Our Lovely Lady of Tomorrow...

BARBARA SLOAN, 3½, curls up on the landing window seat each morning to "read" her story books to her dolls, after her brother, Larry, 10, and her sister, Kathy, 8, leave for school. Her "readings" form the basis for her recitations which she gives on request. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert S. Sloan, 3447 Washington Blvd., are her parents.

Blackwood on Bridge— Sometimes It's Best to Wait Awhile

FEW players realize the potential value of a trump holding like Miss Brash's in today's deal. Especially where the declarer can be forced to ruff one or more times. Not that Miss Brash's double of the four spade contract is to be recommended. It was highly speculative—but successful nevertheless. The opening lead was the queen of diamonds and Mr. Champion overtook with the king and led back the nine. At this point Mr. Muzzy spread his hand on the table and claimed ten tricks. "Give you three aces and I have the rest," he gloated.

Both Miss Brash and Mr. Champion insisted that the hand be played out.

"BUT WHAT can I lose except three aces?" Mr. Muzzy insisted. "The rest of my hand is solid." "Even if that were true—which it isn't—" said Mr. Champion wickedly. "I'd still want you to play it out. You might revoke or something."

Convinced that his opponents were within their rights, Mr. Muzzy continued the play. He ruffed the second diamond with the ten of spades and Miss Brash discarded a club. He then led the king of spades and Miss Brash won with the ace and returned a club.

MR. CHAMPION WON with the ace of clubs and led another high diamond. This time Mr. Muzzy ruffed with the jack of spades and again Miss Brash discarded a club.

At this point Mr. Muzzy's highest remaining trump was the queen. The ace, king, jack and ten had been played and somehow Miss Brash managed to have left the guarded nine spot for the setting trick.

"This is a good example of what I have been telling you, about not winning a trick at your first opportunity," Muzzy said.

Mr. Champion passed up her first chance to win with her ace of spades. That play eventually let her win a trick with the nine of spades. Why don't you catch on to these things?"

As usual, Mr. Champion paid dearly for giving this "lesson" as Mr. Muzzy followed his advice on the next hand, to be shown in tomorrow's column.
