Car Crashes Kill Student, Two Others

3 Hurt in Mishap Near Earlham College Over Week-End

Three men including an Earlham College sophomore were killed in week-end highway accidents, state police reported today.

John C. Hendren, 19, Grosse Pointe, Mich., died last night after the car in which he was riding with four other Earlham students was struck by another car.

Mr. Hendren, police said, was riding in the rumble seat of an old model car when the accident occurred near the college campus. The other occupants of the car also were injured, but not seriously, police said.

Police at Richmond said they were preparing reckless homicide charges against Obe Murphy, 44, Richmond, driver of the other car. Murphy, police charged, was driving under the influence of liquor.

Blinded By Lights

In an accident near Knox, Charles Schnake, 26, was killed yesterday, when his automobile overturned when he was blinded by the lights of a car going in the opposite direction.

A friend riding with him, Robert Provack, 22, was taken to the Holy Family Hospital in La Porte, for treatment of injuries received in the accident.

Other Peters, 44, was killed yesterday when he lost control of his automobile near St. Meinrad, state police said.

Meanwhile, in a concerted drive to weed out school busses which do not comply with Indiana safety regulations, State Police today began their annual inspection of all school vehicles.

Seal to Protect Pupils

Opening of the drive against dilapidated vehicles used in transporting school children, was announced by State Police Superintendent Arthur M. Thurston.

"We cannot afford to trifle with the safety and welfare of thousands of school children," Mr. Thurston declared.

School busses found unsafe or obsolete, Mr. Thurston said, will be condemned and the township trustee ordered to remove the vehicle from service until it meets state school bus safety committee specifications. Vehicles will be rechecked by troopers after repairs are made, the superintendent said.

Here's the First Dog to Identify

Puppy Contest Entry No. 1 . . . The dog youngsters are to identify today to compete in The Times Puppy Contest.

Boys, Girls Have Chance To Win 4 Pedigreed Pups

Clip the Picture, Write Facts About Breed And Send It in When Contest Ends

By ART WRIGHT

Today The Times offers the first entry in the Puppy Contest. Clip this picture and paste it on a sheet of paper. Underneath write the dog's breed and tell some of the facts about the breed, its origin and characteristics. Also complete this statement in 25 additional words, or less: "I like a (breed of dog) best because . . ."

Each day this week, through Sunday, clip the entry from The Times. Do not mail any of the entries until the contest closes. Then send all of the sheets together by midnight Sunday to The Puppy Contest, Indianapolis Times, 214 W. Maryland St.

The boy and girl submitting the best entries each will receive a $100 pedigree puppy and will be king and queen of the Hoosier Kennel Club's annual All-Breed Dog Show in the Manufacturers Building, at the State Fairgrounds. The boy and girl submitting the second best entries each will receive a $50 pedigree puppy.

Charles E. Dietz Rites Wednesday

Charles E. (Ed) Dietz, retired shipping clerk who died yesterday in his home, 541 N. Hamilton Ave., will be buried in Crown Hill after services at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday in the Harry W. Moore Peace Chapel.

The Rev. Frederick Daries, pastor of the Zion Evangelical Reformed Church, of which he was a member, will officiate.

Born in Madison, Ind., Mr. Dietz had lived in Indianapolis for 61 years. When he retired in 1937, he had been a shipping clerk for the Century Baking Co. for 19 years. He was a member of the Brotherhood of the Zion Evangelical Reformed Church. He was 76.

Surviving are his wife, Linda; two daughters, Mrs. Martha Lewis and Mrs. Catherine Woegner, and four grandchildren, all of Indianapolis.

Newspaper Printers End Chicago Strike

New Contract Meets T-H Requirements, Grants Union Security

CHICAGO, Sept. 19 (UPI)—AFL union printers returned to the composing rooms of five newspapers for the first time in 22 months today after voting 2,187 to 279 to end their strike that began as a protest to the Taft-Hartley Act.

The printers, members of the AFL International Typographical Union, agreed yesterday to accept a $10 weekly raise and a compromise system of union and job security that did not conflict with either the Taft-Hartley law or the Union's by-laws.

John Plich, president of Chicago Local 16, told the cheering printers that the settlement was a "victory" for the union.

Newspaper executives said it would take about three weeks to convert completely from the photoengraving system of printing they had used during the strike to the regular movable-type system.

Some of the men went into the shops last night to begin preparing linotypes and type fonts for service. They had been packed away during the work stoppage.

Union Security at Issue

Mr. Plich said that printers who moved away during the strike would be given a chance to return to their jobs here within 15 days after receiving notice.

The $10 raise the printers accepted was offered by the newspapers and rejected by the men six months ago. But the chief issue lay in the matter of union and job protection.

Under the agreement, composing room foremen—who are union members—will have sole authority for hiring workers but "membership or non-membership in a labor organization shall not be a factor in hiring."

That provision prevented violation of the Taft-Hartley clause outlawing the closed shop which was traditional with the ITU for almost 100 years. Essentially, the agreement was the same as was reached by New York newspapers and printers last year.

The agreement provided that an ITU card would be one evidence of a printer's ability for employment but not the only one. Foremen also may accept letters of recommendation from other employers or other evidence.

Struck Work Banned

The printers won the right not to handle struck work and to have jurisdiction over employees hired to man teletype-setting machinery if it is installed. The publishers agreed that if they installed such machinery they would give the union six months notice so it could train its own members to handle the jobs.

Newspapers involved in the dispute were the Chicago Tribune, Daily News, Sun-Times, Herald-American and Journal of Commerce. They reported that their circulation held steady during the strike and that advertising increased.

6 DIE IN TRUCK PLUNGE

NEWAYGO, Mich., Sept. 19 (UPI)—Two men and four women were drowned today when a truck carrying 19 union workers crashed through a guard rail on an open bridge into the Muskegon River. The truck driver, William Jones, 44, told state police his brakes failed.

A retired employee of the Fortville Millworks, Mr. Deakyne lived here 45 years. He was a member of the Masonic Lodge and the Methodist Church.

Survivors include three sons, Hollis Deakyne, Alexandria, Dr. Byron J. Deakyne, Fortville and Dr. Watson S. Deakyne, Indianapolis; a brother, F. N. Deakyne, Sheridan, and five grandchildren.
