

A Cough Medicine

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is a regular cough medicine, a strong medicine, a doctor's medicine. Good for easy coughs, hard coughs, desperate coughs. If your doctor endorses it for your case, take it. If not, don't take it. Never go contrary to his advice.

Ayer's

The dose of Ayer's Pills is small, only one at bedtime. As a rule, laxative doses are better than cathartic doses. For constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia, sick-headaches, they cannot be excelled. Ask your doctor about this.

FOR THE CHILDREN

The Vowels.
This is a game that exercises the mind. Some player begins by asking a question of the person next to him, which must be answered without using the vowel which the questioner provides.

Counters in the form of beans or chips or bits of paper should be evenly distributed before the game begins, and if the forbidden vowel is used in answer the culprit must pay to the questioner three counters.

The next in line then asks a question, and so around the circle. There may be a box of candles for a prize, and the one who has the most counters at the end of the game is the winner.

The questioning may be like this:

Q. Have you been out of town this season? Answer without o.

A. Yes, we were at the seaside.

Q. Do you love music? Answer without i.

A. Yes; very much.

Q. Do you play tennis? Answer without e.

A. I do play it.

Q. Do you like punch? Answer without u.

A. The drink I do not like; the paper I do.

Q. Who told you about the wasp's nest? Answer without o.

A. Then I should tell a story; you told me. (And she pays a forfeit.)

Character Game.
All the players sit around in a circle. The player who first thinks of an interesting character in one of Grimm's fairy tales, or in "Alice In Wonderland" or any other book that is quite familiar to all the players, sits on the floor within the circle and begins to describe the character. The other children listen carefully, and the first one who thinks he has guessed the character sits on the floor beside the other and continues to describe the character. If he has guessed rightly and is correct in his description, the first player allows him to go on describing, but if he is mistaken the first player shuns him out of the game. As soon as a child thinks he has guessed the character he sits on the floor and tells what he knows of the character, and so it goes on till all the children are sitting on the floor except those who have guessed wrong, and they are all driven out of the game.

The Old Man of the Sky.
The Iroquois point out to their children a cluster of stars which they call the "old man." White people do not always know why it is. They tell this story of his reaching the sky, or the "great blue wigwam."

An old chief was tired of life and of his people. He took his bundle and walking stick and went to the highest bluff. There he sang his death chant. His people followed, but waited at the foot of the bluff. While they were watching they saw him slowly rise into the air, his voice sounding fainter and fainter. The spirit of the four winds raised him to the "great star lodge." He was given a place among the stars.

His stooping form, his staff and bundle are now pointed out to Indian children as they watch the stars at night.—Indian Craftsman.

The Game of Mosaic.
A writing game for any number. Each writes a word on a slip of paper, and after the slips are mixed one of the players draws and reads them in the way they come, and each person must write them down in the same order. Then each one must write a little story or paragraph, using these words in that order.

The game may be made more difficult by requiring the story to be within a specified length or written within a certain time, or it may be made easier by allowing the players to introduce the words in any order they please.

Game of Magic Mirror.
This is a "catch" game. Two people must understand how it is played. One is to leave the room. While she is gone the other has one who does not know how to play look into the mirror. The absent one is recalled and by looking into the mirror can tell who looked into it while she was out. Here is the catch: The one who is hiding her takes, as nearly as possible, particularly with the hands, the position of the one who looked in. Of course it is best to take one who has not a position like others in the room. Comparatively few ever catch on to this game.

The Professor's Money.
Professor Cipher says he has 108 coins in his pocket and that they consist entirely of dimes and cents. What is the total amount? You might think this is impossible to solve, but it isn't. The answer is $4.32, and no other sum will fulfill the conditions. There are thirty-six dimes and seventy-two cents. Prove this and satisfy yourself.

Riddle and Answer.
How can you make a Maltese cross with less than twelve unbroken matches? Answer—By striking only one match and dropping it on his back. If the first fails, try another.

When Rosy Sings.
Our little Rosy's voice is queer, But mother says she'd rather hear Our Rosy sing most any day. Then lots of folks that get large pay. We're real good friends, all six of us, But if we have a fuse. Or get a little cross some day, Why, Rosy stops right away. Before we've hardly said a thing She'll make a bow, and then she'll sing, "Birds in their little nests agree." And she can't really sing, you see! Then we all laugh till we most cry. So mother always says, "Well, I Have been to concerts, and my choice Would be our Rosy's useful voice." —Youth's Companion.

Charm Against Nightmare.
No man would willingly invoke the horrors of nightmare, and it may therefore be of interest to know that in East Anglia a way has been discovered of averting this dreaded terror. A correspondent in an old number of London Notes and Queries writes: "I recently observed a large stone, having a natural hole through it, suspended inside a Suffolk farmer's cow house. Upon inquiry of a laborer I was informed this was intended as a preventive of nightmare in the cattle. My informant, who evidently placed great faith in its efficacy, added that a similar stone suspended in the bedroom or a knife of steel laid under the foot of the bed was of equal service to the sleeper and that he had himself frequently made use of this charm."—London Chronicle.

Diplomatic Comment.
"Many stories have been told of Cipriano Castro, exiled president of Venezuela, and of his monumental conceit," said Dr. T. H. McDonough of San Francisco to the Washington Herald. "During the Russo-Japanese war the fall of Port Arthur was being explained to him." "Pshaw!" he exclaimed. "With 500 Venezuelans I could have taken it in four days."

"With a thousand in one day, your excellency," said the diplomatic representative of a European power.

"Castro was so pleased that it is said the diplomat succeeded the next day in procuring the payment of a claim that his government had been vainly pressing for years."

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

If a woman were to try to do her best she would probably modestly assert that it is really the worst thing that she ever did.

A good custard pie properly applied will sometimes heal a breach in domestic relations.

It is a fine thing to be gritty, but that very quality is apt to create friction.

Getting an education is either a bore or a blessing, all depending upon who you are.

Probably government by injunction was first instituted by a rich mother-in-law.

It is hard to distinguish between friend and foe before the battle and after it still more so.

Being optimistic is very brave and very grand and self sacrificing, but it is dreadfully wearing on the constitution in housecleaning time.

The man who has a brilliant opportunity to say "I told you so" and who refrains needs no other testimonial to his self control.

Although they have been talking all winter about voting, you will be able to notice that there are a lot of women who won't vote this spring.

This Store Has A Pure Food Law Of Its Own

IT APPLIES to everything, and everything must live up to the provisions of this law.

YOU might think that some things (canned goods, for instance) would have to be taken on trust, but an observing grocer soon learns where each brand of these goods belongs, no matter what the labels may say, and acts accordingly.

THE MORAL of all this is that this might be a good place to come when you want pure food staples.

IT IS TRUE THAT SHIPS MAY INCREASE IN SIZE SO AS TO MAKE THE PRESENT LOCKS OBSOLETE, BUT THE LARGEST SHIPS NOW AFLOAT CANNOT NAVIGATE THE PRESENT SUZ CANAL NOR THE PROPOSED SEA LEVEL CANAL AT PANAMA. IT MUST ALSO BE REMEMBERED THAT THE COMMERCE OF THE WORLD IS CARRIED BY THE MEDIUM SIZED VESSELS, THE LENGTH OF ONLY ONE OF THE MANY SHIPS USING THE SUZ CANAL BEING GREATER THAN SIX HUNDRED FEET.

VASISTAS is an imported Percheron Stallion, recorded in both the French and American Stud Books; color black and tan. He weighs 1,600 pounds in moderate condition. He stands 16 hands, fore leg 10 1/2 inches, hind leg 13 inches, a trot. We will gladly show him to you his colt throughout the country. Will stand for the season of 1909—Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at farm of Charley Pullin, five miles north and one-half mile east of Rensselaer; Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Hotel St. Louis barn in Rensselaer. TERMS: $10.00 to insure colt to stand and suck; $10.00 to insure mare to be in foal. Parting with mare forces insurance and service fee becomes due at once. Not responsible for accidents. CHARLEY PULLIN & SON.
