It Happened Last Night—
Fire 'Improves' Works of Art
Blaze Damages Canvases
By 'Famous Amateurs'

By Earl Wilson

NEW YORK, Nov. 11—Fire marred a few paintings by "Famous Amateurs" at the Celebrities' Art Show, but didn't ruin any. No, sir! (One expert said the celebrities had already ruined them when they painted them.)

Fire—which broke out at the Associated American Artists Galleries—may even have improved some of the pictures.

Personally, I enjoyed Joe DiMaggio's picture of a badly-proportioned ball bat, Ezio Pinza's painting of a fat-necked Mary Martin, Duke Ellington's painting of a nude gal with a rear that lights up, Toots Shor's impression of a drunk with just one thing missing (a face), Robert Sherwood's picture of a lion reading a book with a rose in its paw, and Dixie Gillespie's sketch of—uh—Dixie Gillespie.

Capt. Edwin Molyneux's painting of two roses became a picture of one rose after the fire. His picture was said to be the best in the exhibition.

It was all for a wonderful cause—the Urban League. The celebrities were good sports and put in a lot of work.

YET Dr. J. B. de la Faille, the Van Gogh expert, called the whole thing from a technical standpoint, a "Chamber of Horrors." He was asked whether he thought the celebrities had had the pictures ghosted.

"No, they're not good enough to be ghosted," was his unkind remark. "Well, Doc, I don't know."
