ceded only in getting a small portion of the men out. The Americans then sent a third force to the south to knock out the road block.

Lt. Maddox said he also saw evidence that South Korean police had tried to stop the Communist thrust from the south. He reported he saw 22 trucks shot to pieces alongside the road three miles south of Chirye and many bodies of policemen sprawled on the road around them.

At Critical Stage
Gen. Walker, who told his men on a tour of the front that they should fight to the death rather than retreat another inch, said at his return to his command post that he was sure the American lines would hold.

"There is no point in not telling the simple truth, which is that the war has reached its critical stage," Gen. Walker said. "It definitely has. But that doesn't mean there is pessimism among our men at the front. Indeed there is none. I have complete confidence that we shall be able to hold out until sufficient strength arrives to launch a counter-offensive."

225 Plane Sorties
U. S. 8th Air Force headquarters in Korea said the Reds seeking to cut behind American lines in the southwest had been blasted with 225 fighter and bomber sorties yesterday.

Allied warplanes were hammering them again Sunday in the same area despite bad weather over most of South Korea, the spokesman said.

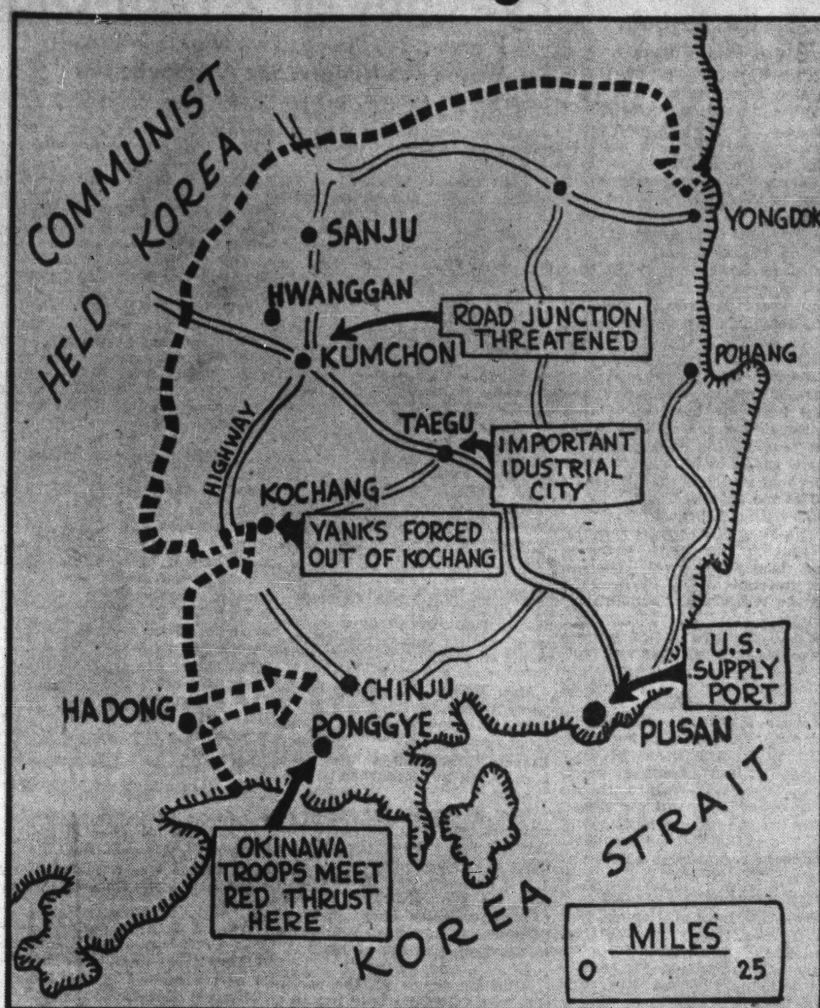

Air Force officers in Japan said, however, that weather was hampering jet fighters in their efforts to reach Korea. Some F-80's were taking off but they had been forced back by a thunderstorm between Japan and Korea. One F-80 was reported lost in a crash and its wreckage was believed sighted on Tsushima Island between Japan and Korea.

B-29's Range Far
B-29 Superforts in "some force" ranged over North Korea above the 38th Parallel, where they reported finding clear weather.

A headquarters spokesman estimated that the Communists, despite the loss of 31,000 men so far, were smashing at the American and South Korean lines with 80,000 troops in an effort to run the defenders out of Korea before reinforcements arrive.

Fresh troops were thrown into the Korean battle from the U. S. garrison on Okinawa last Wednesday.

Cut Behind Lines
The U. S. 1st Marine and 2nd Infantry Divisions also are on the high seas, racing toward Korea in fast attack transports. The two divisions left the U. S.

west coast some two weeks ago but the date of their arrival, and their landing places in Korea, are a closely-guarded secret.

(In Washington, a military spokesman said that the nation can expect word shortly of the landing of American reinforcements and fresh fighting equipment in Korea. He did not elaborate.)

Front reports said several strong forces of guerrillas cut in behind lines under cover of a driving night rain and powerful Communist attacks late Saturday on both the north and south flanks of the Hwanggan front.

But the Americans held to their muddy foxholes in the hills dominating the Pusan-Taegu highway. They had made no further retreat since they pulled out of Hwanggan after midnight Saturday and fell back to new positions some two miles farther east.

Front dispatches said Gen. Walker's fighting orders—"There is to be no retreat. Every man must fight to the death if necessary until help arrives"—had been relayed to the front lines by the U. S. 8th Army officers he addressed on a tour of American positions yesterday.

WASHINGTON, July 29 (UP)—A military spokesman said today that Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker's stand-or-die order indicates that he has decided the present defense line can be held without sacrificing too many men.

He interpreted Gen. Walker's order as "a very encouraging statement." "I don't think he (Walker) would do anything foolish," the spokesman said. "He's not going to butt heads against the North Korean forces and get a lot of troops killed, when he can't hold the line. He's certainly not going to get bull-headed and lose a lot of troops."

The Communists brought up powerful new forces of artillery and blasted the American lines throughout the night. Observers at the front said the shelling was preparatory to an anticipated full-scale attack which was expected to break out Sunday.

Among the Communist guns were 16 newly emplaced howitzers set up on an airstrip two miles south of Yongdong. It also was believed the Communists were using a railway gun, possibly the biggest seen in this war.

The big guns of the 1st Cavalry Division behind Hwanggan blasted back at the howitzers and pounded a railroad tunnel where the Communist railway gun was believed hidden.

300 Slip Through
Communist infiltrators slipped through the 1st Cavalry Division's lines under the roar of the artillery duel and Communist frontal assaults.

Front dispatches said several bands, one containing 300 men, were seen moving through the hills toward Kwan-Ni, some three miles behind the American front and five miles east of Hwanggan.

Gen. MacArthur reported in his midnight communique that the Americans had thrown back repeated Communist attempts to break through the 1st Cavalry and 25th Infantry Division lines in the Hwanggan sector.

Gen. MacArthur added that the Red sweep down the east coast and eastward along the south coast toward Pusan had made but little progress, but front reports said heavy fighting was going on along the mixed-up southern battlefield.

One report reaching Tokyo said Communist forces who yesterday captured Kochang, 32 miles southwest of Kumchong, swept 22 miles north and set up a road block in Chirye, 10 miles south of Kumchong.

At Kumchong, only 12 miles behind the American advance positions on the Hwanggan front, the Communists could cut the main Pusan-Taegu highway supplying the 1st Cavalry, 25th Infantry and 6th South Korean Divisions holding the line from Hwanggan some 40 miles north to the Hamchang area.

Man Critically Cut During Argument

James Palmer, 50, was taken to General Hospital in critical condition last night after he suffered a 12-inch long cut on his back in a fight in front of his home, 447 N. Alabama St.

Palmer told police he was cut with a pocket knife in an argument with Robert Burns, 33, of 437 N. Alabama. Burns was booked on charges of pre-assault and battery with intent to kill.

Police booked Burns' wife, Ruby, 34, on a charge of disorderly conduct. They said they heard her threaten to beat Palmer's wife, May, 35.

The squabble, police asserted, grew out of an argument over an alleged disturbance made by children.

Child Suffocated In Auto Accident

LA PORTE, July 29—A 3-year-old boy was killed by suffocation and his mother and sister seriously injured in an automobile accident a mile south of here this evening.

Ronald R. Sult Jr. was suffocated when the body of his sister, Trudy Lynn, 6, pinned him in the wreck after the car driven by their father, Ronald Sult Sr., came in contact with a truck on Ind. 4.

Mrs. Jo Ellen Sult, 26, and expecting another child within a month, was taken with her daughter, both in serious condition, to Holy Family Hospital here.

FBI Jails 2 Linked to Spy In Soviet Ring

Pair Accused Of Impeding U. S. In 'Cracking' Case

CLIFFWOOD, N. J., July 29 (UP)—A chemical engineer and his secretary, who are alleged to have covered up for a Soviet atomic spy and possibly delayed "cracking" the "Fuchs espionage ring" for two years, were arrested by FBI agents here today.

Abraham Brothman, 37, former employer of confessed spy courier Harry Gold, and Miriam Moscovitz, 34, his secretary, were arrested at the Ulster Chemical Co., which they own.

They were charged with arranging with Gold to lie to a 1947 New York grand jury investigating possible espionage.

The charges were handed down after Gold appeared before a new grand jury which convened in an unusual Saturday session in New York City.

The jury handed down indictments against the pair in a race against time. The statute of limitations on the charges runs out next Tuesday and it was indicated that only the time problem kept the jury from handing down actual espionage indictments.

Called 'Brains'

Specifically, Mr. Brothman and Miss Moscovitz were accused of setting up a false story of how Gold and Mr. Brothman met in connection with Gold's admitted spy work. Mr. Brothman also was indicted for "attempting to impede and obstruct the due administration of justice."

With Miss Moscovitz as the "brains" behind the scheme, Gold and Mr. Brothman agreed to tell the 1947 grand jury that they met through Jacob Golos, a Soviet spy now dead, instead of through Semen M. Semenov, an official of the Russian Amtorg Trading Corp., according to FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover in Washington.

Although neither the indictment nor Mr. Hoover said so in so many words, it was indicated that the "rehearsed" story may have held up the FBI investigation and that perhaps, had the true story been told, the G-men would have been able to "crack" the spy ring years earlier.

Employed Gold

Mr. Brothman, medium-built and quiet in manner, and Miss Moscovitz were arrested at about 3 p. m., Indianapolis time by the FBI.

He was taken to the Federal House of Detention in New York and she was taken to the Women's House of Detention there, pending arraignment on Monday. Mr. Brothman employed Gold in the laboratory of his engineering firm, A. Brothman Associates, Inc., until June, 1948. The laboratory is in Elmhurst, L. I. N. Y.

U. S. Attorney Irving Saypol said the indictments are based on an arrangement among Mr. Brothman, Miss Moscovitz and Gold to give identical false information to the 1947 grand jury.

Rehearse Story

He said they rehearsed their story so there would be no slip-ups before the jury. Mr. Saypol said Miss Moscovitz was charged with thinking up the scheme. The indictment also mentioned a Thomas Kiernan, identified as Mr. Brothman's attorney and a reputable man, as unwittingly becoming the go-between who assured that the stories coincided.

The indictment charged Mr. Brothman and his secretary with "conspiracy to defraud the United States in the exercise of its governmental function of administering and enforcing the criminal laws."

Anyone convicted of trying to influence any party or witness in federal court proceedings may be fined $5000 or imprisoned five years or both.

Quake Damages California Town

2500 Flee Temblor In Calipatria

CALIPATRIA, Cal., July 29 (UP)—A sharp earthquake jarred this desert town today, tumbling store fronts, shattering windows and sending some panicked residents fleeing into the streets.

Two-thirds of 50 buildings in the town of 2500 population were damaged, enough for the police department to condemn them temporarily. No injuries were reported.

The quake climaxed a series of tremors that has been shaking the Southern California area for three days.

Lighting fixtures crashed from ceilings, plaster rolled off walls and slammed to the floor in clouds of dust, chimneys fell to the ground and cracks appeared in walls and pillars of the buildings.

Police Chief Bob Merrill said none of Calipatria's structures were knocked down or destroyed completely.

But one more good jolt and there won't be any buildings left," he said.

The quake lasted about a minute and caught most residents at their Saturday breakfasts.

The shock was felt throughout Southern California and in portions of Arizona. It swayed downtown office buildings in San Diego, Cal., and was noticed at Yuma, Ariz.

ROCKFORD, Ill., July 29 (UP)—A non-denominational minister was ordered held to the county grand jury today on charges that he raped his sister-in-law and fathered her child.

Justice of the Peace Howard Hicks ordered the Rev. Robert J. Hansen, 42, held on $2500 bond for the October term of the grand jury.

His sister-in-law Miss Verna Capron, 32, charged that he raped her under threat of death in the living room of the Lighthouse Chapel and Bible School.

His wife, Mabel, has filed suit for divorce.

Man Shot to Death After Tavern Dispute

A tavern argument was climaxed by the slaying of a middle-aged man on a street corner last night. Ivory Tepey Martin, 2507 Northwestern Ave., was shot five times in the stomach by Horace Fields, 47, of 1523 N. Senate Ave.

Fields, who admitted slaying Mr. Martin, claimed the two began arguing in a tavern at 15th St. and Senate Ave., and that Mr. Martin threatened him.

Fields said he went home, came back with a gun and shot Mr. Martin.
