THE MOVEMENT FOR A NEW CONSTITUTION

Only One Issue Involved at This Time
—Shall a Convention Be Called?

It should be borne clearly in mind that the movement commonly referred to as a movement for a new constitution, which will be determined at the election this fall, involves but a single issue at this time. The one question is, as the ballot will read: ARE YOU IN FAVOR OF A CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION IN THE YEAR 1915?

A fair determination of this main issue should not be prejudiced in any part of the public mind by the over-enthusiastic advocacy or opposition which may be urged concerning any special issue. All such special issues can only be determined later by the constitutional convention, in case the people vote to call one. We are confronted now with the single broad question as to whether or not the people of Indiana want and need an up-to-date organic law.

It was this general demand that was expressed by Governor Ralston when he recommended specifically, in his message to the Legislature of 1913, that a constitutional convention be called. It was the recognition of this demand which caused the Legislature to submit the question to the people. And it was further recognized, and even emphasized, by political conventions, when they approved in state platforms the calling of a constitutional convention.

Of course, various needs to be embodied in a new or revised constitution will be insistently urged during the course of the campaign. These proposals will receive discriminating consideration by the people, being variously favored and opposed. But there are fundamental needs upon which all can practically agree. There are others upon which the most vital differences of opinion may exist, each and every one having its particular advocates as well as its opponents. There is no marked line of division separating these various elements.

As a general thing, health is still very good in our town.

Mrs. Cottingham is spending the week with her son, Will, at Muncie.

Mrs. A. M. Bringle is still on the sick list, only being able to be up a part of the time.

Arvel Bringle took his sister, Amy, to Rensselaer Wednesday to take her music lesson.

Miss Panza Bozell has been having a serious time for a few days, from contracting a cold while cutting a wisdom tooth.

John Torbet, who with his family has been visiting relatives here the past week, returned to his home near Streator, Ill., Monday.

Lawler shipped a nice bunch of fat hogs to the market from here Monday evening, and G. H. Hillis shipped a bunch Tuesday morning.

J. L. Alter, the Hoosier traveler, was in these parts Wednesday and attended cottage prayer meeting Wednesday evening at Al Brouhard's.

W. O. Gourley, who lives east of town, was visited last week by his father and mother, his brother and family and a single brother, all from Paxton, Ill.

Several of the citizens of this town clubbed together and ordered a carload of coal some time ago and it arrived this week. It is sure fine and the price is reasonable.

Uncle John Casey was down to Mt. Ayr Monday with his case of Boditone, selling to those in need, and while there called on and took dinner with Charles Penright.

It is reported that Walter McConnel closed a deal the first of the week wherein he sold to Charles Vondersmith of Brook, his farm of 160 acres in Newton county, which he bought last spring.

The gravel road, which runs west to the county line and two miles south on the line, has been very much neglected this season and in many places the gravel is worn through and the gravel spread out. It seems that the county official has steered shy of this piece of road.

Grandpa Erwin, who has been staying with his daughter, Mrs. Littlefield, at Rensselaer, the past week or two, was brought here to stay with his son, Felix. He took quite a few days ago to Felix went down Monday to bring him home with him, but he didn't feel able then, so Mrs. Erwin went down Tuesday, and as he was feeling some better, he returned with her.

Aunt Sarah Smith, who lives in the west part of town, passed her 74th milestone of life Sunday, Oct. 4. She states she has never had a doctor and never has taken a dose of medicine, to her recollection, in her life. There are but few, we dare say, who can say that. She has never been sick to speak of. She and her son, Hiram, are keeping house here since her husband died, over seventeen years ago.

We are now in the midst of another drought, as it hasn't rained to speak of for three or four weeks, and the past few days has been very warm. There has been lots of wheat sown and a good many farmers are still sowing. Corn is now all out of the way of frost, even the latest planted. The frost we got some time ago, did but little damage to growing crops. If this month continues warm and dry as it has been, lots of farmers will begin cribbing corn by the first of next month.

Successful men hunt business. Others wait for it to hunt them.

HERMAN C. ROGERS
Progressive Candidate for Prosecutor of 30th Judicial Circuit.

One of the most important ballots the voter will cast at the coming election is the ballot he casts for Judge of the circuit court. The treasurer and other county officers are required by law to file a bond for the faithful performance of their duties, and if they go wrong, the people seldom suffer, but if the court goes wrong or the Judge becomes corrupt, the people always suffer and there is no remedy, except in certain cases where they may appeal to a higher court. This fact was brought to the attention of the people of Terre Haute and to the people of the whole state of Indiana not long ago when Judge Fortune dismissed a grand jury which was about to indict certain persons for high crimes and misdemeanors.

Upon the man who sits as Judge depends much that vitally concerns every man, woman and child whose interests are involved in any matter before the court, or who live within the jurisdiction of the court. Upon that man depends the enforcement of the law to a great extent; upon him depends largely the standard observed by the people in keeping or violating the law, and upon him depends very large the degree of respect shown by the people for the court.

In selecting a man for this most important position for the next six years the people of these two counties ought to consider first the fitness of each candidate, and second every fact which might tend to control, bias or prejudice his judicial acts.

Herman C. Rogers, the Progressive candidate, has never held public office, is free from all political entanglements, and is in every way qualified for the office. He merits your support.—Advt.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Jesse Nowels writes from Laurin, Iowa, under date of Oct. 5, in renewing his subscription, and among other things says: "The weather is fine here and all the family is well. Crops are good this year. Have had no frost yet to hurt anything; has not even killed the tomato vines, so you can see it has not been very hard yet."

In renewing her subscription Mrs. F. Reynolds writes from Kenosha, Wis., under date of Oct. 4, and among other things says: "If you have any of Father Krull's books left, please send me one."

"I have just spent a month at Billings, Mont., with my sister, Mrs. Myrtle Shumaker. Had a lovely trip and enjoyed myself very much, as the folks have big Case auto. I saw lots of the country but missed the trees so much, and the sun simply cooks one from four in the morning until it is gone down at night. Was glad enough to return to Wisconsin and hard work."

"We are all well and doing well, and hope old friends passing through Kenosha will stop off and see us. We are but 2 1/2 miles out."

J. G. Andrus of Shelby, Mich., has our thanks for a copy of an illustrated edition of the Oceana Herald, a bright, newsy paper published at Shelby, containing illustrations of industries of that place, together with birds-eye views of the town, pictures of many of its business houses, etc.

Stop Those Early Bronchial Coughs. They hang on all winter if not checked, and pave the way for serious throat and lung diseases. Get a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, and take it freely. Stops coughs and colds, heals raw inflamed throat, loosens the phlegm and is mildly laxative. Best for children and grown persons. No opiates.—A. F. LONG.

Beer for the Patient

The increasing tendency of physicians to prescribe beer for convalescents is ample proof of the purity and tonic properties of this great malt beverage. Beer is the ideal diet for the patient because it supplies the body with pure food of the best quality in a partly digested form.

Beer is a tonic of pleasant flavor and beneficial to both the weak and the strong. When you drink beer you are not only drinking an appetizing beverage but you are nourishing your body with a food prepared from the most wholesome grains by Nature's own chemistry.

Ask your doctor why he prescribes beer for his patients.
