It Happened Last Night— 'Tele-phonies' Due for Shock

Girls Who Call Boys for Dates
Will End Up as Wrong Numbers

By Earl Wilson

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—A young girl who admires my beautiful manners writes to me this way:
"Is it all right for a girl to telephone a boy for a date?"
My girl friend does, and she is very popular.
No, honey, it ain't all right.
Lots of gals do it today but they're not popular. They're pushy. They'll not only get telephone hands, but they'll go through the later part of their lives getting a busy signal.

Older women, like the famous opera star Mary Garden—who was whistle-bait back around 1910—couldn't believe it when I mentioned to her that some of our young huntresses today are "tele-phonies."
"I know I wouldn't phone a man and ask him what he's doing," Miss Garden, who's 72 now, said.

"Why not?" I asked, anxious to get her reasoning.
"He might tell me," she said.
Young Peter Lawford, the movie-glamour guy, recently told a friend that he wished he'd be allowed to chase a girl just once.

"When they chase me, it's very boring," he said plaintively. Personally I've never been chased, and can't quite share his boredom. One gal wrote to me that she goes to community dances week-ends hoping to hook a guy.

"The place is full of girls with the same intent, and when a man comes into sight, they are all cut-throat and vicious competitors," she said.

"EVERYTHING'S so different here now," Miss Garden, whom I met at the Versailles with singer Jean Tennyson, told me concerning all this.

"I was supposed to be indecent when I danced with my seven vells in 'Salome,'" she said. "Chicago banned it."

"It was about 30 years ago. I took off my gold mesh dress and then under that I wore the palest of pink chiffon."

"But when you go to the light operas today and to the Folies Bergere in Paris, you see everything! Compared to the girls today, I was very dressed!"

MISS GARDEN, who's here from Aberdeen, Scotland, to lecture, wasn't exactly critical of the modern dress, however. "It's a charming epoch," she said. "The dresses show a little more of the body—but it's nice and cool in those dresses."

You see, gals, how a fine old lady feels about dolls who telephone men for dates, and you've seen how horror-struck I am. Don't do it, because the guys will lose respect for you, and, when you get older, you'll always be a wrong number.
