SATURDAY, JAN. 11, 1908.

When it comes to hoarding money the New York banks have not been so slow. They have about one-third of the total supply of the country in their vaults. There is supposed to be about $34 per capita in circulation, but as New Yorkers have $200 per head, the rest of the country is compelled to be satisfied with only $22 per head.

Abe Halleck of Rensselaer wants the republican nomination for state senator from this district. For about twelve years he has already feasted at the public crib of Jasper county. The republicans of this section of the state have done many strange things in the past and there is no telling to what depths of insanity they will descend in the future.

Secretary Cortelyou, who has made such a botch of affairs in the treasury department, imagines that he is big enough to be president. His imagination in this respect has been stimulated by J. P. Morgan and other "saviors of Wall Street," who profited to the extent of many millions of dollars by Cortelyou's bond issues and government deposits. As a matter of cold fact Cortelyou is not quite such a "son of destiny" as he thinks he is.

Bro. Carr of the Fowler Leader, one of the republican organs of Benton county, is still kicking about swallowing his Fairbanks cocktail, and it is evident that another injection of the Fairbanks virus will be necessary before it "takes" with the Leader. Listen to this from its last issue: "That Vice President Fairbanks should be indorsed at a love feast in Indianapolis with there not being anybody in the state for him is a strange phenomenon."

Nelson J. Bozarth of Valparaiso, has been heard from again. We always hear of Nelse when a campaign is approaching. Sometimes he bobs up and wants the democratic nomination for governor, sometimes it is the Republican nomination that he is after. This particular time, according to press dispatches, he is after Crumpacker's seat in congress, and wants the nomination for the place on the republican ticket. Poor Nelse, that political bee in your bonnet is a perserving insect, anyway.

PECULIAR AND AMUSING.

The contest of the four Republican candidates for governor is a peculiar one. Indeed, it is more than peculiar, for it gives promise of amusement. Watson expects the support of the state machine which has made the nomination for ten years, and so does Charles W. Miller. But they expect to receive this support on very different grounds. Watson thinks he will receive it because he has been a faithful cog in the machine, while Miller, as a representative of the Beveridge contingent, believes that the Fairbanks crowd will take him up in order to secure peace. As both of them cannot be nominated, the defeated one will naturally feel that his importance as a factor in the game has been treated lightly—or mayhap contemptuously. The other Miller, Prof. Hugh Th., is supposed to have the support of Governor Hanly, a member of the Fairbanks faction, but temporarily doing enforced guerilla service. As for William L. Taylor, he asserts that he is traveling in the middle of the Republican road, uninfluenced by fear, favor or faction. Taylor is working as hard as the others, and as he has a good knowledge of the game, he may hold the balance of power in the convention. In that contingency he will have to be reckoned with. The whole thing is viewed by the Democrats with complacency, for it makes no difference to them whether the Republican nominee shall be one or another of the men mentioned. The next governor of Indiana will be a Democrat.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH HANNA?

The Atlas Engine Works of Indianapolis has long been one of the big industrial concerns of the country. It was operated through the panic of 1893 and carried on its business as a solvent corporation without the aid of courts, receivers or trustees. Hugh H. Hanna then was at the head of the concern, and he has been at the head of it ever since. Mr. Hanna was terribly afraid in 1896 that Mr. Bryan might be elected president. He was one of the noisiest of the "country savers." He told his men—as was said at the time—that they might come back to work on the morning after the election if McKinley was successful, but that there would be no work for them if Bryan was elected. On the night of the election in November, 1896, when it was known that McKinley was triumphant, the Atlas Engine Works whistles wasted much steam in celebrating the event. And now the Atlas Engine Works, after eleven years of Republican rule and Dingley tariffs, has been put into the hands of trustees for the benefit of creditors. It is a calamity. No person will rejoice, but many will reflect. It may be remarked—for it is remarkable—that the Indianapolis newspapers have made no mention of the troubles of Mr. Hanna's company.

BROKEN WEAPONS.

What is commonly called "the panic of 1893" started under a Republican administration, but as much of its effect was forced over into Cleveland's administration, unfair Republicans joined in asserting that the Democrats were to blame. Of course the Democrats were not to blame, but the Republicans by their clamor made many persons think they were.

But they cannot work that disreputable game on the public again. The 1907 panic occurred after eleven years of continuous Republican rule. That party has, during all that time, had control of the government in all departments. It has had the president and both houses of congress, and has been able to do what it wanted to do. For eleven years it has absolutely had it own way, and during all of that time Providence has been kind and has favored the country with bountiful crops and an enormous addition to its supply of gold.

And yet we are in the midst of a general business disorganization which, unless speedily mended, is certain to produce a period of hard times that will stretch far into the future. All that has happened after eleven years of uninterrupted Republican rule. The insolent falsehood that "panics only occur when the Democratic party is in power" has been emphasized, and the equally insolent assertion that "panics cannot occur under Republican rule" goes with it into the odious limbo of partisan claptrap.

THE NATIONAL CONVENTION.

The official call for the Democratic national convention as issued by Chairman Taggart is as follows:

"The Democratic national committee, having met in the city of Washington on the 12th day of December, 1907, has appointed Tuesday, the 7th day of July, 1908, as the time and chosen Denver, Col., as the place for holding the Democratic national convention. "Each state is entitled to representation therein equal to double the number of its senators and representatives in the congress of the United States, and each territory, Alaska, District of Columbia, Hawaii and Porto Rico shall have six delegates. All Democratic citizens of the United States, irrespective of past political associations and differences, who can unite with us in the effort for a pure, economical and constitutional government, are cordially invited to join in sending delegates to the convention."

Under the above call the national convention will contain about 1,000 delegates. The wording of the call is wide enough to embrace all persons who are willing to join the Democratic party and its trust allies, and by so doing restore the government to the people. And it is worth while to remember that the people are going to be very much in evidence in the 1908 campaign.

VALUE OF RIGHT BREATHING.

Health Comes From Knowing How and What to Breathe.

Dust laden with germs of consumption or other disease is inhaled by all who use the streets, but the disease is not developed unless the germs find conditions suitable for their lodgment and growth.

With people having catarrh there is an ideal culture medium for these germs, as the irritated membrane and weakened tissues is a hot-bed where germs must thrive and multiply until they are numerous and active.

If you have catarrh, you should use the easiest, simplest and quickest cure, the direct method of Hyomei, whose wonderful medicated air is taken in with the air you breathe directly following and destroying all germs that have been inhaled, repairing any damages they may have worked and so healing and vitalizing the tissues as to render catarrh and germ infection no longer possible.

The unusual way in which Hyomei is sold should dispel all doubts as to its curative properties, for B. F. Fendig offers to refund the price to any one whom it fails to benefit. You do not risk a cent in testing the healing virtues of this breath of life, for with every $1.00 outfit B. F. Fendig gives a guarantee to relieve catarrh or money refunded.
