

In Hollywood— Reunion For Nancy

Miss Kelly May Work With
2 Ex-Husbands in 'Wrong Guy'

By Erskine Johnson

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 28.—If Nancy Kelly accepts the feminine lead in "Wrong Guy," they'll have the plot for another movie. She'll be making screen love to her ex-husband, Edmond O'Brien. Photographing both of them will be another one of Nancy's ex-husbands, Fred Jackman.

ELIZABETH TAYLOR will get a concentrated buildup at M-G-M. The front office boys agree she's the studio's hottest boxoffice property. The reason Elizabeth and Bill Pawley temporarily called off their engagement: Young love and careers seldom mix.

ANOTHER RUMOR that Wanda Hendrix and Audie Murphy had separated. I talked to them in Cedar City, Utah, where they're working in "Sierra." Only comment was: "No further comment." But I'm not counting on it.

HAROLD LLOYD handed Junior his famous pair of horn-rimmed spectacles. Junior tried them on, smiled and handed them back.

"No, thanks," Junior said. "I'm not cashing in on the act."

Mama hugged him and grand-ma kissed him.

The whole Lloyd family was seeing Harold Jr. off to be a movie star. He was headed for a Monroe, Mich., location and the starring role in "A Dog's Life," which, ironically, Junior has never led.

The plot of the film sounds like one of his dad's old pictures—Junior plays a young fellow who can't keep a job because of his passion for chasing fire trucks.

Junior is 18 and handsome and egged and has been chasing a film career ever since he can remember. He made his film debut just recently in Goldwyn's "With All My Love."

BUT "A Dog's Life" is the big break. Junior had quite a job getting a job in pictures. No one took him seriously. "All they'd say was, 'You're too big' or 'You're too small' or 'How's your father'?"

Junior kept trying. He worked in a commercial short and made $80. He directed a play at Beverly Hills high school and his mother came and she was surprised to see one of her fur coats walking across the stage. Junior had borrowed it for his leading lady.

Then came the big break and Junior joined John Barrymore Jr. and Harry Carey Jr. in footstep following. There's no business like show business to Hollywood's second generation.

MAE WEST has a film deal cooking to play the role of a Mississippi River gambling boat queen. Those rumors about the rifting of David O. Selznick and Jennifer Jones are getting stronger despite their denials... Lynn Bari will try for a film comeback via a road tour of the play, "Light Up the Sky." Why Lynn has trouble landing a film
