

Air Chief Blasts Critics of A-Bomb

Charges Admirals Imperil Security

Mr. Symington read a letter from Lt. Gen. H. R. Harmon of the Air Force, who headed the committee. Gen. Harmon said Adm. Denfield, whom he named directly, seemed to "have left the impression in press and perhaps congressional circles that the conclusions of my committee were such as to minimize if not to discredit the military effectiveness of the air atomic operations under consideration."

Any such conclusion is "wholly at variance with the conclusions of the committee," Gen. Harmon said.

Mr. Symington denied Adm. Radford's contention that the Air Force proposes an "atomic blitz" to win a "quick, easy and painless war."

He said the Navy testimony revealed details about newest airplanes and about methods by which the United States would be defended in wartime. This adds the enemy to develop a strategic plan when "in this atomic age, the aggressor always has the great advantage of initiative," Mr. Symington said.

Mr. Symington recalled, without naming names, the testimony of Adm. Radford and Adm. Louis Denfield, Chief of Naval Operations, that they learned of expanded B-36 purchases last January by reading the newspapers.

They should have "looked up the facts"—"known to any interested person, in the Navy, as well as in the Air Force, Mr. Symington said.

He said the Navy is represented on many boards which survey such orders and had plenty of time to voice objections.

An "equally false story" which is "ridiculous on the face of it," is that B-36 purchases over-emphasize strategic bombing and put all our eggs in one basket, Mr. Symington said.

He repeated previous state-

Welfare Head Asks $348,300

Requests totaling $514,805.40 in additional appropriations were asked today of the County Council by various county agency heads.

Top item on the list of requests was the Welfare Department's $348,300. This was followed by the Highway Department's request of $92,450.

John Mueller, Welfare Department director, told the council that his additional budget request was reasonable in view of the upward trend of Welfare Department demands.

Today's session of the council was the first of a two-day meeting. Grants or rejections of emergency budget requests will be announced by the council tomorrow.

Members that $300 planes to be bought by the Air Force in the next three fiscal years, only 154 or 2.9 per cent, are B-36's. The cost will be 18.3 per cent, he added.

Moreover, he said, post-war B-36 purchases amount to 14 per cent of the estimated military budget for fiscal years 1949, 1950 and 1951.

Ground Broken For Butler Project

College of Pharmacy To Cost $750,000

The dedications don't stop here. Dormitories for men and women, an auditorium, a science wing for the pharmacy college and a library are all contemplated in the not-too distant future, Dr. M. O. Ross, university president, stated today.

Architectural plans, drawn up by McGuire & Shook of Indianapolis, are complete for a 200-unit girls' dormitory. Bids are expected to be let soon for this structure. University authorities hope to have this building ready for use within 14 months after construction starts sometime early in 1950.

Plan Men's Dormitory

To complement the girls' quarters, a dormitory for 200 men is also on the immediate agenda for Butler. The cost for each of these buildings will be approximately $700,000 to $800,000.

The sites of the dorms will be on Hampton Dr., west of the new student building and east of the Sigma Nu house.

The pharmacy building and its contemplated science wing and library will complete the quadrangle opposite Jordan Hall, the main center of the university, Dr. Ross asserted.

The auditorium, meanwhile, is planned across the west end of the main campus, running on a north-south axis, he stated.

Dr. Ross tempered these optimistic, but definite plans with the warning that Butler is a private institution and building measures can't be pushed too rapidly.

List of Participants

Meanwhile, at ground-breaking ceremonies this morning, participants included Dean L. Gray Burdick, chairman of the university public occasions committee, master of ceremonies; guests, Hilton U. Brown, William J. Mooney, Albert C. Fritz, Emsley W. Johnson, Sr., G. Barrett Moxley, Richard T. James, Eli Lilly, Charles J. Lynn, J. I. Holcomb, Keller T. Brock, Edward Roeseh, Wayne Warrick,

In a letter of invitation sent out to a wide mailing list, Mrs. Simpson said:

"Private enterprise and business need proper representation if we are to avoid a welfare state."

"U. S. Sen. Homer E. Capehart has demonstrated his belief in private business and this luncheon is a tribute to him by his Indiana constituents. Your presence would be an indication of approval of his efforts in your behalf."

Mrs. Simpson said committees for the testimonial luncheon would be announced later.

Rita's Director Freed From Movie Contract

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 13 (UP)—Movie mogul Louis B. Mayer was credited today with making peace in a feud between another studio and Director Charles Vidor.

Columbia Studio said it has released Mr. Vidor, actress Rita Hayworth's favorite director, from his contract in exchange for $75,000 which he will pay at $15,000 a year.
