

Cold Matches 70-Year Record

Mercury Skids To 24° at Dawn

In a mid-fall preview of winter the mercury skidded to 24 degrees at Weir Cook Airport shortly before dawn to equal a 70-year record low temperature for the date.

But in downtown Indianapolis, where the record low reading was registered in 1879, the mercury stopped its descent at 29 degrees at 5 a.m.

Heavy frost greeted communities throughout the state as November arrived in the company of the lowest temperatures of the season.

Weather experts said "nippy" fall weather, averaging one to four degrees below normal would remain with the state through Sunday.

Predict Showers Sunday

The mercury is expected to range from 33-50 north and from 38-58 in the southern portion of the state through the period.

Winds shifting to a southerly direction are expected to bring warmer temperatures to the whole state today and tonight. In a broad outline of weather for the next five days, forecasters said colder weather late tomorrow would be followed by continued cold Thursday, warmer Friday and Saturday, and colder again Sunday.

Scattered showers predicted for Sunday will bring less than 1-10 inches of water to portions of the state.

Here in Indianapolis, the mercury is expected to climb to 58 by late afternoon today, drop to 40 tonight and peak at 55 tomorrow.

The coldest spot in the state this morning was Terre Haute, with a minimum of 23 degrees. Following in the parade of low temperatures were South Bend, 24; Ft. Wayne, 25, and Evansville, 26.

Believe Injured Burglar Bled to Death in Flight

ATLANTA, Nov. 1 (UPI)—Police said today that they never caught the man who cut himself while trying to break into a grocery store here. They think it probably doesn't matter because he must be dead by now.

Officers said he left a clear-cut trail of blood over more than two miles of streets before the track disappeared.

Doctors told the police they doubted that anyone could lose that much blood and still live.

'A Bad Mistake' and 'A Pretty Mess'—

Navy Passes Out Robert Montgomery's Radio Blast At Truman for Ousting Admiral in Defense Squabble

Film Star Warns President Will Rue Day That 'Chickens Come Home to Roost'

By JIM G. LUCAS, Scripps-Howard Staff Writer
WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—The script of a bitter radio attack on President Truman and Defense Secretary Louis Johnson by Screen Star Robert Montgomery has been reproduced in quantity by the Navy's mysterious "Op-23." It was learned today.

Mr. Montgomery, a Naval Reserve officer, made his broadcast over the ABC network, Oct. 27, a few hours after Mr. Truman authorized removal of Adm. Louis Denfeld as Chief of Naval Operations.

Several hundred mimeographed copies of the address, marked "Stenciled by Op-23," later appeared at the Pentagon.

The President, Mr. Montgomery said, "has made a bad mistake. The people around him have prodded him into several bad decisions. By luck and guts, he managed to come through the last time, but this one, I have a hunch, is the one he is going to trip over." The President, he said, has not been honest, "very polite" or "particularly smart."

"How do you suppose," has asked "four million Navy veterans are going to feel when they see what happens to a fellow who has the nerve to get up and speak his convictions about national defense?" How does Mr. Truman suppose they are going to feel when they see him giving all that the brush off?"

"Yes," he said at one point, "it's a pretty mess our Commander-in-Chief has gotten us into. It may take a lot more than a former captain in the field artillery to figure this one out."

He urged his listeners, however, not to "get the idea that I'm yowling about this because I happened

A Bad Mistake

He said he hoped the President was listening "because there is something I would like to tell (him) about his political future, and that is a subject I understand Mr. Truman is very much interested in."

A servant in YOUR home

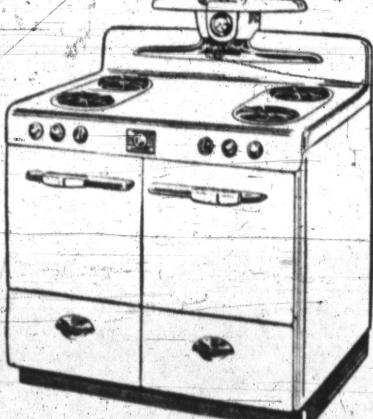

Nowadays everyone can enjoy the luxury of having a staff of servants because modern automatic GAS appliances require so little time and attention and do most of your work for you at much less cost than servants.

One of the biggest time-savers in your "mechanical domestic staff" is an Automatic GAS Range that cooks your meals automatically. "Instructing" this servant takes but a short time—only a few minutes to set your meal-to-be in the oven and set the Automatic Clock Control that turns the oven on and off automatically. That's all. Comes dinner time and your meal is ready to serve, cooked to perfection on an Automatic GAS Range. WHILE YOU WERE AWAY. No "heated up" kitchen because the heavy insulation in the Automatic Gas Range keeps the inside of the range hot, the outside cool. Variable-speed top burners offer you a variety of cooking speeds that prevent overheating and avoid fuel waste. Really a new, and oh, so pleasant experience in modern cooking is the modern Automatic GAS Range. Stop in and see it today. We will be glad to demonstrate the marvelous time-saving and labor-saving features of the about you personally, and about that bunch of little men in big jobs around you.

"Only a few people, Mr. Truman, that won't bother you much. Unless, of course, you happen to remember as far back as a year ago and realize what an awful difference just a few people make."

War Hero on the Spot

Mr. Truman's statement that he relieved Adm. Denfeld at the request of the Secretary of Navy, Mr. Montgomery said, "is a bare-faced attempt to put the blame on another man. Everybody knows that the Secretary of Navy, Mr. Matthews, was put in there by the President's man, Louis Johnson. Everybody knows that this was not his decision but the President's and Johnson's."

Cap. Burke said today he knew of no reason why the Montgomery script was mimeographed, or what distribution is planned. He suggested it might be a good idea to throw them away.

Mr. Montgomery assured President Truman there would be no uprisings.

The only thing that's going to happen," he said, "is that a few people are going to change their minds about how they feel about something else. I guess that's the hope of the President and his Secretary of Defense, who is, by the way, rapidly becoming Washington's No. 1 hatchet man.

I have a suspicion they are going to be a little surprised at how these chickens come home to roost."
