'Pre-Fab' Package—
'Ankles Away
Full of Life'

THE INDIANAPOLIS TIMES

BY HENRY BUTLER
"Ankles Away," the benefit variety show which opened last night at the Murat, is one of the liveliest and funniest amateur shows I've ever seen.

That goes especially for Act I of this "pre-fab" package put together by Jerome Cargill, of New York, and directed by mirable precision, groups like the "Indianapolis Rockettes" last night got big applause.

Script, routines, costumes, score and directing are out of New York. Glamour, talent and hard work are by local participants who do an amazing job that should make the ensemble of "Starlight Musicals" look to its laurels.

"Ankles Away" is a swell looking show. Considering that it uses only drapes and no scenery, it gives the illusion, mainly by rich and bright costumes, of being a touring musical.

Has Handsome Chorus
Its local sponsor, the Sisterhood of the Indianapolis Hebrew Congregation, has assembled as handsome a chorus line as you'll ever see. Doing elementary routines, but doing them with ad-

Matthew Kaine, as emcee, has to contend with repeated interruptions by Rose Garland and Nat Smith in "The Chase," a old gag, but still good for laughs. Ginger and Seymour Pinkus, as man and wife in "Baby," with wonderful ensemble of gags and baby dolls, are effective.

Bernard Bloom and Virginia Morgan, in "Direct Advertising," and Roye Leve and Jack Maurer, and Carol and Sid Tuchman, as the two couples in "Old Fashioned Walk"—one of the noblest comic and dance numbers—got good response.

Harriette Winston and Shirley Larman, another reappearing duo, do good comedy as a pair of janes in "So He Said." An excellent number, with splendid costumes, is "Ladies in Hades," a sketch about Henry VIII's wives, involving Morris Goldberg as Henry, and Dory Silver, Bernice Cohen, Florence Krott, Louis Cohen, Shirley Backer and Doris Jaeger as the wives.

Donna Lorey and Al Leiberman, in "L'Amour t'jours," a French-into-English "blowout," do nicely just before the big and impressive finale of Act I.

Act II headliners, besides Frank Parrish in some of his customarily good interpretations of songs, start with Bess Meshulam, as Chiquita, in a "South of the Border" routine—fine looker, singer and mike actress, and a real talent.

"Sweet Defeat," a perfume department sketch, gives Rosalind Decklebaum, as the salesgirl, a chance to show genuine comic ability.
