The Lafayette-Chicago electric railroad subsidy election in Round Grove tp., White county, has been postponed to Feb. 11, on account of insufficient notice for the election as first called.

C. M. Archer, who lives on the Charlie Malchow farm west of town, has bought a 160 farm eleven miles west of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, and is preparing to move upon same early next month.

Nathan Keene of Newton tp., has traded his residence property in the northeast part of town for a 40 acre farm lying 5 miles northeast of Wheatfield, which he expects to move upon next year.

New Subscribers to The Democrat this week by postoffice: Remington, 5; Remington, R-4, 3; Remington, R-2, 5; Fowler, 1; Rensselaer, 3; Kankakee, Ill., 1; Mangum, Okla., 1; Medaryville, R-3, 1; Plato, Ill., 1.

N. Osborne of Gillam tp., was a visitor in the city Monday. Mr. Osborne says he raised about 7,000 bushels of corn the past year and that it was the best corn he ever raised. His was about the only good corn in that entire section, however. He used fertilizer.

Robert Parker of Remington was in the city Thursday in consultation with his attorney, Mr. Foltz. We understand that Mr. Parker will issue a statement to the public soon, through the newspapers, giving his side of the causes which led up to the failure of his bank.

"Hank" Granger, the notorious Kankakee river saloonist, entered a plea of guilty to four of the eight indictments pending against him for illegal sales of liquor in the Newton circuit court last week and was fined $10 and costs in each case. The other indictments were dismissed.

Wm. Washburn returned Wednesday from a week's visit with the family of his brother at South Bend and at Mishwaka, also St. Joe, Mich. He states that there is no solid corn at all in that vicinity, it being much poorer quality than here, and that seed corn is going to be a big price there.

Joseph Sparling, whose serious sickness from Bright's disease was mentioned last week, died at his home south of town Tuesday night. His son Prof. J. B. Sparling had returned to Wisconsin only a day or two before his death. The funeral, conducted by Rev. B. F. Ferguson, was held yesterday at 2:30 p. m., at his late residence and interment made in Weston cemetery.

For the benefit of our Remington subscribers who want one of The Democrat's Wall Charts, or those who may wish to become subscribers, we have left a few of these charts at the jewelry store of C. W. Littlefield in Remington, where they can be had in connection with a year's subscription to The Democrat for $1.35, thus saving the 10 cents which it costs us to mail them.

The marriage of Mr. W. R. Shesler and Mrs. Bessie Parker took place Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. W. S. Coen, Rev. J. L. Brady officiating. Only the immediate members of the family were present at the ceremony. They are living at present in the bride's residence in the east part of town, but will move in the spring to Mr. Shesler's farm east of town.

Mary J. Lockwood was born at Saratoga, New York, Dec. 21, 1834. She was married to Stephen H. Howe in Feb., 1862, and settled in Illinois, where they resided till March, 1902, when they removed to McCosby, Indiana, where she died Jan. 18, 1908, of pneumonia. She leaves a husband and three children to mourn their loss. The funeral was held Monday forenoon and interment made in Weston cemetery at Rensselaer.

F. B. Meyers, who is now chief assistant postmaster at Gary, was here a few days the first of the week moving his drug store stock and fixtures from the Novels block into the vacant room in the S. P. Thompson building on East Washington street. The room in the Novels block is to be used as an office and restaurant, or dining room, under the changes being made in the hotel, and the upstairs lodges will be used exclusively for lodges.

While in Remington Saturday the editor met our former Jasper county citizen, Prosecuting Attorney W. J. Reed of Knox, who was there on business, and he informed us that he had lots of business in his circuit these days. There are two murder cases on the criminal docket, one in Pulaski and one in Stark, besides the grand jury "hitting up" the liquor violators pretty lively. One of the murder cases is to be tried the present term of the Stark circuit court.

While caring for a sick horse at the Collins' hitch barn Sunday morning Andrew Kahler, a farmer living south of town a few miles, got his leg broken above the ankle by the horse toppling over on him. He was alone in the barn at the time and had considerable difficulty in getting his foot freed from under the horse, after which he dragged himself from the basement of the barn up to the street door where he told some passersby of his predicament and was carried to a doctor's office where he received surgical attention and was later removed to his home. Both bones of the leg were broken.

Mrs. Riley, the aged mother of Mrs. Monroe Carr, is suffering from a fall Monday in which both bones of the right arm were broken between the wrist and elbow. She is 84 years of age and has been in poor health lately.

Patrick Liston "a white male inhabitant" of Goodland gives notice that he will apply for a license to sell intoxicants in said town at the February meeting of the county commissioners. Goodland is in the dry belt and just what grounds Mr. Liston has for believing he can upset the remonstrance there is not made public.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENTS.
Jan. 18, to Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Pettet of Laura, a daughter.

The complaint of poor quality of the corn seems to be quite general, and the farmer who is fortunate to have any that is fit for seed will be able to get $1.50 to $2 per bushel for it, judging from what we can learn. Thousands of bushels have rotted or moulded in the shocks and cribs and some of it is not fit to feed to any kind of stock. We were told the other day that John Martindale of Newton tp., recently shredded some corn that was cut with a corn binder and was tied up pretty tight, causing it to mould in the center of the shock. Quite a little corn dropped down under the shredder and his chickens run to it and ate freely. He has had 150 chickens, 14 turkeys and 5 geese die from eating these droppings from the shredder.

John Randle and family have all departed for their new home in Mangum, Okla. Mrs. Randle and son Russel went to Chicago last week for a few days visit with relatives and was joined by Mr. Randle the first of the week. Their car of goods went last Friday. In their removal Jasper county loses one of its best families, and one whom we regret to see go. Mr. Randle will engage in the real estate business at Mangum, which is a flourishing town of 5,000 to 6,000 people and enjoys an immense trade from a large territory surrounding it. Only one railroad enters the place, and it ends there, so that all supplies further on must be carted from Mangum. It is a great cotton producing section, but there are few colored people, Mr. Randle states.

B. L. BRENNER,
Rensselaer Ind.

I represent the Halleck Nursery of Fair Oaks, Ind., and am canvassing for spring delivery 1908. All those desiring fruit trees of any description, berries, shade or ornamental trees, the Rose of Sharon and a variety of beautiful flowers, can get their stock from the Halleck Nursery. Chas. Halleck, owner and manager; John Casey, Agt., Fair Oaks, Ind.

THIS IS IMPORTANT.

Subscribers should please bear in mind that the Wall Chart The Democrat is offering with subscriptions is 35 cents extra if taken from this office, and 45 cents if sent by mail to the subscribers. It costs us 8 cents postage on every chart we mail, and the mailing-tube costs us 2 cents more, hence we must insist on the 10 cents extra being sent where we are expected to mail the charts. By the way, these charts are going out very rapidly, and dozens of them have also been mailed to subscribers in other states. Don't delay getting one before they are all gone. As we must order them in 500 lots in order to put them out at the price we do, it is scarcely likely that another lot will be ordered after the present supply is exhausted.

CHEADLE ELECTED.

The referee also stated that there seemed to be a number of claimants who had what purported to be building and loan certificates, and while it might develop later that these certificates were liabilities of the bank, they would be excluded from having any voice in the election of a trustee.

The mode of voting seemed to have been misunderstood, or was changed by the referee after his arrival, as it was generally supposed they would vote by card with name and the amount of their claim thereon and the name of the party for whom they wished to vote, etc. Many of those who had signed these cards became muddled and didn't know hardly where they were at when it was ordered that the voting be as here-tofore stated. The power-of-attorney move seems to have been sprung by Wm. Darroch of Kentland, who was employed by a few of the creditors to look after their interests and who was in attendance.

Some 600 claims had been filed and allowed, and the names of these parties were then read in alphabetical order, with the amount of their deposits with interest computed to the date of the bank's closing, and when a name was called the party if present and entitled to vote was requested to state whom he or she wanted for trustee. These were taken down by four tellers.

The heaviest depositor, John Burger of Huntington, a brother-in-law of Mr. Parker, had, with interest added, $28,318.85, and when his name was called he voted for Mr. Guy. Asked if he had any security for this claim, he answered in the affirmative. Asked the nature and amount he stated that it was automobile engine stock.—The Western Motor Co., of Logansport—that the face value was $21,000 but that he did not know its actual value. The referee decided that for the time being he would be allowed to vote on only the unsecured $7,318.85. Other questions of minor importance arose from time to time during the tedious reading of the long list, and it was after five o'clock when the reading was completed.

Some creditors have offered to take as little as ten cents on the dollar, but there seems to be no takers.

Ellis Jones was much in evidence at the meeting and did some strenuous work for the successful candidate for trustee.

Notwithstanding the heavy losses to many people, there was not the bitter talk against Mr. Parker that one would have expected to hear.

Mr. Parker, the "busted" banker, was not in evidence, and is said to stick very close to the house. His attorney Frank Foltz was over from Rensselaer in consultation with him Friday night and Saturday morning.

It seems to be the general opinion that the Parker family will not remain in Remington long, but will go to St. Louis, where their eldest daughter, Mrs. Mable Templeton and husband are living, and where their son Lowell is also located.

Quite a number of creditors were given securities, it is reported, after Mr. Parker had closed the bank doors and had notified the state officers to come and take charge. These will likely be returned if the trustee pursues the matter as he should.

"Billy" Holland has been night-watch in Remington for fourteen years. All this time, he states, he has been watching the Parker bank every night to see that no robbers got in and made off with the cash. Now it develops that the robbers were right inside all the time.

Charlie Beal, who was employed for several years in the Parker bank, giving up his position a few years ago to become a granger, is at present employed in the First National Bank of Remington, but will move in the spring upon the farm which he now owns near Remington.

O. P. Taber grows better looking every day, and it is generally conceded that he and Tim Harrington are the two handsomest men in Remington. Postmaster Peck used to be in the list but a fat government salary and high living have broadened Ed's form out too much, and he is now in the "blessed" class.

The First National Bank is located in the room in the Durand block where the old bank of Durand & Co., used to be. This is a good roomy place but the location is not as good as the Parker bank building, and the stockholders may decide to purchase the latter when it is offered for sale by the trustee. However, if there is but one bank in the town the location will not make so much difference, and as its present quarters are the most roomy it may be thought best to remain where it now is.

The old veterans of many a hard fought seven-up game who gathered around the table in a room across from the "convention hall" gave no heed to the business that was occupying the people across the way. John Tharp and John Porter pounded the table so hard when planking down their extra heavy trumps that the noise occasionally almost drowned the voice of Referee Bowers who was reading the list of the victims of misplaced confidence.

Remington and the surrounding country is peopled with the best folks on earth, and it always gives us pleasure to visit there on a big day and meet the hundreds of old friends whom we used to do business with several years ago when conducting the Remington Press. We also feel highly honored by the splendid support of these people which has followed us to Rensselaer and gives The Democrat a circulation of several hundred copies through the Remington post-office, a circulation that has been growing, too, year by year. There are no friends like the old friends, and we assure these old friends in particular that their patronage is deeply appreciated.

Regarding this Western Motor Co., stock, of which there seems to have been considerable given out as collateral security, we understand there was originally issued $200,000, one-half of which is "preferred" stock and one-half "common" stock. Of course the preferred stock has the first claim and therefore the common stock is of rather questionable value. It is reported that some $25,000 of the preferred stock has been retired, so that only about $75,000 of such preferred stock is now outstanding. As to what is the value of the plant at Logansport we are unadvised, but it is rather doubtful if this stock that is out as collateral has very much value at present.

A well known citizen who had some $14,000 in the bank on time certificates two or three years ago, bought a farm in Kosciusko county, of Strauss Bros., the Ligonier bankers and real estate firm. The deal was made in the fall and the certificates were not due until March. He told them that he would pay for the farm at once if they would take these certificates and allow him interest on them to date they were due. After some thinking over the matter they decided to take them, but they got their money or its equivalent before leaving town and they told the party they got them of that the Parker bank was rotten as hell. A few days ago the gentleman saw the Strauss whom he dealt with, and the latter said: "Remember what I told you two years ago about the Parker bank?"
