Your Marriage: By Samuel and Esther Kling— Club Members Look Like Good Bets for Matrimony

Q—Is it wise to marry a "joiner"?
A—Very much so. The more organizations a man or woman is a member of before marriage, the better adjustment he or she is likely to make afterward.
An authoritative study of over 500 couples bears this out. Men who were members of three or more organizations before marriage, generally made the best adjustment later.
Those who belonged to two clubs made the next best showing. Those who belonged to one organization were next. Where the men belonged to no club before marriage, they made the poorest showing afterward.
What is true of men is almost equally true of women. Those affiliated with three or more clubs before marriage made the best marital adjustment. Women who belonged to two organizations made the next best. Whether a woman belonged to one or no organization apparently made little difference.

All this means that club membership is almost as important in determining future marital success as any other single factor. The reason is clear. Joiners are usually sociable people who get along well with others. Since they are able to get along well with their fellow men, they're usually able to get along well with their mates.

Q—Should a wife give up her job if it reacts unfavorably on her husband?
A—Yes, if she wants to preserve her marriage.
Many men get a feeling of inferiority when their wives are successful in the business or professional world. This loss of confidence often makes husbands lose ambition and the result is they lag far behind their wives. Every wife must remember she has to contend with the male ego. If it's such that the husband can't stand his wife's business superiority, he becomes resentful and embittered—and this is reflected both in his work and in the marriage relationship itself.

The wife is then faced with a choice: She must either bow to her husband's ego and give up her work, or continue with her career, knowing that it will inevitably lead to the break-up of the marriage.

Ask Mrs. Manners— 'Mother Thinks' Brings A Rocky Marriage

DEAR MRS. MANNERS:
"MOTHER THINKS..." That's what I hear day after day, from my wife.

Her mother lives blocks away but figuratively she eats with us, sleeps with us, and rules us with an iron hand. My wife has never really left home.

"Mother thinks you should change jobs," I changed, to stop because you haven't introduced him to your mother and stepfather. Tell him, casually, that your stepfather drinks, but let him discover the quantity for himself. He'll remember that he's your stepfather, not your real father, and expect you to be like your mother, if he is serious about you.

Let Mrs. Manners and readers of the column share your problems. Write in care of The Times, 214 W. Maryland St.

Woman and Girl Suffer Broken Arms

A housewife and a 13-year-old girl received broken arms in accidents, police reported today.
Mrs. Mable Jones, 60, of 339 N. Noble St., was injured late yesterday when she was struck by a bicycle while standing on the sidewalk at New York and Noble Sts. The bicycle was being ridden by Larry Stock, 9, of 627 Lockerbie St., police said.
Hester Normington, 2323 Churchman Ave., fractured her left arm when she fell from a swing in the rear yard of her home. Both victims were released after treatment at General Hospital.

Dated 3 Years
I'VE DATED a boy three years. Our love for each other is a good, clean and respectful love, though we have never discussed marriage.
He keeps hinting to me that he'd like to meet my mother and stepfather, which is only proper. I'd be happy to invite him but, Mrs. Manners, my stepfather drinks heavily and can be so embarrassing. Do you think I should tell the boy about him or invite him and let him find out for himself?

Mother is the most wonderful person in the world, and I have prayed that my stepfather would quit drinking and live a good, clean life and try to make her happier.
Please help me as I have so much faith in what you say.
