A few minutes after she appeared at the station, Mr. Johnson drove up. He had decided to check the police headquarters here "on a hunch."

Council to Act On Homes, Rents

City Council member

Propose Establishing Housing Authority
City Council cleared the path today for public hearings on two controversial topics — low cost housing and rent decontrol.

The council sidestepped both issues during the summer months, working almost exclusively on preparing the city's record $17 million budget and routine business.

Last night, however, following a report by Councilman Joseph Wallace, Democrat Housing Committee chairman, the council instructed the City Legal Department to draft a resolution directing Mayor Feeney to appoint a five-man Housing Authority.

Council President Christian J. Emhardt said that a public hearing on low-cost housing would be held in about a month.

Petition for Decontrol
A public hearing on rent decontrol was also planned after council was presented a petition, signed by more than 5000 landlords, tenants and property owners, urging the lifting of rent controls.

Council members expressed the possibility that public hearings on the two subjects might be held at the same time because of the similarity of issues.

Public hearings must be advertised at least 10 days in advance of being held, City Clerk Richard Stewart said.

Creation of a public housing authority would make the city eligible to share in the federal government's multi-billion dollar rent housing program.

Establishment of a housing authority here has been urged by veterans' groups and civic organizations and labor groups.

Hold Back on Bill

In other city business, council held up action on a request to pay a $7500 legal bill for the Indianapolis Redevelopment Commission.

Councilman Seidensticker complained that the sticker clearance agency had incurred the fee without council's permission.
