AND THIS IS "FREE SPEECH"

"For 700 years Russia labored under a monarchy. That was long enough and they overthrew the old regime. Did we expect that they would call upon us to tell them the kind of government to set up? We would be very poor instructors after the job that we permitted in this country."

"But Russia has brought into being a government of the people, representing the people, and one that takes into consideration the rights of the people the way that the Russian people want them taken care of. So I am not worrying about Russia. Russia has done a tremendous job."

"Oh, that the days were only near when the workers of the United States were able to concentrate their effort and do a job such as Russia is doing."

"I happen to be a Sinn Feiner, and I am not worrying about what the people in Ireland are going to do either. In the face of the British empire the Irish people have set up their own Irish Republic. And that stands there today in the face of the British empire."

"It is our duty to wrest this government out of the hands of the group of greedy, avaricious financial labor baiters and oppressors who are trying to exploit the people."

The above utterances are taken from W. R. Heart's Chicago Herald-Examiner in its report of the "key-note speech" of John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, in his address to the Labor party, one of the discontent elements holding a third party convention in Chicago this week. Fitzpatrick also assailed Governor Cox of Ohio for Cox's removal of the Democrat mayor of Canton, O., during the recent steel strike, because the said mayor allowed the "reds" to have their own way.

The remarks of this man Fitzpatrick, who is also strongly against the league of nations, shows the sort of people these malcontents are made up of. Fitzpatrick and his ilk should be given the boots and sent to his dear Russia, whose government he professes to so greatly prefer to the government of America. Such damnable doctrines he should not be permitted to voice anywhere under the Stars and Stripes.

DAVIES HOLDS FAST

It now appears that there was no foundation for the rumor that Ora J. Davies might resign as the Republican candidate for treasurer of state. Mr. Davies has settled a shortage reported to the state board of accounts, and the past to him is a closed book. Having been found short and having settled, he declares that nothing in the settlement reflects upon his integrity, so he means to stick as a candidate. Says Mr. Davies:

Should I resign, would not that very act be construed by many as an admission that there was something wrong in my record as a public official?

The general public was under the impression that something was wrong with his record as a public official. The examiners from the state board discovered something wrong when they went through his official records. They reported their findings to their chief. Before the matter became public it was known to numerous delegates who attended the Republican state convention. The word was passed around that it would be poor politics to nominate Davies because he was short in his accounts and the Democrats would use it as a club to defeat him and batter down the rest of the ticket. Nevertheless, Senator Watson's manager and some other close friends had a deal on and it included the nomination of Davies for treasurer of state. The deal went through. Davies was nominated in spite of his shortage and regardless of objections from party leaders who realized this was no time to burden the ticket. Davies now takes the position that the Republican party should assist in his "vindication." The Republican party is not responsible for the shortage in his accounts, neither is it responsible for his political future. It has enough houses to clean without going out of its way to find additional trouble. That is the reason there is a strong demand for Davies to get off the ticket.—Indianapolis News.

There have been but 13 special sessions of the Indiana legislature in the history of the state, and two of these 13 special sessions have been called within the last six months by Governor Goodrich. The last previous special session was in September, 1908, called by Governor Hanly, also Republican, and the special session before it was in 1885, and was merely a continuation of the regular session. The Democrats have not made such a mess of legislation as to make special sessions necessary with all the attendant expense to the taxpayers.

Representative W. L. Wood made the statement while in The Democrat office Friday afternoon, in discussing the unprecedented muddle the recent supreme court decision has put the state in, in unanimously declaring illegal the horizontal increases made in assessments by the state tax board, that it would cost his party 50,000 Indiana votes this fall. And he was right, except that he underestimated the cost to the Republicans, as it is a Republican tax law that the board assumed to be working under and the tax board is Republican.

Of course it is difficult to estimate anyway near the coming yield of oats in this vicinity, but it is the general opinion that oats never looked better here and the weather has been very good indeed for their filling well. They are beginning to "turn" in some fields and it is probable that a few will be cut the last of the week.

The Louisiana legislature adjourned sine die without passing the woman's suffrage bill, therefore the so badly needed one other state must be found elsewhere; perhaps Tennessee will respond. The governor of Vermont has refused to call a special session in his state to ratify the amendment.

And "the committee of 48" is against the league of nations! Sure, Mike! Every anarchist, every radical and every malcontent in the country is against the league.

The fishhook cactus is the compass of the desert, for it always points to the south.

COUNTY EDUCATIONAL NOTES

(By Co. Supt. Storrett)

State Supt. L. N. Hines has requested success grades from the following applicants who wrote on the June teachers' examination: Mae Clarke, Rensselaer; George Hammetton, Demotte; Martha Paris, Medaryville; Jane Parkison, Pleasant Ridge; Florence Bray, Thayer; Florence McKay, Fair Oaks; Lucy W. Harris, Mt. Airy. There were no failures from Jasper county on the June examination but two of the applicants were conditioned. The records show that the following teachers received state licenses since the January examination: William May, Millie Hoover, Robert Rayle, Gertrude Kanzeiter, Freda Ferguson, Day Jordan, Mildred Rush, Mabel Worland, Hazel Miller, Lewis Hurley, Jessie White, Daisy Knauer, A. C. Campbell, Margaret Marshall, H. F. Chase, George Hammetton, Elsie Benson, Gladys Ogle, Helen Kessinger, Gertrude Besse, Edna Reed, Alice Myers, Elsie Zellers, Mamie Reed, Alta Lucas, Grace Norris, Frank Woerner, Helen Lamson, Beatrice Tilton, Agnes Kahler, Ruth Murphy, Frances Folger, Amanda Steinke, Nellie Johnston, Kathryn Chamberlain, Cecile Culp, Bertha Hershman, Margaret Delahanty, Grace Knapp, Charles M. Blue, Gay Makeever, Florence Frame Story, Jessie Rardin, Cecile Jordan, Vera M. Woods, Mary Miles, Martha Parker, Lottie Porter, Lucy Harris, Florence McKay, Jessie Zellers, Gladys McGlynn, Mae Clarke, Martha Paris, Jane Parkison, Florence Brady. There are possibly a few others who removed conditions in other counties and received their licenses through other counties. However, the long list of names presents a fair index of teaching strength since a license from the state department gives the successful applicant an opportunity to teach outside of Jasper county and in most of the western states of the Union. Most of this teaching body will reappear in the school rooms of Jasper county again the coming year. In the former issue of educational notes appears the names of the teachers who are in colleges and universities at the present time. It might be worth while to note that every student from Jasper county in these higher institutions of learning are also holders of state licenses. A comparison of the two lists will endorse this. These are two distinct earmarks of conscientious teachers.

The Gilliam township regular eighth grade commencement was held at Independence church Saturday night. The ladies of the church held an ice cream social on the same night and sold their cream out long before the exercises were over. The few cakes left were auctioned off at the end and brought high prices. The commencement exercises coupled with this ice cream social attracted a large crowd. Music was furnished by the Jensen family from Wheatfield. This family has furnished music for a number of commencement exercises this year and have done exceptionally well. During the rendition of one piece the gasoline lights began fading and eventually went out. The selection was choked down until oil lamps relighted the room when they resumed the selection without apparent interruption amid the applause of the full house. The Rev. C. W. Postill of Rensselaer gave the invocation and benediction. Rev. Postill gave a short talk revealing the fact that 32 years ago he himself had received his eighth grade diploma from that same church altar. Mr. Postill divulged that he was a pupil that year of Judge Chas. W. Hanley, who was unable to give the address. L. H. Hamilton of Rensselaer substituted in a very able manner for Judge Hanley. Mr. Hamilton emphasized in a pleasing way that success would be a personal triumph depending wholly upon the individual. The program was greatly enriched by a well-rendered valedictory from Joseph L. Wuehrich. The boy won county honors by making the highest general average in Jasper county for 1920. Those who received diplomas were: James Budd, Benjamin Brittin, Esther Culp, Ora Edward Culp, James Hansen, Mabel M. Harper, Andrew Houston, Roland Johnson, Hendy Ludeman, Nellie Lidgard, Elsie Logan, Albert C. Rayburn, Earl Rockwell, Clara Shea, Christian H. Wuehrich, Joseph L. Wuehrich and Mable Wallace. The patrons of education gave concrete expression to their interests in the exercises by having the room decorated with flowers, flags and bunting. At the conclusion Trustee B. F. LaFevre expressed his thanks to them for their part in giving the occasion an inspiration from their decorations.
