Hotpoint Automatic Dryer

with RAINBOW Drying Action

HOW IT WORKS:

- The Mist-O-Matic Water Spray continuously coats the air in the Condenser Chamber under the Tumbler Drum, never touching the clothes.
- Special Fluff-Fins inside the Drum tumble the clothes, unfolding and dropping them, causing additional circulation of air and better drying action.
- Two efficient Sun-Pure Calrod Units heat and purify the washed air as it's carried upward from the Condenser Chamber.
- The moisture in the air condenses and actually rains into the drain, taking along the lint it picked up on the way.

Get cleaner, sweeter, softer, fluffier clothes the automatic way with Hotpoint's Dryer, today!

Will North Pole Melt Some Day?

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 2.—A great many New Years from now—perhaps 40,000 to four million—temperate climate may return to the polar regions. Our globe will emerge from the ice ages which are not now quite over.

The surprising discovery of 1600 and 1750-year ages for Atlantic sea water at depths of one to two miles gives rise to this speculation.

By measuring the radioactivity of the carbon isotope 14 in the carbon dioxide in sea water ingeniously sampled, from just above the ocean bottom, Dr. J. Laurence Kulp, Columbia University geochemist, determined its unexpected antiquity. It was for him the 1951 Newcomb Cleveland $1000 prize awarded by the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Sluggish Circulation

The extreme sluggishness of the ocean circulation is proved by the age figures. The water dredged from the ocean depths in north latitudes 53 and 58 started its submarine migration about 200 A. D. when it was at the surface of the Arctic Sea.

The ancient water took centuries to travel toward the equator and will take even longer in its journey southward. Dr. Kulp, F. Mather, Harvard geologist, who is president of the AAAS, explained that this slow circulation is a refrigerating system for the earth, carrying polar cold to tropical regions.

But he speculated that in the stretch of geological time this circulation could be reversed. The sun's tropic heat would evaporate the equatorial water, increase its salt content, cause it to sink even if it were hotter than the deep water.

Torture for Money Laid to Red China

HONG KONG, (UP)—The all his money and property and Freedom Front an anti-Communist English-language bulletin reported that an American Chinese, a former Detroit grocer, committed suicide in Red China because he could not stand Communist exactions any longer.

The bulletin said 74-year-old Li Shing-chak took his life a few days after his wife and widowed daughter-in-law banded themselves for similar reasons.

Mr. Li formerly was manager of the Yee Chang Lung grocery store in Third St., Detroit. The Chinese Communist picked on him because they assumed all Chinese coming from the automobile manufacturing center must be rich, the bulletin said.
