

Hoosier Lawmakers End Session on Time, Find Enough to Shout About

Noise and Confetti, Then a Party With Backslapping, Mark Conclusion

With a big whoop and a shower of newspaper confetti, Hoosier lawmakers noisily ended the 87th General Assembly of the State of Indiana at 11:55 p. m. last night in the House of Representatives. The Senate had adjourned four minutes earlier.

Lawmakers happily clapped each other on the back and the minority Democrats immediately invited the majority members to a farewell party in the Hotel Claypool.

No Overtime
One of the chief causes for joy-making was the fact that it was the first time in the memory of any of the current Representatives that the House had completed its session within the legal time.

Rep. Glen Slenker, GOP majority leader who has been in the legislature continuously since 1929, said that he could recall no other Assembly that had finished on time.

Overtime in the previous sessions, of course, was not official. They merely stopped the clock at 11:59 p. m. and then plodded doggedly through the extra hours that might have been needed to finish the work.

Falsie Probe
Rib-tickler of the closing minutes in the House was a report from the Natural Resources Committee asking the Speaker to appoint J. P. Cadou Jr. and Leo Scharff as a two-man investigation of the "tremendous fraud being perpetrated upon Indiana manhood" by women who wear falsies.

The committee report was adopted by a thunderous "yes" vote, only the indignant "noes" of Mr. Cadou and Mr. Scharff disrupting the unanimity.

Oh, Pappy!
Minority House Leader Dillin continually was plying with the terse question, "yet?" for the last two days of the session.

His wife went to the hospital Saturday. The Dillins are expecting another child.

The big news had not yet arrived when the session ended.

Watta Motion
Rep. John Ryan's closing comment on the session was one of lament.

He bewailed the fact that the Car With Dead Man Tagged Twice

Quiz Started in Risk Agent's Death

Sheriff Guilkey admitted he was notified to check on Mr. Kime Friday night. He said he went to a home in north Noblesville and learned that an insurance adjuster had been there Thursday.

He learned later, he said, that the adjuster was from another company and Mr. Kime had not been there. He said he advised the Kime family accordingly.

"I made the check for them but didn't pay much attention to looking for the man or the car," the Sheriff said. "I didn't take it exactly that way. I thought they wanted to know if he had been here. I checked for them."

Sheriff Guilkey emphasized that he knew nothing of the parked car and the finding of the body. "That's up to the city police. They made the investigation, he said."

Dr. C. M. Donohue, Hamilton County coroner who investigated the case, was reported "in surgery" this morning and was not immediately available. The Sheriff quoted the verdict, however, as saying Mr. Kime had been dead "from six to 16 hours" when found.

Mr. Kime resided with his family at 5235 Central Ave. He was a graduate of Northwestern University. A native of Petersburg, he had resided in Indianapolis for seven years.

Services were at 1 p. m. today, with burial in Crown Hill.

Lottery Printers' Protection Is Hit

cover only printers, these printer-distributors use it to cloak and legalize their distribution of tickets, he said.

"As stated, it gives these distributors protection from raids that have been putting sellers not also engaged in printing, out of business."

The Mayor today also said he regretted that the legislature did not see fit to pass the anti-lottery bill which would have made possession of tickets illegal.

"The city lost a potentially powerful anti-gaming weapon," he said.

Prosecutor Fairchild also said today he was "disgusted at the way the legislature kicked the bill around."

Had the bill, which outlawed possession of lottery tickets, become law, he said, he had squads alerted this morning to raid the same printers who have thwarted police by the injunction protection.

"If it had been passed before all those amendments were added, it would have made our job a lot easier," he said.

Claim Altitude Mark For 2-Seater Gliders

BISHOP, Cal., Mar. 6 (UP)—German scientist Dr. Joachim Kuettner and a Bishop flier, Robert Symons, claimed a new world's altitude record for 2-seater gliders today with a 38,200-foot flight over the Sierra Nevada Mountains.

Dr. Kuettner, attached to the U. S. Air Force research laboratories at Cambridge, Mass., said the glider could have gone even higher but its instruments failed because of an ice-up battery.

The former record of 36,100 feet was set here in 1949 by Harlan Ross and George Delbert of Bishop.

Big Budget OK Poses Two-Year State Crisis

Rep. Jess Andrew, West Point Republican, summed it up this way: "This is the big gamble bill—a big gamble that our spending program will not eat up all of our surplus built up over the years."

The legislators also went home with the uncomfortable memory of the blunt comment of Gov. Schricker, who earlier had said that such a large spending program had made "new taxes inevitable."

Court Balks Fairchild Thompson Case Move

Judge Saul I. Rabb today refused to sign a motion of Prosecutor Frank Fairchild for permission to search through items seized in the raid on lottery headquarters of Walter F. (Big Tom) Thompson.

According to law, material seized in such a manner is to be placed in the custody of the sheriff, said Judge Rabb. The Prosecutor must get permission of the sheriff in order to investigate the confiscated material, the Criminal Court 2 judge added.

Thompson is scheduled in Municipal Court 4 Friday on a traffic count and on a charge of operating a lottery. So far nothing has been filed as a result of the search on his office last week.

Report Youth Shoots Self to Avoid Army

LYNCHBURG, Va., Mar. 6 (UP)—Police said today that Charles Lee Meece, 20, shot himself in the stomach rather than take an Army physical examination.

He was in critical condition after two bullets were removed by surgery at the time he was supposed to be at the induction than that actually collected in center. Meece's brother has been reported missing in Korea.

Police Car Hits Auto, 5 Hurt

State Trooper Critically Injured

Witnesses told city police the Guilham car was flipped over when the state police car crashed into it and then turned completely around and crashed into a utility pole.

Trooper Klein was thrown clear of the police car by the impact and was pinned beneath the overturned Guilham automobile. City police rescue squads pulled him from the wreckage.

The other victims remained in the twisted wreckage of both machines, some of them unconscious. They were removed by police and ambulance attendants.

Physicians at Robert W. Long Hospital, where Trooper Klein transferred from General Hospital, said he was suffering from a back injury, a fractured left arm, lacerations about the face and body, and burns from boiling water from the wrecked car radiator.

Mrs. Wiggins received lacerations on the knee and leg plus facial and body bruises, General Hospital attaches said. She was released from the hospital this morning. Mr. Kightlinger suffered cuts on both arms, face and knees.

Police today sought to reconstruct details of the 3:15 a. m. accident.

All of the civilian victims remaining in the hospital were reported in fair condition.

City Council Extends Rent Controls 90 Days

June 30. The council's action amounts to extending rent control.

The council also approved Housing Authority action preparatory to the erection of 1500 housing units on seven locations. The action is preliminary to acquiring property.

The rent control resolution, pending before the council since Sept. 18, was passed in accordance with federal laws which permit local extension of the U. S. law due to expire Mar. 31. Pending in Congress is a 90-day extension of federal control.

In a Surprise Move
The rent measure was introduced by J. Porter Seldensticker, Democrat, in a surprise move. Efforts of Republican Donald B. Jameson to table the resolution were defeated and the resolution passed on 5-3 votes along party lines. The council's sixth Democratic member, Joseph A. Wicker, was not present.

Before the rent vote, Mr. Seldensticker called for closer cooperation between the Public Housing Authority and the Redevelopment Commission. He demanded that a final answer be determined on the possible school use of a Northwest Side slum clearance area. The Board of School Commissioners has promised a decision within a few weeks on whether part of the area will be needed for expansion of Crispus Attucks High School.

Other Action
Mayor Bayt said today that he has no power to interfere in this question since both the Redevelopment Commission and School Commission are "separate entities." He said they must settle the question between themselves. The council also authorized the purchase of a snow removal machine. The city has been using this equipment all winter, councilmen were told. The ordinance provides for payment.

Action was delayed on an ordinance providing for towing-in of illegally parked cars. The measure was referred to committee for further study.

An area on the South Side, which has a new supermarket, was annexed to the city without opposition. The Southern and Madison Aves. section already is provided with city services, Councilmen were told.

Monoxide Fumes Kill Youth in Car

Times State Service

PLYMOUTH, Mar. 6.—Fumes from a faulty car exhaust were fatal to a 17-year-old boy and overcame his 24-year-old divorcee companion here yesterday.

In fair condition today in Parkview Hospital was Mrs. Shirley Himes, of Plymouth, mother of two children.

The dead youth was Dervel David Good, of La Paz. He died five hours after the pair had been found overcome in his father's car parked on a country road near the Plymouth airport.

A conservation officer, Harry Lower, said he saw the car with the motor running and the two slumped in the front seat. Corner Dr. Paul Connell said the car had a defective muffler and that carbon monoxide fumes had seeped through the floor boards.
