E. W. Makes Up With England

Apologizes for Remarks About British Women

By Earl Wilson

NEW YORK, Sept. 2—I saw where Cardinal Spellman and Eleanor Roosevelt made up—and I thought, "Shucks, why don't I make up with England?"

So, you English gals who I called skinny and scrawny, I get down on my creaky knees and most humbly and abjectly apologize.

I was a cad, a bounder and a louse. If you want me to, I'll write "I'm sorry" on the blackboard 500 times.

Piqued at a British reporter who twitted Bo-Be Shopp (Miss Lash) don't eat enough, but they're America) about her "surplus fat," satisfied.

I'll up and write that English babes are "emaciated Eves, underfed, fence-railish and tooth-apiece . . . Oh, not fresh eggs, pickish"—and that it takes three or four of them to be as plump as an umbrella.

I was kidding—but I offended some splendid food-rationed women who'd felt war too close, able to see my bulges I brought back from England!

I should have zippered my kiss. The mountain of vitriolic mail from enraged Englishwomen—astounding—loyal to Britain led O. K. I will. The English girls are so voluptuous, courageous and the Month: "Passed unanimous

I'm not even going to say that I was right (although of course I was), because I want to lead a movement for a "Press Peace" between America and England.

FAMOUS British actress Lilli Palmer who is just back from England—fatter than when she went there a few weeks ago—as I said—it's because GIs married off all the English gals, and left them no choice.

"Skinny!" she said. "If you were writing about an American girl, you'd call her 'slim' and sylph-like."

I would too. I have!

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Gene Williams, interviewed for a magazine story, was asked, "What do you think of skirts?" "Oh, I like

"But they don't, do they?"

Miss Palmer them," he said, "but wouldn't it be more polite to call them women?"

The Midnight Earl

WHAT'S HOT: A spokesman for the St. Louis Cards claims that President Truman has already reserved seats for the first games in the event that St. Louis wins the pennant . . . George Schrafft collapsed and was taken to Doctors' Hospital, where he's allowed no visitors. . . . Martha Raye

Charles is taking up golf . . . Frank Buck will make another movie in the spring . . . Movie Amsterdam's caddy convertible was stolen in Forest Hills.

Mary Pickford's recovering from a slight case of flu . . . Martha Raye's nighty ball of fire at the Riviera.

Wish I'd Said That

BUDDY HENDERSON: "What today's girls can't attract with a high intellect, they get with a low neckline." That's Earl, brother.
