

City Schools Teach Children American Way

By DAVE WATSON

Indianapolis public school administrators have found a major crack in the pillars of democracy.

Too few high school pupils are leaving their classes with a comprehension of the importance of the economic profit system to the survival of free enterprise.

With the aid of Dr. Byron Williams, of Rochester University, they are attempting to seal this crack with the mortar of understanding.

Now in full swing, the program was started last July with a recommendation to the School Board by Dr. Herman L. Shibley, superintendent of schools. He said:

"When an Indianapolis youngster watches his father leave for work each morning in a business establishment, the boy probably doesn't realize that the business, created of a desire to make profits, is enabling the father to bring home food and clothing for the family and to save money that will enable the boy to have a college education.

We must give our children in school a better appreciation of what the private enterprise system provides for a family."

The wheels were in motion.

Texts Won't Do

The usual texts of economics and social problems wouldn't do. They were too general. The pupil couldn't apply the material to problems he had never really faced.

Ordinary texts were too broad. Some covered the world. But pupils were familiar with Indianapolis, where they lived. New texts must come from here. They must supplement the regular classroom book.

With this reasoning the board called on Dr. Williams to survey the 126 different business fields in the city and start the project, "Indianapolis at Work." The first edition has already gone to the junior high school grades.

Indianapolis business helps pay the bill. Indianapolis business and labor men serve on advisory committees with teachers and civic leaders. Executives and employees help supply Dr. Williams with material for the texts.

The project has drawn the attention of the nation's school systems.

The lack of economic understanding throughout the country was pin-pointed by a survey made by Opinion Research Corp. Princeton, N. J.

It found that only 39 per cent of the high school seniors who took a poll test feel that keeping the profit incentive alive is essential to survival of "our system."

There were 56 per cent who declared the best way to raise living standards is to "get more of the company's income." Only 43 per cent declared that "more production" is the answer.

Learn by Contact

Indianapolis is attacking this problem by bringing the school pupil into classroom contact with the businesses which provide the jobs, the money, the food, the materials and comforts of 20th Century living.

Portions of the class materials will be of a current nature. Industrial opportunities will be explained, employee development will be described, pay methods and scales may be explored. These sections can be revised as the years pass.

Other portions will be permanent.

Rites Here for GI Killed in Korea

Pfc. Otto Reeves, a 23-year-old Indianapolis native killed in Korea, will be buried in Concordia Cemetery tomorrow following 10:30 a.m. services at Lauck Funeral Home.

Pfc. Reeves was killed July 30 in action with Co. L, 35th Infantry Regiment, 25th Division. He joined the Army Oct. 2, 1950, and reached Korea last May.

He attended Manual High School and worked for Basca Manufacturing Co., Bridgeport Brass Co., and Allison Division, General Motors.

It is found that only 39 per cent of the high school seniors who took a poll test feel that keeping the profit incentive alive is essential to survival of "our system."

There were 56 per cent who declared the best way to raise living standards is to "get more of the company's income." Only 43 per cent declared that "more production" is the answer.

Learn by Contact

Indianapolis is attacking this problem by bringing the school pupil into classroom contact with the businesses which provide the jobs, the money, the food, the materials and comforts of 20th Century living.

Portions of the class materials will be of a current nature. Industrial opportunities will be explained, employee development will be described, pay methods and scales may be explored. These sections can be revised as the years pass.

Other portions will be permanent.

100 Tickets to Ice Show—

Barbara Ann Boosts Clothe-A-Child Drive

ICE STAR HELPS CLOTHE-A-CHILD—Pretty Barbara Ann Scott, star of the Hollywood Ice Revue at the Coliseum, presents 100 show tickets for Clothe-A-Child contributors to Alfred Brown, Times carrier on the North Side.

Barbara Ann Scott, who rates 100 persons making a Clothe-A-Child contribution of $5 or more. The contributors who receive the tickets will be those who make their donations in person starting tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock at Clothe-A-Child headquarters, No. 20 W. Maryland St. Tickets can not be given for donations received by mail.

The show tickets are the gift of members of the ice revue cast and Dick Miller, manager of the Coliseum.

Mobile Blood Unit To Visit Allison's

The Red Cross mobile blood unit will spend five days this week at Plants 3 and 5 of the Allison Division of General Motors.

The mobile unit will be at Plant 5 in Maywood tomorrow, Tuesday, and Wednesday, and at Plant 3 in Speedway Thursday and Friday.

The mobile unit will also visit Rushville tomorrow and DePauw University Wednesday. A two-day operation has been scheduled at Anderson for Thursday and Friday.

The Red Cross Defense Blood Center, 18 West Georgia Street, will be open for blood donations Tuesday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Brothers Go Hunting, But Thieves Get Bag

Two elderly Indianapolis brothers went rabbit hunting yesterday, but someone else is holding their bag.

John Spry, 62, of 2230 W. Michigan St., and Virgil, 60, of 2834 S. Rybolt Ave., stopped at a tavern at U.S. 52 and 16th St. on their way home.

While they were inside, someone stole from their car both their shotguns, John's hunting coat and their day's catch of three rabbits.

Modern practices of baby care are emphasized in the course for expectant mothers.

Mother, Baby Care Class Scheduled

The Red Cross Home Nursing department is now taking registrations for a new Mother and Baby Care class to begin on Tuesday.

The class will be held from 1 to 3 p.m. on Tuesdays and Fridays for three weeks at the Red Cross Chapter House, 1126 N. Meridian.

Modern practices of baby care are emphasized in the course for expectant mothers.

Give $200,000,000 in Entertainment This Christmas

With ...

BLACK-DAYLITE TELEVISION

NOW! ... Priced Lower Than Ever

$259.95

BIG 17" TABLE MODEL WITH MATCHING BASE NO EXTRA COST!

This combination gives you an authentic console effect. Cabinet and base in genuine mahogany veneer! Brand new 17-inch screen, G-E Black-Daylite TV ... with pictures as big and real as life.

EASY TERMS!
UP TO 78 WEEKS TO PAY!

IR. 7565

DELLA PENNA RADIO COMPANY

APPLIANCES, FURNITURE, TELEVISION
"We Bring 'Em Back Alive!"

6044 E. 10th

No Break in Sight in IRR Strike

No sign of a break in the Indiana Railroad bus strike was seen last night.

The walkout of 140 drivers and mechanics yesterday stopped all Indiana Railroad bus service between Indianapolis and Ft. Harrison, Peru, Terre Haute, Hartford City, Kokomo, Anderson, Ft. Wayne and intermediate points.

State and federal conciliators who had tried to avert the strike said that no further meetings between the management and the AFL Motor Coach Employees were scheduled.

Some 5000 persons a day norm-

Clothe-A-Child Contributions

Previous Balance	$ 777.00	The Amiticia Club	5.00
H. Dale Brown, Marion County Clerk	110.00	City and County Employees Relief Assn.	50.00
Mrs. Maude M. Clayton	5.00	M. E. G., a friend of children	1.00
In Memory of Fannie Fishbein	20.00	Dr. and Mrs. A. S. Jaeger	5.00
From Two Families	14.00	Alpha Mu Latrelan	25.00
M. C. M.	25.00	James W. Beck	10.00
No Name	1.00	Joe Scully	2.00
Jerome Blickman	100.00	A Times Reader	1.00
Motive Parts Co., Inc.	40.00	Juanita Hubbard	10.00
Byron and Virginia Willis	10.00	Jess Hubbard	10.00
Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee	5.00	Total	$ 809.00
Brookenburr	40.00	Total to Date	$ 1,286.00
J. S. Sadler	5.00

ally ride Indiana Railroad busses in and out of Indianapolis. About half patronize the Ft. Harrison Division.

But most Ft. Harrison soldiers coming to town on Saturday night didn't mind the strike at all. The Army ran hourly busses and the soldiers rode them free of charge.

Some 5000 persons a day normally ride Indiana Railroad busses in and out of Indianapolis. About half patronize the Ft. Harrison Division.

But most Ft. Harrison soldiers coming to town on Saturday night didn't mind the strike at all. The Army ran hourly busses and the soldiers rode them free of charge.

Some 5000 persons a day normally ride Indiana Railroad busses in and out of Indianapolis. About half patronize the Ft. Harrison Division.

But most Ft. Harrison soldiers coming to town on Saturday night didn't mind the strike at all. The Army ran hourly busses and the soldiers rode them free of charge.

Some 5000 persons a day normally ride Indiana Railroad busses in and out of Indianapolis. About half patronize the Ft. Harrison Division.

But most Ft. Harrison soldiers coming to town on Saturday night didn't mind the strike at all. The Army ran hourly busses and the soldiers rode them free of charge.

Some 5000 persons a day normally ride Indiana Railroad busses in and out of Indianapolis. About half patronize the Ft. Harrison Division.

But most Ft. Harrison soldiers coming to town on Saturday night didn't mind the strike at all. The Army ran hourly busses and the soldiers rode them free of charge.

Some 5000 persons a day normally ride Indiana Railroad busses in and out of Indianapolis. About half patronize the Ft. Harrison Division.

But most Ft. Harrison soldiers coming to town on Saturday night didn't mind the strike at all. The Army ran hourly busses and the soldiers rode them free of charge.

Some 5000 persons a day normally ride Indiana Railroad busses in and out of Indianapolis. About half patronize the Ft. Harrison Division.

But most Ft. Harrison soldiers coming to town on Saturday night didn't mind the strike at all. The Army ran hourly busses and the soldiers rode them free of charge.

Some 5000 persons a day normally ride Indiana Railroad busses in and out of Indianapolis. About half patronize the Ft. Harrison Division.

But most Ft. Harrison soldiers coming to town on Saturday night didn't mind the strike at all. The Army ran hourly busses and the soldiers rode them free of charge.

Some 5000 persons a day normally ride Indiana Railroad busses in and out of Indianapolis. About half patronize the Ft. Harrison Division.

But most Ft. Harrison soldiers coming to town on Saturday night didn't mind the strike at all. The Army ran hourly busses and the soldiers rode them free of charge.

Some 5000 persons a day normally ride Indiana Railroad busses in and out of Indianapolis. About half patronize the Ft. Harrison Division.

But most Ft. Harrison soldiers coming to town on Saturday night didn't mind the strike at all. The Army ran hourly busses and the soldiers rode them free of charge.

Some 5000 persons a day normally ride Indiana Railroad busses in and out of Indianapolis. About half patronize the Ft. Harrison Division.

But most Ft. Harrison soldiers coming to town on Saturday night didn't mind the strike at all. The Army ran hourly busses and the soldiers rode them free of charge.

Some 5000 persons a day normally ride Indiana Railroad busses in and out of Indianapolis. About half patronize the Ft. Harrison Division.

But most Ft. Harrison soldiers coming to town on Saturday night didn't mind the strike at all. The Army ran hourly busses and the soldiers rode them free of charge.

Some 5000 persons a day normally ride Indiana Railroad busses in and out of Indianapolis. About half patronize the Ft. Harrison Division.

But most Ft. Harrison soldiers coming to town on Saturday night didn't mind the strike at all. The Army ran hourly busses and the soldiers rode them free of charge.

Some 5000 persons a day normally ride Indiana Railroad busses in and out of Indianapolis. About half patronize the Ft. Harrison Division.

But most Ft. Harrison soldiers coming to town on Saturday night didn't mind the strike at all. The Army ran hourly busses and the soldiers rode them free of charge.

Some 5000 persons a day normally ride Indiana Railroad busses in and out of Indianapolis. About half patronize the Ft. Harrison Division.

But most Ft. Harrison soldiers coming to town on Saturday night didn't mind the strike at all. The Army ran hourly busses and the soldiers rode them free of charge.

Some 5000 persons a day normally ride Indiana Railroad busses in and out of Indianapolis. About half patronize the Ft. Harrison Division.

But most Ft. Harrison soldiers coming to town on Saturday night didn't mind the strike at all. The Army ran hourly busses and the soldiers rode them free of charge.

Some 5000 persons a day normally ride Indiana Railroad busses in and out of Indianapolis. About half patronize the Ft. Harrison Division.

But most Ft. Harrison soldiers coming to town on Saturday night didn't mind the strike at all. The Army ran hourly