Quashes Charges On Beating Victim

Judge Suggests Full Investigation

testimony and what three Times witnesses reported.

Chief Rous said nothing. He then left for a meeting of the Safety Board.

After court session, Judge Howard said Chief Rous "should conduct some kind of hearing as set by the Board of Safety."

'Chief Heard Charges'

"The hearing was in open court and the head of the police department was there when accusations were made against two police officers," the judge declared. "He heard eye witnesses who saw what was described as mistreatment of the prisoner, and their action should be taken up before the Board of Safety."

Prosecutor George Dailey also chimed in with a suggestion for Chief Rous to act. He said he believed that since evidence was turned over to the police chief, the "novel case" should be referred to the Board of Safety.

Two other Times employees who witnessed the incident accompanied Mr. Young to court and heard him accuse Patrolmen Corydon and Clark. Mr. Young told the judge:

"I wish to report my version of the vicious deal which this man (Mr. Hendren) got in the presence of these two officers. He pointed to Patrolmen Corydon and Clark.

'Beat Daylights Out'

Pointing to Mr. Barker, the witness said:

"This man beat the living daylights out of him (Mr. Hendren) and kicked him. He hit him more than one time at the time these officers were there."

Mr. Hendren "was knocked down and kicked, and in the presence of police," Mr. Young declared.

Mr. Hendren was clean-shaven and wearing a white shirt, but his face still showed signs of the beating he received in the parking lot at 1 N. Capitol Ave. July 18. His left eye was still puffed.

"These bumps on the back of my head were received when I was kicked when I was down," he said.

Says Police Present

He said he was struck twice before police arrived by another parking lot attendant, Kenneth Kirk, 908 Marion Ave. He also accused Mr. Barker of hitting him "all the way back" from Block's store, where he was caught after leaving from the parking lot. He then charged policemen were present when he was beaten.

Mr. Hendren was set down on the bench in the office of the parking lot, he (Mr. Barker) knocked me off the bench."

Denies Officers There

Mr. Barker admitted striking Mr. Hendren but denied the two patrolmen were present.

Prosecuting Attorney Patrick Fisher called only one witness.

Mr. Kirk, in pressing the unsuccessful case against Mr. Hendren, Mr. Kirk testified Mr. Hendren struck him, but Mr. Hendren said it was the other way around when the judge questioned him.

Attorney Paul Rochford, who said he represented the two patrolmen, tried to participate in the questioning, but he was hushed up by the judge.

Judge Howard ordered all other witnesses—14 were scheduled in all—to leave the courtroom when Mr. Kirk took the stand. All were recalled before the bench when the prosecution rested.

"In The Middle of the 1st Block"

Deaths Running 11 Behind Last Year's

By DONNA MIKELS

In Marion County there is an exclusive "club of 11."

No one knows the identity of its membership—even the members themselves don't know they belong.

The members are 11 persons who did not die in Marion County traffic accidents from January to August of this year, in comparison to the highway fatality toll in the same period last year.

From January to August last year, 30 persons met with sudden death in traffic accidents in Marion County, outside the city limits.

So far this year the toll is 19. Thus the formation of that imaginary "Club of 11."

48 Died Last Year

In the entire year of 1949 Marion County had a traffic fatality toll of 48 persons. With the year of 1950 more than half over and the toll at less than half of last year's total record, Marion County safety officials are hoping the membership in this "survivors" club will be even greater at the end of the year.

Sheriff James F. Cunningham, who has put men never before assigned to traffic duty on emergency road patrols, said he believed his office had worked out a formula for curbing traffic deaths.

"Increased patrols plus more arrests equal slower traffic,"

"Slower traffic, fewer accidents and less serious injuries equal fewer deaths."

Double Duty for Some

To put this formula into motion, sheriff's deputies assigned to serving legal papers in the courthouse during the day have been put on uniform duty at night.

Chief Deputy Knute Dobkins and Chief Jailer Robert Murray have been heading the night patrols along with the sheriff and the trio of officers which has been on weekend patrols since the start of summer traffic.

"We're too undermanned to set up a complete network of road patrols," the sheriff said. "But you'd be surprised at the tremendous psychological value of placing a patrol car here and there and then shifting them."

"When the word gets around the cars are out making arrests, traffic just naturally slows down. There may be accidents just the same, but there's less likelihood of serious injuries."

Peril Spots Listed

Danger zones most frequently under patrol include: both west and east on U.S. 40; 42nd to 70th St. on Keystone Ave.; 42nd St. and Allisonville road where four died in one crash last year; Ind. 31 south and Shadeland Ave., a stretch frequented by youthful hot-rod drivers. Sherman Dr. and Bethel Ave. near Beech Grove are also frequently-patrolled spots.

The sheriff's office gives credit for this year's good record to its Citizens Traffic Committee, a group of 25 business leaders who devote their time to inspecting the county, making notations of safety needs and recommending improvements at monthly meetings.

These committee members many of whom have years of safety experience in industrial positions, have augmented the understaffed sheriff's office in setting up a more thorough safety program for the county.

Dangerous Day Coming

Two of the usually accident-prone holidays, Memorial Day and July 4, passed without a fatality in the county. Labor Day—another calendar date marked with skull and crossbones on safety calendars—is yet to come, and doubled road patrols are scheduled for that day.

The real goal of the sheriff's office and the deputies who work an eight-hour night after an eight-hour day with no extra pay is a "Club of 25." That's the difference between fatalities to date this year and the entire year of 1949. To achieve this, they will have to keep the rest of 1950 traffic death-free.

Deadline Is Drawing Near In Search for 'Treasure'

Holders of cardboard keys in The Times-Walt Disney Treasure Hunt have until tomorrow evening to participate in the first round distribution of gifts.

When the 10 participating stores close tomorrow evening, the original list of numbers of keys that fit the chests will be withdrawn and only the alternate numbers will be honored on Friday.

The alternate numbers have been on display at the stores since the opening of the Treasure Hunt yesterday.

List of Participants

No further numbers will be posted at the stores.

Among Treasure Hunt participants who claimed prizes yesterday after their keys opened chests in the participating stores were:

Mrs. Dorothy Morris, 2109 S. State St., received the $299.95 Philco refrigerator.

How Hunt Works

Here is how the Treasure Hunt works: Take the cardboard numbered keys which were distributed with The Times Sunday and Monday (and which may be obtained now at The Times or Indiana theaters) to one of the 10 participating stores. There check the number of the key with the list posted at that store. If the number is there, the key fits that chest.

Give the key—if the number is listed—to the store attendant, who will provide a master key. Open the chest and pull out an envelope. In the envelope is a certificate listing the prize. Take the certificate and the theater admission ticket attached to the Indiana. There the prize may be claimed immediately.

There are different numbers at each store. Participants should visit all 10 stores to "fit" their keys. The following are the only
