Court Halts Boy's Murder Trial

Sentence Youth Gets Reformatory Term

Special Judge Herbert Spencer halted the murder trial of 15-year-old Wiley E. Senteney Jr., today and committed him to the Indiana Boys School at Plainfield until he is 21.

The Washington High School youth, charged with the Nov. 3, 1948, slaying of James Kelly Brooks, gave his consent before the judge pronounced sentence.

Judge Spencer, using an Indiana statute dating back to 1853 sent the boy to reform school, said he was a "vicious and incorrigible youth."

The boy's companion, Mitchell K. Bryant, 16, 1527 English Ave., was acquitted of the crime by a jury in Martinsville.

Attendant Testifies

Before sentence was pronounced, Dr. Lillian Moulton, consultant at the Child Guidance Clinic at Riley Hospital, testified that young Senteney "didn't mean to kill the victim."

Dr. Moulton told the court the youth admitted stealing at intervals but said he "very definitely could be rehabilitated."

She said he had average intelligence and was an average student and attended Sunday School.

Dr. Moulton attributed his predicament to the "extreme protection" his mother used to shield him from outside and unwholesome contacts.

Her testimony revealed that young Senteney and other children in the South Side neighborhood had a place to dispose of stolen articles.

Angered, Judge Spencer interrupted and said: "Has been using these children to steal."

He turned to trial Prosecutor Lewis Murchie and asked, "Did you ever read Charles Dickens?"

The same thing happened there.
Someone is behind these boys.
He's the person who is guilty."

Judge Spencer closed the trial by ordering the youth to stand and face him.

"Do you give your consent if I sentence you to the Indiana Boys School until you are 21 years of age?" questioned the judge.

Gives His Consent

"Yes, yes," said young Senteney in a loud, determined voice.
His mother, who wept throughout the trial, looked stone-faced at the judge. His father said nothing and stared into space.

Immediately after the trial, Prosecutor Murchie asked the boy "Who put you up to steal?"

"I can't tell you," the youth said. "I would not want to get an innocent man in trouble."

Gloria Kingsbury

Dies at Age 11

Gloria Ann Kingsbury, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
John E. Kingsbury, 425 N. La-Salle St., died today in Methodist Hospital.

She was the granddaughter of Dr. John K. Kingsbury, Irvington physician, and had been ill for a year and a half.

Services were being arranged for her at Shirley Bros. Irvington Chapel. In addition to her parents, she is survived by two younger brothers, John and David Kingsbury.

Arnold Neesen, Chicago.

Bevy Anderson

Bevy E. Anderson, owner of the Aristocrat Tavern, 654 Fairfield Ave., died today in Methodist Hospital. He was 60.

Mr. Anderson, who lived in 3017 Guilford Ave. had served as bartender at the Cozy Bar, St.
Moritz Restaurant Corp. and in the Washington Hotel before becoming owner of the Aristocrat.

A native of Johnson County, he was a resident of Indianapolis for more than 35 years.

Funeral services were being arranged today at Planner & Buchanan Mortuary.

Charles Lusk

Services for Charles Lusk, 1815 Roosevelt Ave., who died yesterday in his home, were being arranged today in Harry W. Moore Peace Chapel. He was 57.

Mr. Lusk was a railroad yard conductor 25 years on the New York Central System. He was born in Casey, Ill., but lived in Indianapolis 30 years. He was a member of the Veritas Lodge, No.
608, F. & A. M.

He is survived by a daughter, Miss Dorothy Lusk; two sisters, Mrs. Marie Aldridge and Mrs.
Mildred Albert, all of Indianapolis, and three brothers, Leonard Lusk, Terre Haute, Roy Lusk, Indianapolis, and Herbert Lusk, Chicago. His wife, Catherine, died in November, 1941.

Two Boys, Farmer Drowning Victims

Lads Die as They Cut Hole in Ice to Fish

State police today reported three Indiana drownings, two in Evansville and one near Hudson.
In which two small boys and a farmer died.

A coroner's jury in Evansville yesterday ruled that Clemens Wunderlich Jr., 6, and Henry Bauer Jr., 8, drowned accidently in a small frozen pond while trying to cut a hole in the ice to fish.

A companion ran for help when he heard their cries, but a doctor and a fire department pulmотор were unable to revive the youngsters.

Tell of Warning

Their parents told the jury the boys had been warned not to go on the pond.

Gustav Hanke, 40, a farmer near Hudson, drowned in Little Turkey Lake yesterday when the ice broke as he walked out to fish, according to state police.

Merle Redding and John Lash, both of Hudson (Steuben County), were across the lake fishing when Mr. Hanke broke through but were unable to reach him in time.

Stice's Murder

Conviction Upheld

The Indiana Supreme Court today upheld the second degree murder conviction of Harry Stice, former Indianapolis prize fighter.

Stice, who formerly was known as "One Round Muldoon," was convicted in Marion County Criminal Court in the death of Olga Schwinn, 46, who was found fatally beaten in his room the night of May 8, 1947.

In the appeal, attorneys for Stice contended that the lower court had erred in failing to grant his motion for a new trial and that the evidence was insufficient to support the verdict of guilty.

The appeal also contended the defendant's constitutional rights had been violated because he was not properly represented at the trial.

The Supreme Court opinion, written by Chief Justice Paul Jasper, overruled both complaints and upheld the lower court conviction.

Order Essential, Hovde Tells Grads

Record Midyear Class Gets Purdue Diplomas

Time State Service
LAFAYETTE, Feb. 6.—Order and freedom are essential to happiness in a democratic society, 1085 graduating Purdue University students were told during 93d commencement exercises held at the school.

University President Frederick L. Hovde, the speaker, said no society can exist without order, its first requirement. When order is established, then various kinds of freedom may be permitted, he said.

"Man must answer the question of how much order and how much freedom he desires," the president declared, "and in a democracy he does this every time he votes."

The problem of world peace is essentially a problem of world order, graduating students were told.

The graduating class attending the ceremonies yesterday was the largest mid-year group in the history of the university.

Orientation for new Purdue students started here today and will continue through Wednesday.
Registration for the spring session will be held Wednesday through Friday. Classes will start Feb. 13.
