parliamentarian.

Gardeners Plan Flower Show

Individual gardeners as well as local florists have entered exhibits in the flower displays at the Indiana State Fair. The gladiolus exhibit now being shown will be followed by dahlia and chrysanthemum displays the beginning of next week.

Exhibits are in the Agriculture and Horticulture building. In charge of the horticulture section is A. G. Aubach. Other features of the showings will include novel arrangements, a display of colored foliage plants including caladiums and coleus and the usual gardens in the pits. The latter are set up by local florists.

Two Ceremonies to Be Read Tomorrow; Christian Church Scene of Recent Rite

Tomorrow is the day selected by Miss Eileen O'Brien, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel O'Brien, 2209 E. New York St., for her marriage to Leonard Wallace Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace, Georgetown, Ill. The vows will be read in the Holy Cross Catholic Church.

Miss Gertrude Dorn, daughter of Mrs. Philip Dorn, 341 N. Hamilton Ave., will be married to Matthew A. Doyle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Doyle, Logansport. The vows will be read tomorrow in the St. Philip Neri Catholic Church.

Miss Geraldine Louise Yensel, daughter of Mrs. Geraldine Elizabeth Yensel, 32 S. Oxford St., and Donald Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Smith, 1041 S. State Ave., were married Aug. 20 in the Englewood Christian Church.

Local Group Sets Meeting To Hold Orientation

The Indianapolis Council of Women will hold its orientation meeting at 2 p. m. Tuesday in Ayres Auditorium.

This meeting is planned especially to instruct presidents, delegates and hostesses for the International Dairy Exposition which is to be Oct. 8-15.

Robert Hammar, executive secretary of the exposition, will speak. He will explain the duties of the hostesses who are being recruited from affiliated clubs. The hostess chairmen for the exposition are Mrs. Rose Marie Cruzan, Oct. 8; Mrs. Carl Sauer, Oct. 9; Mrs. Robert Straughn, Oct. 10; Mrs. Otto H. Bakemeier, Oct. 11; Mrs. Walter Woerner, Oct. 12; Mrs. Julius Rookner, Oct. 13; Mrs. L. Marshall Vogler, Oct. 14, and Mrs. William F. Summerville, Oct. 15.

Miss Zimmerman To Be Wed

Miss Betty Jane Zimmerman and Victor A. Cardarelli have set Sept. 17 as the date for their high time of matrimony. They have put little stress on the fact that England and France could legitimately feel differently.

The Rev. Francis J. Reine will officiate. Miss Janet Allen will be the maid of honor. Acky Cardarelli will be his brother's best man and the ushers will be Ernest and Francis Rathz. Mrs. Acky Cardarelli and Mrs. Paul L. Thatcher will entertain for the future bride Sept. 10 in Ayres' Tearoom.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Zimmerman, 3043 Broadway, and Ernest Cardarelli, 4622 Winthrop Ave., are the parents of the couple.

My Day— America Needs Great Britain As Much as She Needs Us

By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

HYDE PARK, Sept. 2.—In two metropolitan newspapers, editorials say the most unfortunate part of the President's speech to the Legionnaires on the subject of aid to Britain is that it will not be read by the majority of the American people.

I was surprised at that statement because it seems that the economic situation in Britain is of such paramount interest to the United States that any statement touching on it should be read and understood by all the people.

We have people in this country who still feel that the Revolution needs to be fought perennially, even though the colony which once had to fight for its rights is now stronger than the country it revolted against. We have taught history in such a way that many of our young people still believe Great Britain is an enemy.

As a result of our peculiar situation in the early part of World War I, many people feel a bitterness because debts incurred by Britain and France before we entered the war have not been repaid. We have always emphasized the payment of debts by such nations as Finland and brought to the attention of our people what we thought was a particularly high time of integrity. We have put little stress on the fact that England and France could legitimately feel differently.

Without their resistance and their last ditch holding of the line against the Germans we might never have been ready to throw our force behind them and win World War I. Had we not won World War I there would have been no barrier between us and the Nazis in World War II, for oceans are not barriers any longer.

I have heard hard-headed business men acknowledge the fact that our loans before we entered the first world war were simply a form of fighting the war. They said that if he had had real economic help, she needs us.

It cost her money and men and she needs both today. We have more than we would have had if Great Britain had not been there. We are going to need Great Britain in the future as we have in the past.

She will not always stand for the things that are right. Neither do we. We will find fault with each other but we cannot afford to let Great Britain go under in an economic way first because of security in a military way and second because of our similar moral standards and spiritual beliefs.

We need Great Britain and her people, and she needs us.

Dips Down Into Bag on This Problem

Mr. Masters Reveals
New Line of Tricks

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD
MR. MASTERS had to reach pretty far down in his bag of tricks to bring this one home. Two lines of play blew up in his face, but he still had one left—and it was a beauty.

Mr. Champion opened his singleton tray of clubs, the deuce went on from dummy, Miss Brash played the eight and Mr. Masters won with the king. Now, as you see, Mr. Masters had six winners in diamonds, three in hearts and two in clubs. For his contract he needed to develop a third club trick or a spade trick.

To develop the spade he had to have two entries to dummy; one to lead the king of spades, driving out the ace, and one to get back to cash the queen of spades. There was one entry to the board in hearts. The only chance for a second entry lay in finding the opposing diamonds divided 2-2.

One Chance Gone
So Mr. Masters laid down the ace and king of diamonds. On the second diamond Mr. Champion showed out, discarding a small spade. One chance gone.

A third round of diamonds was taken and then Mr. Masters tested the club situation. If Mr. Champion had led from the queen of clubs everything was fine. That is, a third round of clubs up toward dummy's jack would bet that card for the twelfth trick.

But when the ace of clubs was played, Mr. Champion showed out of that suit too. Another chance gone.

"Looks like I'm going to have to play my best to make this one," Mr. Masters remarked.

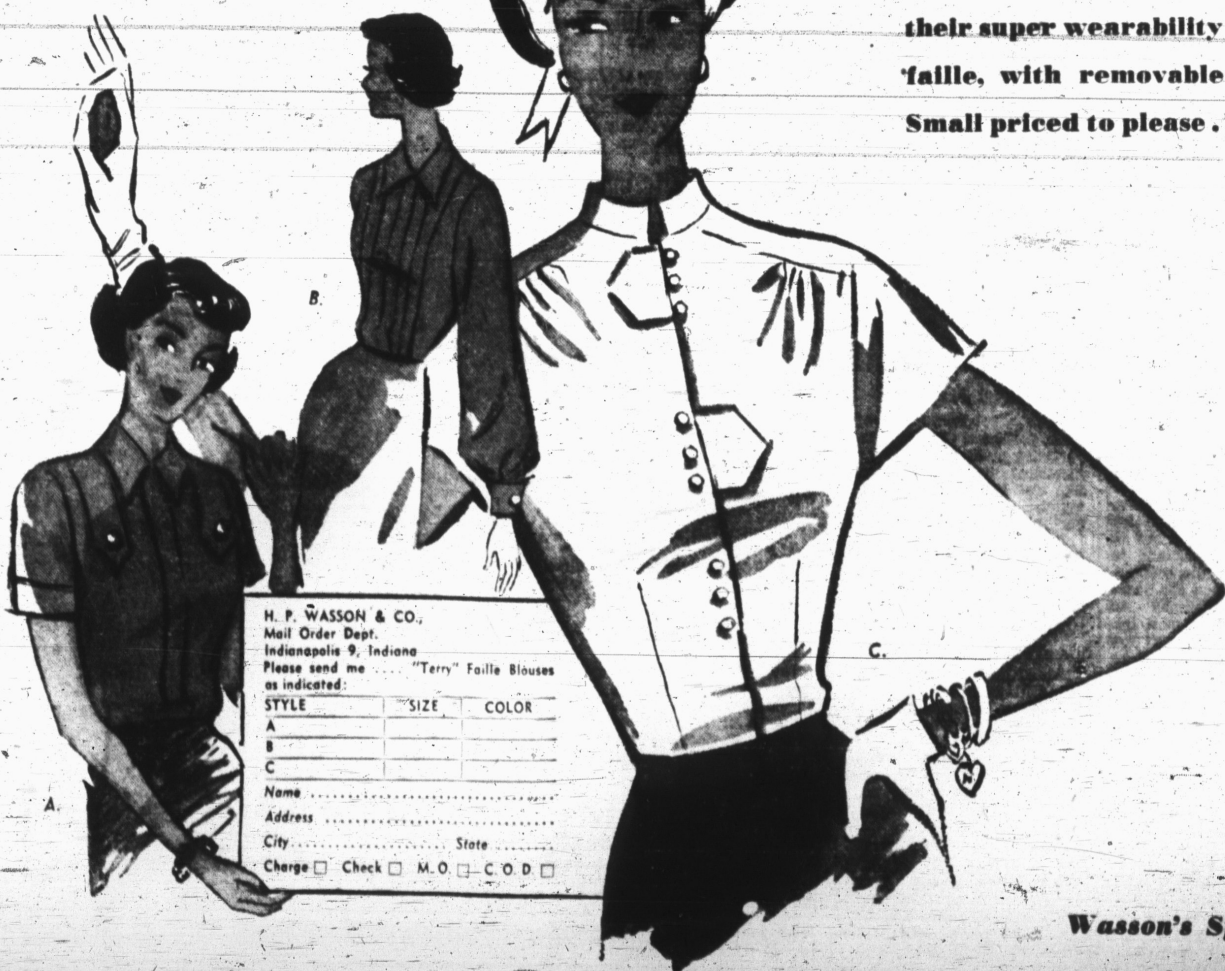

After a little thought he played the king of hearts and entered dummy with a small heart to the jack. Then he led dummy's king of spades on which he discarded the ace of hearts.

Mr. Champion won with the ace of spades and had to put dummy back in, since he had nothing left but spades and hearts. Mr. Masters discarded his two losing clubs on the good major suit trumps.
