IRISH POTATO PARTY MARCH 17th

PAT O'NEAL'S HOUSE

AFTER SCHOOL 4:30-7:PM

THE ON PAPER BOW PAINT HAT GREEN

Blustery old March, the windy month, is not usually thought of as the party month, but St. Patrick's Day gives us a good excuse to get the gang together for a celebration.

Irish parties are gay, rollicking affairs that will lift even the dullest guests out of the doldrums. If you have room in your home, ask Mother to help decide how many friends you can make room for, and invite them to come about 4:30 for an after-school get-together. Everyone must bring the largest potato that they can find. Offer a prize for the biggest! Put this information on a separate tag tied to your invitation. Draw a "Paddy Hat" full of potatoes, tie on a green paper bow, and paint your announcement green.

Monday's TRY IT will tell you what games to have at your party, and also give an inexpensive dinner menu for your guests, but it will also be easy to prepare. Don't expect Mother to do all of the work, make this your party, do the work even to the cleaning up.
