

Ask Mrs. Manners—

Wife Determined to Keep Hubby

DEAR MRS. MANNERS:
SOME MEN are so stupid and egotistical they can't see day-light!

My husband and I, through misunderstanding, grew cold to each other. He stepped out. It was my fault as much as his. I had neglected him.

We would have smoothed out things sooner if the girl he dated hadn't tried to break up his home. I can't convince him her remarks were the direct cause of our quarrels.

He said she knew she didn't have a chance. (Oh, yeah! What woman stays interested in a man when she thinks she's out of the picture?) Maybe she didn't pray but she worked on him. Another woman swiped her husband. Though she tried to do the same to me, my husband felt sorry for her.

She said he was lucky to be happily married and have a home. "Gee, what she'd give to have all that." (Poor her!) "He was a real catch for any woman—so good looking, so wonderful. She could have other men but the one she really wanted (sigh) she couldn't have."

He lashed out at me that lots of women would be tickled to see him, too stupid to see she was causing the tension. He became sarcastic, believing I was an ungrateful wife—his talents were wasted!

I found out—perhaps too soon. Maybe he would have tired of her and eventually quit. That would have been better. There would have been no doubt the affair was over.

We straightened out our differences. He is a changed man—

him. She may get away with "working him over" again if you don't stay in line. You're out in front now—you're victorious. You wouldn't be if you lost him.

Take It Easy

MY DAUGHTER - IN - LAW

didn't let me be a mother to her. She is breaking my heart.

I've done "everything" to make friends with her. I gave little teas for her, so she'd make friends after her marriage. I bake enough for both our families. I fix it so she never has to cook on Sundays. She can come to our house. Every time I have a luncheon for my club I ask her. I like to buy her little things for herself and her house when we go downtown. I drop in and chat often so she won't work so hard.

The truth is that the honeymoon represents a rather difficult period of adjustment. It's the time when two people first live together in complete intimacy. No matter how well newlyweds are matched, and no matter how much they are in love, there is bound to be tension and anxiety.

Less "taking her over" might win her over. She's been without family "roots" for years. She can't start them overnight. She's probably been independent and self-sufficient, by necessity. All the suggestions you impose on her startle her—maybe irritate her.

Besides, she's a bride. She wants to have Sunday dinner at home—she wants some privacy. She wants to choose her clothes and furnish her house. She wants to run her house herself.

Try to figure out what SHE would enjoy—and do it over her. She needs some of her old life. A sudden transition is hard to make. You aren't making it—she is. Take it easy.

Let Mrs. Manners and readers of the column share your problems. Write in care of The Times, 214 W. Maryland St.

HAT
FELTS
for FALL
your better

HARRY LEVINSON
III. at Market • 37 N. Penn.

NO APPOINTMENT NECESSARY!

Hours, 8 a. m. to 5:30 p. m.

Every day—Open Monday

Evenings Until 8:30

Open All Day Wednesday

DR. DAVID TAVEL

—OPTOMETRIST—

SERVICE OPTICAL CO.

Claypool Hotel Bldg.

116 W. WASHINGTON ST.

MOON TURNS ON AXIS
The moon turns on its axis in the same period (about 27½ days) as that in which it revolves around the earth, so that it always keeps the same face toward us.

Of course, the neurotic who's always overwhelmed by doubts about his ability to retain the love of a mate may still suffer physical disturbances.

The fact that love itself doesn't go hand in hand with loss of appetite and sleeplessness is evidenced by what usually happens after marriage. Once you're secure in your love, there is release of nervous tension and a resumption of normal living habits.

Try to figure out what SHE would enjoy—and do it over her. She needs some of her old life. A sudden transition is hard to make. You aren't making it—she is. Take it easy.

Less "taking her over" might win her over. She's been without family "roots" for years. She can't start them overnight. She's probably been independent and self-sufficient, by necessity. All the suggestions you impose on her startle her—maybe irritate her.

Besides, she's a bride. She wants to have Sunday dinner at home—she wants some privacy. She wants to choose her clothes and furnish her house. She wants to run her house herself.

Try to figure out what SHE would enjoy—and do it over her. She needs some of her old life. A sudden transition is hard to make. You aren't making it—she is. Take it easy.

Less "taking her over" might win her over. She's been without family "roots" for years. She can't start them overnight. She's probably been independent and self-sufficient, by necessity. All the suggestions you impose on her startle her—maybe irritate her.

Besides, she's a bride. She wants to have Sunday dinner at home—she wants some privacy. She wants to choose her clothes and furnish her house. She wants to run her house herself.

Try to figure out what SHE would enjoy—and do it over her. She needs some of her old life. A sudden transition is hard to make. You aren't making it—she is. Take it easy.

Less "taking her over" might win her over. She's been without family "roots" for years. She can't start them overnight. She's probably been independent and self-sufficient, by necessity. All the suggestions you impose on her startle her—maybe irritate her.

Besides, she's a bride. She wants to have Sunday dinner at home—she wants some privacy. She wants to choose her clothes and furnish her house. She wants to run her house herself.

Try to figure out what SHE would enjoy—and do it over her. She needs some of her old life. A sudden transition is hard to make. You aren't making it—she is. Take it easy.

Less "taking her over" might win her over. She's been without family "roots" for years. She can't start them overnight. She's probably been independent and self-sufficient, by necessity. All the suggestions you impose on her startle her—maybe irritate her.

Besides, she's a bride. She wants to have Sunday dinner at home—she wants some privacy. She wants to choose her clothes and furnish her house. She wants to run her house herself.

Try to figure out what SHE would enjoy—and do it over her. She needs some of her old life. A sudden transition is hard to make. You aren't making it—she is. Take it easy.

Less "taking her over" might win her over. She's been without family "roots" for years. She can't start them overnight. She's probably been independent and self-sufficient, by necessity. All the suggestions you impose on her startle her—maybe irritate her.

Besides, she's a bride. She wants to have Sunday dinner at home—she wants some privacy. She wants to choose her clothes and furnish her house. She wants to run her house herself.

Try to figure out what SHE would enjoy—and do it over her. She needs some of her old life. A sudden transition is hard to make. You aren't making it—she is. Take it easy.

Less "taking her over" might win her over. She's been without family "roots" for years. She can't start them overnight. She's probably been independent and self-sufficient, by necessity. All the suggestions you impose on her startle her—maybe irritate her.

Besides, she's a bride. She wants to have Sunday dinner at home—she wants some privacy. She wants to choose her clothes and furnish her house. She wants to run her house herself.

Try to figure out what SHE would enjoy—and do it over her. She needs some of her old life. A sudden transition is hard to make. You aren't making it—she is. Take it easy.

Less "taking her over" might win her over. She's been without family "roots" for years. She can't start them overnight. She's probably been independent and self-sufficient, by necessity. All the suggestions you impose on her startle her—maybe irritate her.

Besides, she's a bride. She wants to have Sunday dinner at home—she wants some privacy. She wants to choose her clothes and furnish her house. She wants to run her house herself.

Try to figure out what SHE would enjoy—and do it over her. She needs some of her old life. A sudden transition is hard to make. You aren't making it—she is. Take it easy.

Less "taking her over" might win her over. She's been without family "roots" for years. She can't start them overnight. She's probably been independent and self-sufficient, by necessity. All the suggestions you impose on her startle her—maybe irritate her.

Besides, she's a bride. She wants to have Sunday dinner at home—she wants some privacy. She wants to choose her clothes and furnish her house. She wants to run her house herself.

Try to figure out what SHE would enjoy—and do it over her. She needs some of her old life. A sudden transition is hard to make. You aren't making it—she is. Take it easy.

Less "taking her over" might win her over. She's been without family "roots" for years. She can't start them overnight. She's probably been independent and self-sufficient, by necessity. All the suggestions you impose on her startle her—maybe irritate her.

Besides, she's a bride. She wants to have Sunday dinner at home—she wants some privacy. She wants to choose her clothes and furnish her house. She wants to run her house herself.

Try to figure out what SHE would enjoy—and do it over her. She needs some of her old life. A sudden transition is hard to make. You aren't making it—she is. Take it easy.

Less "taking her over" might win her over. She's been without family "roots" for years. She can't start them overnight. She's probably been independent and self-sufficient, by necessity. All the suggestions you impose on her startle her—maybe irritate her.

Besides, she's a bride. She wants to have Sunday dinner at home—she wants some privacy. She wants to choose her clothes and furnish her house. She wants to run her house herself.

Try to figure out what SHE would enjoy—and do it over her. She needs some of her old life. A sudden transition is hard to make. You aren't making it—she is. Take it easy.

Less "taking her over" might win her over. She's been without family "roots" for years. She can't start them overnight. She's probably been independent and self-sufficient, by necessity. All the suggestions you impose on her startle her—maybe irritate her.

Besides, she's a bride. She wants to have Sunday dinner at home—she wants some privacy. She wants to choose her clothes and furnish her house. She wants to run her house herself.

Try to figure out what SHE would enjoy—and do it over her. She needs some of her old life. A sudden transition is hard to make. You aren't making it—she is. Take it easy.

Less "taking her over" might win her over. She's been without family "roots" for years. She can't start them overnight. She's probably been independent and self-sufficient, by necessity. All the suggestions you impose on her startle her—maybe irritate her.

Besides, she's a bride. She wants to have Sunday dinner at home—she wants some privacy. She wants to choose her clothes and furnish her house. She wants to run her house herself.

Try to figure out what SHE would enjoy—and do it over her. She needs some of her old life. A sudden transition is hard to make. You aren't making it—she is. Take it easy.

Less "taking her over" might win her over. She's been without family "roots" for years. She can't start them overnight. She's probably been independent and self-sufficient, by necessity. All the suggestions you impose on her startle her—maybe irritate her.

Besides, she's a bride. She wants to have Sunday dinner at home—she wants some privacy. She wants to choose her clothes and furnish her house. She wants to run her house herself.

Try to figure out what SHE would enjoy—and do it over her. She needs some of her old life. A sudden transition is hard to make. You aren't making it—she is. Take it easy.

Less "taking her over" might win her over. She's been without family "roots" for years. She can't start them overnight. She's probably been independent and self-sufficient, by necessity. All the suggestions you impose on her startle her—maybe irritate her.

Besides, she's a bride. She wants to have Sunday dinner at home—she wants some privacy. She wants to choose her clothes and furnish her house. She wants to run her house herself.

Try to figure out what SHE would enjoy—and do it over her. She needs some of her old life. A sudden transition is hard to make. You aren't making it—she is. Take it easy.

Less "taking her over" might win her over. She's been without family "roots" for years. She can't start them overnight. She's probably been independent and self-sufficient, by necessity. All the suggestions you impose on her startle her—maybe irritate her.

Besides, she's a bride. She wants to have Sunday dinner at home—she wants some privacy. She wants to choose her clothes and furnish her house. She wants to run her house herself.

Try to figure out what SHE would enjoy—and do it over her. She needs some of her old life. A sudden transition is hard to make. You aren't making it—she is. Take it easy.

Less "taking her over" might win her over. She's been without family "roots" for years. She can't start them overnight. She's probably been independent and self-sufficient, by necessity. All the suggestions you impose on her startle her—maybe irritate her.

Besides, she's a bride. She wants to have Sunday dinner at home—she wants some privacy. She wants to choose her clothes and furnish her house. She wants to run her house herself.

Try to figure out what SHE would enjoy—and do it over her. She needs some of her old life. A sudden transition is hard to make. You aren't making it—she is. Take it easy.

Less "taking her over" might win her over. She's been without family "roots" for years. She can't start them overnight. She's probably been independent and self-sufficient, by necessity. All the suggestions you impose on her startle her—maybe irritate her.

Besides, she's a bride. She wants to have Sunday dinner at home—she wants some privacy. She wants to choose her clothes and furnish her house. She wants to run her house herself.

Try to figure out what SHE would enjoy—and do it over her. She needs some of her old life. A sudden transition is hard to make. You aren't making it—she is. Take it easy.

Less "taking her over" might win her over. She's been without family "roots" for years. She can't start them overnight. She's probably been independent and self-sufficient, by necessity. All the suggestions you impose on her startle her—maybe irritate her.

Besides, she's a bride. She wants to have Sunday dinner at home—she wants some privacy. She wants to choose her clothes and furnish her house. She wants to run her house herself.

Try to figure out what SHE would enjoy—and do it over her. She needs some of her old life. A sudden transition is hard to make. You aren't making it—she is. Take it easy.

Less "taking her over" might win her over. She's been without family "roots" for years. She can't start them overnight. She's probably been independent and self-sufficient, by necessity. All the suggestions you impose on her startle her—maybe irritate her.

Besides, she's a bride. She wants to have Sunday dinner at home—she wants some privacy. She wants to choose her clothes and furnish her house. She wants to run her house herself.

Try to figure out what SHE would enjoy—and do it over her. She needs some of her old life. A sudden transition is hard to make. You aren't making it—she is. Take it easy.

Less "taking her over" might win her over. She's been without family "roots" for years. She can't start them overnight. She's probably been independent and self-sufficient, by necessity. All the suggestions you impose on her startle her—maybe irritate her.

Besides, she's a bride. She wants to have Sunday dinner at home—she wants some privacy. She wants to choose her clothes and furnish her house. She wants to run her house herself.

Try to figure out what SHE would enjoy—and do it over her. She needs some of her old life. A sudden transition is hard to make. You aren't making it—she is. Take it easy.

Less "taking her over" might win her over. She's been without family "roots" for years. She can't start them overnight. She's probably been independent and self-sufficient, by necessity. All the suggestions you impose on her startle her—maybe irritate her.

Besides, she's a bride. She wants to have Sunday dinner at home—she wants some privacy. She wants to choose her clothes and furnish her house. She wants to run her house herself.

Try to figure out what SHE would enjoy—and do it over her. She needs some of her old life. A sudden transition is hard to make. You aren't making it—she is. Take it easy.

Less "taking her over" might win her over. She's been without family "roots" for years. She can't start them overnight. She's probably been independent and self-sufficient, by necessity. All the suggestions you impose on her startle her—maybe irritate her.

Besides, she's a bride. She wants to have Sunday dinner at home—she wants some privacy. She wants to choose her clothes and furnish her house. She wants to run her house herself.

Try to figure out what SHE would enjoy—and do it over her. She needs some of her old life. A sudden transition is hard to make. You aren't making it—she is. Take it easy.

Less "taking her over" might win her over. She's been without family "roots" for years. She can't start them overnight. She's probably been independent and self-sufficient, by necessity. All the suggestions you impose on her startle her—maybe irritate her.

Besides, she's a bride. She wants to have Sunday dinner at home—she wants some privacy. She wants to choose her clothes and furnish her house. She wants to run her house herself.

<p